Harford board delays vote on integration

BEL AIR—A decision on the integration of school in Harford County has been delayed by the County Board of Education.

It had been expected that the future of the schools would be decided at a meeting of the board on Wednesday when members were scheduled to vote on a recommendation from the Citizens' Consultant Committee, urging that desegregation start this fall.

However, when several subcommittee of citizens' group submitted their own reports on Wednesday, members of the school board asked for additional time in which to study the new material.

No date has been set for a new consideration of the recommendation. The NAACP has already filed suit against the school board seeking an end of segregation and the suit is pending.

• • •

IN THE principal report, which was adopted unanimously the citizens' group recommends: "Assignment of child regardless of race may make individual application to the Board of Education to be admitted to a school other than the one attended by such child, and the admission to be granted by the Board of Education in accordance with such rules and regulations as it may adopt and in accordance with the available facilities in such schools, effective for the school year beginning September, 1955.

In its separate report, the subcommittee on social and recreational activities, spelled out specific details of integration in urging:

"That ability be considered in the grouping of all children, but that no class, for which children of both races are available, be all of one race with the exception of elective courses.

"That the absorption of the colored pupils be in all schools and roughly on a 10 per cent basis, provided no hardships or long transportation be placed upon any pupils.

"That the colored teachers be absorbed into all of the schools in the county on a basis of approximately 10 per cent.

"That there be a special program of teacher education before integration to allow all teachers to understand and be helped with their important roles and responsibilities.

• • •

AS TO participation in sports, the sub-committee had this to say:

"The subcommittee gave this area deliberate consideration and it forsees little, if any, difficulty in it. With the present participation in sports on a national level, and the present emphasis upon sportsmanship and fair play in the schools, participation in sports may help the introduction of a program of integration."

Civic groups protest, liquor license denied

Considering the "general character of the neighborhood" and protests from church, civic and religious groups, the Board of Liquor License Commissioners this week turned down an amusement license application for the Club Bar at 1609 Laurens St.

The board's action was taken on Wednesday, following a hearing held on March 1, at which 39 persons appeared to urge that the license be granted and 19 urged that it be denied.

The board, however based its decision upon the fact that few of those favoring the granting of the license were residents of the immediate vicinity.

Included among those opposed were Mrs. Pauline Fauntleroy, president of the Northwest Improvement Association; Warren Weaver, manager of the Gilmor Housing Project, who spoke as representative of the project's 500 families.

MRS. REDDICK, 47, 700 block David Glenn, industrial secretary of the Baltimore Urban League; Bowen C. Jackson, executive secretary of the Baltimore Branch NAACP, and representative of the Cornerstone Baptist Church and Calvary Baptist Church.

• • •

IN DENYING the license, sought by Irving Kratner, owner of the Club Bar, the Board declared:

". . . In view of the close proximity of the subject premises to the Gilmor Homes, the general character of the neighborhood with its many churches, and the strenuous protest from residents in the immediate area, (the Board) has concluded to disapprove the application . . ."

The Board also quoted opponents to the application who said: ". . . the City of Baltimore, by the erection of the Gilmor Homes, and other groups such as the Northwest Improvement Association and the churches in the area were making an effort to prevent the area in question from becoming a blighted area and the granting of the license would in effect, defeat the efforts being made by the various groups."

Mrs. Juanita Jackson Mitchell represented those protesting the license. Henry R. Wolke represented the applicant.

'Sad and sudden was the call'

"Sad and sudden was the call. You could not say good-bye.

"Years may wipe out many things, but not the memory of our love and friendship.

"Beyond life's gateway, there is an open gate to happiness and rest."

Those were the sentiments expressed Wednesday by friends and relatives at separate funeral services for a father, his six-year-old son, and their neighbor killed in a three-alarm fire at 412 N. Carey St. last Saturday.

Only the black spitz dog, Tippy, escaped from the third floor apartment where the fire took the lives of the father, Clifton Hunter, 48, and his son Shannon, of 412 N. Carey St. and their neighbor, Charles Garrett, 40, a Bethelehem steel worker.

Funeral services were held for father and son at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Cooper's Funeral Home, 512 N. Carey St. An hour earlier, the funeral for Charles Garrett was held at the Holland Funeral Home, 1631 Druid Hill Ave.

• • •

"OUR BABY brother is gone," cried the sisters of Shannon Hunter.

"Oh, God, help me," moaned the mother and widow, Mrs. Hazel Hunter, who turned and twisted in anguish throughout the 40-minute services. She was held and comforted by a cousin, Mrs. Margaret Banks.

• • •

MR. HUNTER rested in a purple casket and young Shannon lay beside him in a gray casket. Both were topped with florals of fresh flowers, and a rack of roses and gladioli flanked the side of the caskets.

"The little one didn't care where his father went so long as he was with him," said the Rev. W. E. Butler, pastor of Gospel Render Baptist Church, 1171 W. Sarah Ann St.

He told the overflow audience of some 300 mourners, "So should we follow Jesus. He can open the door that no man can close."

• • •

JAMES SPENCER, representative of Local 557 Truck Drivers Union, said of Mr Hunter: "He joined the union in March, 1952. I feel like he was my brother. We went to school together."

He told the bereaved family, "We of the union were here to share your sorrow."

At the end of the services the heartbroken widow sagged in the arms of attendants as they returned her to the limousine. She was dressed in black and wore a veil.

APPROXIMATELY 75 relatives and friends crowded the Holland Funeral Home for the Garrett rites. The widow, Mrs. Eleanor Garrett, also wore black.

Seated with her was her brother-in-law, Paul Garrett of Halifax County, Va.

"He was all I had," Mrs. Garrett screamed as she gazed up at the gray casket surrounded by over a dozen floral wreaths.

The Rev. John Perry, pastor of Mt. Olive Baptist Church, 538½ Laurens St., told Mrs. Garrett: "Cheer up. Jesus will take care of you. He said He will be a husband to the widow."

• • •

THE REV. Emanuel Kent of Halifax County, Va. recalled a lifelong friendship with Mr. Garrett. "We shared Christmas dinner together at the home of his sister in Richmond. I didn't know then that it would be the last time I'd see him alive."

About 75 relatives and friends crowded the Holland Funeral Home for the Hunter rites.

Burial for all three fire victims followed in Mt. Auburn Cemetery. There was no review of the bodies because all were burned beyond recognition.

Survivors of Mr. Garrett include his wife, Mrs. Elnora Garrett of Baltimore; father, Julius Garrett, and brother, Paul Garrett, both of Halifax County, Va., and a sister, Mrs. Hattie Jones.

The surviving Hunter family include the mother, Mrs. Hazel Hunter, five children by her previous marriage, Lawrence Frazier, 19;—Hazel,—12; Mabel, 15; Emma, 13; and Tyrone, 11.

Police seek 2 who hit child

Northwest district police are seeking two youths who attacked a five-year-old youngster as he was en route to the grocery store, Monday.

James Wade, 1600 block Spray Ct., told police that the boys hit him in the head with a brick and took the $1 his mother had given him for groceries.

The mother, Mrs. Betty Woodland, treated the child for cuts of the forehead.

AFRO visits the Frontiers

The Frontiers, an organization of prominent business and professional men, organized in 1942 met Tuesday at the Druid Hill Ave. Branch YMCA.

Following introductory remarks by Dr. Howard L. Cornish, local chapter president, six panelists moderated by W. Emerson Brown weighed the pros and cons of a national Frontiers convention here in 1957.

The Rev. Edward G. Carroll, pastor of the Sharp Street Memorial Methodist Church, discussing the church benefits of such a convention said:

"The Frontiers stand for something big. We must look ahead. There will be an enrichment of life from contact with Frontiersmen from all over the country.

"There is no better stimulation for churches than association with people fighting and spoking for civil rights. Let's put all our begs in one asking."

In discussing the national benefits of a Baltimore convention, Bernard Harris, former Frontiers president, pointed out that:

"THE IMPACT of national leadership will be a stimulating force on local leadership. Baltimore is ripe for one or two colored councilmen from an area like East Baltimore."

After quoting Sir William Osler, "No man is ever free or happy without a hobby," Dr. Louis Harmon discussed the recreational facilities of Morgan State College and presented a possible recreational schedule.

Social benefits to the visiting as well as local Frontiersmen were discussed by the group's secretary, William B. Day, Treasurer, Dr. Robert J. Hill urged the financial support of each member in considering a convention here.

• • •

DR. EDWARD N. WILSON, representing Morgan College for Dr. Martn D. Jenkins, president, outlined the facilities available at Morgan.

Following the panel's proposals a sharp discussion from the floor developed over the issue of hotel discrimination in Baltimore. Several Frontiersmen pointed out that ADA has launched a program boycotting downtown hotels and urging national conventions not to meet here until equal hotel accommodations are available to colored people.

• • •

THE QUESTION then arose, would not a national convention of Frontiersmen in Baltimore be embarrassing to the ADA and other groups fighting to extend equal hotel accommodations to colored people in Baltimore.

Frontiersman John H. Henderson, executive secretary of the Druid Hill YMCA, suggested that the convention be held in Baltimore in the pleasant atmosphere of Morgan College.

"Simultaneously," Mr. Henderson said, "vigorous fight against hotel discrimination can be carried out."

• • •

PRESIDENT CORNISH, as chairman, postponed a vote on whether or not a national convention will be held in Baltimore by the Frontiers until their next meeting.

Representatives from 56 chapters will be in attendance.

Prices up for lunch in schools

Prices on balanced lunches in public school cafeterias have been advanced by three cents because of the shrinkage of Federal government subsidy funds, according to Mrs. Martha S. Beltz, cafeteria supervisor.

Instead of paying 27 cents for their lunches, elementary school children will now pay 30 cents. High school prices have been upped from 32 cents to 35 cents.

Mrs. Beltz, explained that the funds from the government were running low and there was a danger that they would be used before the end of the school term.

• • •

RATHER THAN have this happen, Mrs. Baltz said the decision was made to cut the government subsidy on each lunch and have the children make up the difference so that the lunches could be continued until the end of the term.

The only reported incident of any protest to the raise in prices came from Dunbar High School, where Mrs. Vivian Cook, principal, said that one pupil had displayed a sign asking for a strike at the cafeteria over the boost.

However, Mrs. Cook said the sign was removed and no additional protests were reported.

College exams require study

(Ed. Note—With high school seniors throughout the city preparing for graduation and what comes after, the AFRO is reprinting below an article by a former teacher which suggests methods by which those pupils who desire to go to college, may start now to prepare for entrance examinations.)

Now is the time to prepare for June examinations, and to learn methods of preparation for them.

Because of many changes in demands made for college entrance and qualifications required for positions into various city systems, young people finishing high schools or teachers colleges need to be definitely informed of standards they must meet, and preparations that must be made to cover scope of subject matter required.

Standards have changed so much in the last ten years, that young people frequently are greatly confused when they report to take examinations for entrance to college or for positions as teachers in cities with national standards that must be met by all teachers.

• • •

FORMERLY A recommendation from the principal of a high school and certification of and average of the required accomplishment, were sufficient. This is not enough to get any child in any standard college or school.

Colleges and school systems are demanding that persons hoping to be accepted, must take a national examination. The results of the national tests are accepted in all cities using these tests.

The scope of the tests are standardized for the type of college a pupil wishes to enter. The results of a college entrance test, if high enough, are accepted by other similar colleges and systems.

HOW TO BE ready to take your tests.

1. Review basic subjects such as English, mathematics, history, art, music, languages, science and other subjects, the subject matter of which should be known by all teachers. Know both content of each and how used, both in school and in life.

Increase your vocabulary.

2. Read educational and supplementary subjects, listen to both radio and television programs that supplement your knowledge of subjects and keep you abreast of the new things coming into daily use.

Listen to commentators who not only report the news, but who take time to use correct English, proper pronunciation and enunciation. Take an interest in programs that present different points of view and also add to your scope of knowledge.

Finally, open your text book and try to remember where you found the various types of knowledge being used and how it functions in life.

TAKING NO CHANCES—After extinguishing a fire at the Beale Elliott School No. 108. Gilmor and Presstman Sts., Saturday, these firemen went through the building to make certain that no smoldering debris was left to burst into flam. Damaged in the fire were two rooms which are not being used while repairs are being made. Two classes are on a part-time basis, but everything else is "normal" at the school, says George S. Whyte, principal.

Carver student council head says thanks for Afro editorial

(Ed. Note—The letter reprinted below was received at the AFRO office this week and was signed by Llewellyn Tilden, president of the Carver Student Council.)

"On behalf of the members of the Carver Family, the Student Council wishes to acknowledge the editorial concerning our school which appeared in the February 24 issue of the AFRO-AMERICAN.

"We are very proud of our history and achievement, and are looking forward to the time when we will serve our community in an even greater capacity.

"We feel that the students who have come to Carver are happy with their chosen vocations and are seeking for that balance that must exist between the following: physical well being, personal satisfaction, which includes a comment from others on a job well done; and social acceptability, developed through outward living.

"We also feel that a balance of these three factors must exist throughout a person's entire life if he is to be an efficient contributing member of society.

"Like the great scientist for whom our school is named, we have started humbly, and will constantly seek to achieve great heights by deeds and not just words. Thank you again for your editorial."
