Bar patron pays $75 for $5 loss

James T. Allen, of the 2800 block Presbury St., lost $5 Wednesday, but had no idea that his lost would cost him $75 the next day.

That's what he was fined in Northwestern Police Court Thursday morning for assaulting an officer, disorderly conduct on the streets, and for creating a disturbance at Lutheran Hospital.

The chain of events started when Mr. Allen claimed when an unidentified man took $5 from him in a tavern in the 1900 block North Ave.

As he started out of the bar he said he was stopped by Booker T. Hughes of the 2000 block W. North Ave., and a fight followed.

PATROLMAN Theodore Weintraub testified that when he reached the scene and tried to arrest the two men, Allen kicked him and he had to use his night stick.

Taken to Lutheran Hospital with a broken nose, the injured Allen refused to let doctors come near him and shouted, "I don't want to be treated."

Patrolman Weintraub said his prisoner created such a disturbance at the hospital that "I was forced to file a third charge."

Send free Christmas radiogram

Want to send a free Christmas radio-gram to your husband, son, brother or boy-friend in military service overseas?

Thanks to the general cooperation of several chains of "ham" or amateur radio operators, the Armed Services Hospitality Committee is inviting you to send such a message without charge. It mustn't be more than 15 words long. . .

The amateur radio operators can get messages to Korea, Japan, England or Germany in short order.

ALL YOU have to do to send a "ham-gram" Christmas message is to address it exactly as you do a letter for mailing overseas. Give the name, rank, Serial number, APO or FPO number, and care Postmaster San Francisco or New York.

You may sign your nickname if you want to, but be sure to include your full name, address, and telephone number also.

Then send the message to the Armed Services Hospitality Committee, Old Post Office Building, Room 27A, 12th and Pennsylvania Ave., NW, Washington 25, D.C.

Dear Santa' letters keep postal St. Nicks busy

"Dear Santa:

My brother wants some toys for Christmas. He has been a good boy. He hasn't learned to write yet. Here is his list. A bull nozer (bulldozer), a switcher (electric train), sand loader and a tank.

"I want a lot but here are a few things. A ring rat, minature doll and some doll clothes. We don't expect everything. See that the poor children get something."

Written by a five-year-old child, this letter is typical of approximately 1,000 letters the Post Office has been asked to pass on to St. Nick before Dec. 25.

Add to that the 13,383 overseas packages received in the main Post Office at Calvert and Fayette Sts., since the Nov. 15 deadline, the problem of what to do with 500,000 improperly addressed Christmas cards, and it's not hard to understand why the Post Office doubles its staff each year between Oct. 1 and Jan. 30.

It has hired 3,196 clerks, 1,500 carriers and 41 drivers to handle Christmas mail.

TO KEEP THE little one's happy, in addition to their regular duties, workers in the dead letter department devote some of their time to reading each letter addressed to "Santa Claus."

After processing, they are available to civic groups or individuals interested in making some child's dream come true Christmas morning.

The full weight of Christmas giving, however, is felt at the Parcel Post Station, located on St. Paul St., near Mt. Royal Ave. Here a small army of 407 postal workers, headed by Parcel Post Superintendent Harry A. Grimm, unload, sort, route and dispatch more than 150,000 parcels daily.

LAST YEAR, according to Mr. Grimm, a peak of 174,000 parcels was handled in a single day for an all-time high.

"We have not handled that many in any one day this year," he said, "but we expect the volume to step up steadily from now until Christmas Eve. We are now running well ahead of where we were at this time last year."

Mr. Grimm described "bad addresses" and faulty wrappings as the two greatest headaches of the parcel post station during its Christmas mailing rush.

"COME IN HERE a minute," he said as he led the way into a the floor where three men sat at long tables surrounded by huge mounds of parcels of all sizes and shapes.

"We have to keep two or three men a shift on in here now handling these," Mr. Grimm said. On some, the writing is illegible. On others theres is only part of the address.

"In still other cases the addresses has moved, or we find that the address does not exist. All in all, it adds up to a lot of trouble and extra work, with a lot of people disappointed on Christmas Day when their gifts wind up in the dead letter office."

MR. GRIMM shook his head as he pointed to a crushed parcel with the contents slipping out.

"The way that people will pay good money for a present and then wrap it in thin craft paper for a trip across the country will never stop amazing me," declared Mr. Grimm. "I don't know what the loss adds up to each year, but it's tremendous."

As he talked a clerk lifted a box with one end broken open off of a conveyor belt and dumped it into one of the huge wheeled canvass tubs into which the parcels are sorted.

"THEY SPOTTED that one before its contents had a chance to spill out," he said.

Outside of the building truck after truck rolled up to the block-long loading platform and emptied their contents into canvass tubs or onto conveyor belts.

On the belts the parcels wound their way through the huge building to huge metal slides, over 50 feet long and as high as a second floor window. The packages slid or tumbled down to the lower edge of the slide where clerks tossed them into canvass tubs marked for different parts of the country.

When a tub was filled another handler wheeled it away and left an empty one in its place.

"I'M GLAD see those belts keep moving," Mr. Grimm said at the end of the tour, "as long as they do, we are keeping ahead. When they stop, it means that parcels are still coming in, but not going out. That's when Christmas presents start getting late, and all us start pulling our hair out."

Mahoney tosses hat in Senatorial ring

George P. Mahoney, the Maryland Democratic Party's States Senate, announced Saturday that he is a candidate for the Senate nomination in 1956.

Mahoney who piled up 406,370 votes in the face of the Eisenhower landslide, lost his 1952 try for the Senate to Republican Senator J. Glenn Beall, but received more votes than any Democratic candidate for office in Maryland history.

Since his announcement Mr. Mahoney has been endorsed by the Anne Arundel County Board of Commissioners and the County's Democratic State Central Committee and independent Democratic clubs in Baltimore City, Baltimore County and Queen Anne's County.

KILLING SCENE—House at 1925 W. North Ave., where the Junius Parkers occupied the second floor apartment. (See story.). Mr. Parker, an Army vet, was killed on December 3 while he was asleep. Mrs. Lorraine Curry, his bride of six months, is in City Jail awaiting trial.

CANDID CAMERA CATCHES PART OF CROWD LISTENING TO CONGRESSMAN CHARLES E. DIGGS AS MICHIGAN DEMOCRAT ADDRESSED NAACP MEETING ON SUNDAY.

"God Help The Consciences Of Those 2 White Men" "I'm Going To Lead A Movement . . ." "To Challenge Every Mississippi Congressman" "Send Us Help In Washington" "Don't Be Roped In By Communists" "I Wish You Had Been There With Me"

NEW YORK — The election of Charles H. Hills of this city as president of the 345 W. 145th St. Management Inc. has been announced by the board of directors of the corporation, sole rental and management agents for the Bowery Savings Bank's building now under construction at 145th St., between St. Nicholas and Edgecombe Aves., in Manhattan.

the applauding audience.

He stated that many liberals now in Congress "do not have the guts to stand up and be counted on this issue.

"I am getting sick and tired of men of both parties grinning in our faces in New York and Michigan and slamming the door in our faces in Georgia and Mississippi.

He urged the eligible voters in Baltimore and Maryland "to send us help in Washington," declaring that the three colored congressmen can not do the civil rights job alone.

In ending his speech, Congressman Diggs declared:

"Don't be roped in by Communist and Communist front organizations. We served notice in Detroit that we stay away from us, we don't need them.

". . . It's bad enough to be black . . . but to be black and red too, is intolerable."

STATE SENATOR Harry Cole introduced the speaker, declaring that he was "one who stands for right for all regardless of race, color or creed."

Congressman Diggs, in acknowledging the introduction, said, ". . . I never heard a Republican say so many good things about a Democrat. It certainly is an unusual experience."

During the meeting, life membership plaques were presented William Adams and Dr. Joseph H. Thomas.

Trophies were presented to Mrs. Susie Murphy, the Rev. Marion C. Bascom and Mrs. Edith Allen for turning in the highest individual membership reports in the campaign for 10,000 members which netted 15,000.

The Mixed Ensemble of Carver Vocational Technical High School sang under the direction of Mrs. Lucille Marcus, as did the Metropolitan Church Chorus, under the direction of John Thomas.

Jimmy McDonald, 17, of Douglass High School also sang. Mrs. Lillie Jackson, NAACP president, called attention to the youth's beautiful voice, stating, "The only thing against him is that he is poor."

Senator Cole stated he would get a music scholarship for McDonald, "if he is qualified."

ranging them in his mind before they passed his lips.

"My daughter is a wine drinker. When she gets to drinking she is hard to get along with," he said.

"I don't buy wine," Miss Johnson said, and drew a prompt order from Magistrate Koger to keep silent.

"She lies," the father said, "she drinks wine and when she drinks there is as much difference as chalk and cheese."

Behind the thick glasses that he wore, Mr. Johnson's eyes were dull. He was dressed in a pair of brown trousers and shirt and a sweater. All the while he was testifying, his hands kept busy with his belt.

MISS JOHNSON wanted to speak, but Magistrate Koger had this to say.

"I find Mr. Johnson not guilty. The idea of bringing an 82-year old man into police court. You, Miss Johnson, should be ashamed of yourself. You should be trying to make your father happy instead of doing this."

Miss Johnson turned around and walked out of the room. An officer spoke softly to her father and then helped him leave the courtroom as the case came to an end.

Carmen DeLavallade inked as Met dancer

NEW YORK (ANP) — Lovely Carmen DeLavallade has been signed as solo dancer for the Metropolitan's coming season. She will be featured in "Aida" and in "Samson and Delilah." For the latter, special dances are being arranged by the Met's choreographer.

By a strange coincidence, DeLavallade, former member of the Lester Horton dance theater group, and a cousin of former Met prima Ballerina Janet Collins, will dance the identical roles that catapulted Miss Collins to Met stardom.

There's a Lucky Photo with a head encircled in this and every edition of the AFRO, worth $5 to the person in it. Look for it. It may be you!

FINAL JOURNEY—Members of the Elks Antlered Guard are shown bringing the gleaming mahogany casket of Samuel J. Stewart, founder and exalted ruler of East Baltimore Lodge 1042, IBPOEW, down the steps of Waters AME Church where services were held Saturday for the 75-year-old East Baltimore fraternal and civic leader. Pallbearers, are Lawrence Parker, James Bates, Eugene Curtis, Samuel Atkins, Lester Dixon and George Gregory.

A CAR DID THIS—The Milford Jeffersons' Carry-Out Shop at 534 Gold St., Thursday, looked like this when an auto went through the plate glass window and landed in a pile of fruit cakes.

Mutual security program discussed by President

WASHINGTON (NNPA)— One of the subjects President Eisenhower discussed Tuesday at a conference with congressional leaders, both Democratic and Republican, was mutual security appropriations.

Mutual security covers military assistance to friendly countries to develop or maintain specific military and related units, and development assistance given primarily to promote economic development, maintenance or political stability.

AFTER THE CONFERENCE, James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, told reporters that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had given the congressional leaders a review of world conditions since the Foreign Ministers' meeting at Geneva.

Mr. Dulles was quoted as having said the State Department is placing special emphasis on the economic aspects of foreign policy particularly in view of the accelerated Soviet campaign in Southeast Asia and the Middle East.

MR. HAGERTY also said the Director of the International Cooperation Administration, John B. Hollister, outlined the aspects of the mutual security program, including military support, economic and technical assistance "for our allies and friends."

United States assistance under the mutual security program has been operating in Southeast Asia to help the newly independent states of Cambodia, Laos and Viet Nam meet urgent problems of survival and self-government.

"Charles rode to work with me to the Western Maryland Dairy. I parked and we both got out and I locked the car.

"When I got off from work at 12 p.m. the car was gone.

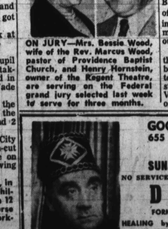
CHARLES, A FORMER pupil at School No. 131, admitted taking the car and riding around in it, but he declared that Wade had given him permission.

Police arrested Charles in the car as he was driving in the direction of his home around 2 am. Nov. 22.

While he was being held in City Jail awaiting trial, the clean-cut youngsters attempted suicide on Thanksgiving Day by swallowing disinfectant.

Mrs. Mitchell, a housewife, in talking about her other children, who range in age from 12 to 25, declared one was a nurse and all "the rest are hard working."

She stated that Charles never wanted to go to school, even when he was younger and that when he was small "he always wanted to stay outdoors and play by himself."



ON JURY—Mrs. Bessie Wood, wife of the Rev. Marcus Wood, pastor of Providence Baptist Church, and Henry Hornsby, owner of the Regent Theatre, are serving on the Federal grand jury selected last week to serve for three months.

In and Around Annapolis

By BOB PINKNEY

ANNAPOLIS — Santa Claus will be making his second such visit to Annapolis next week, and will arrive via motorcade it was learned.

The jolly fellow with the long white beard will make his first stop at the local courthouse, and they will engage in ten minute trips to Eastport, Main Street, the Annapolis and Germantown Elementary schools and Jo Hicks Ave., Parole and West Streets.

Pfc Donald Owens, M/Sgt. Thomas Johnson and Pfc John Wiseman are the three Anne Arundel Counties participating in the largest joint Army-Air Force maneuver since World War II, Exercise Sagebrush being held in Louisiana.

Owens, a resident of Route 4, Annapolis, is a radio operator in the headquarters Company.

Johnson, whose wife, Mrs. Veola Johnson lives at 28 Lafayette Ave., entered the service in 1950, while Wiseman is with the first Armored Division.

THE NORTHWEST Street YMCA, has joined the rest of its branches in getting acquainted with the new sports game called "Smash."

With its equipment presented by the Turks Sports Club of Annapolis, Director Paul Haughton, says that the game is much like ping pong (Table Tennis).

The Falcons, a local basketball team composed of former high school and college stars, will travel to Wilmington, Del., Saturday night for a game with the YMCA team of that city.

The Falcons include Lionel Hicks, Melvin Pindell, who played for Bates last season, Roland Queen, Leonard Randall and Charles Ross.

THE SECOND annual sports dinner will be held at the Northwest Street YMCA tonight (Friday), director Paul Haughton announced.

With the local Y just beginning to come into its own, they will have as their guest speaker, Vernon E. McCain, athletic director of Maryland State College.

Haughton also said other celebrities of the sports world as well as local figures will be on hand for the affair.

TEN COUNTY schools are being completed in Anne Arundel County, and 13 more are slated to undergo erection in the near future, reports out of the Board of Education said last week.

A rundown on what progress is being made shows the Jones Elementary School was given approval several years ago for the construction of the school in that area, but there is still some land that has to be obtained.

An addition to the Parole school is a much needed factor as it is facing overcrowded conditions. Reports say there is a need for six classrooms at present.

and there's the Stanton Elementary School on W. Washington Street. The board has considered the project but has not yet given it its approval.

Down at Lothian at least ten classrooms must be built as Southern where current facilities are very much overcrowded.

Research chemist lectures at W. Va.

INSTITUTE, W. Va. — The West Virginia State College Academy of Science presented the first of 2 annual programs during the college's convocation recently in the auditorium.

Dr. D. L. MacPeek, research chemist of the Carbide and Carbon Chemical Company's research and development department at South Charleston, was the main speaker on the subject, "Atomic Energy Then and Now."

Others appearing on the program were Miss Bernice Strand, Chester, Pa., Ernest Reeves, president of the state chapter, Miami, Fla.; Willie Walker, Weirton, W. Va., and Virginia Tittle, Dunbar. T. D. Phillips presided at the organ.

There's a Lucky Photo with a head encircled in this and every edition of the AFRO, worth $5 to the person in it. Look for it. It may be you!
