fore his hand from her throat and screamed. Again he choked her and jabbed her with the knife. She submitted.

The man warned her that he'd kill her if the act was reported. He ran from the cellar.

Hysterical, she raced into the street holding her torn slacks. A police patrol car was at the corner. Speaking in a whisper, her hands to her sore throat, she asked for aid.

IN THE CELLAR, police found her comb there.

Smith was arrested after the young mother identified him from police photographs. She also picked him from a line-up.

Smith, who pleaded not guilty, told the court that the mother was trying to "frame" him because he had refused to lend her money.

HE SWORE that they were old friends and had been together on numerous occasions, once on Sarah Ann St.

Called as a defense witness, the owner of the house was unable to identify the mother who was seated with other courtroom spectators.

Smith said that on the night of the alleged offense, he had watched fights on television at his sister-in-law's home and had then returned home to his wife.

ASSISTANT STATE'S Attorneys James W. Murphy and Norman Polski, prosecutors, placed the mother on the witness stand again to repute Smith's allegations.

The mother said that she did not know Smith and had never spoken to him.

He used to tap on the window and beckon to her when she was employed as a clerk at a Lexington St. store, the matron stated.

will was that the proceeds from the Macedonia Immediate Relief Society Life Insurance policy be divided among Mesdames Maggie J. Wise, Martha Frazier, Marie Walker; and Allen Taylor and Nelson Burrell. The policy amounted to $50.

"I don't want to die alone. You come and take care of me. I have you all in my will," one of the ladies quoted Mrs. Williams as saying.

NEIGHBORS, said Mrs. Williams seldom had a full meal unless it was given to her. She was just as secretive about her personal affairs as she was about her business.

She had one daughter, Josephine, who died nine years ago.

She also mentioned a husband who she said died in the early 1900's.

No one knew his first name. She referred to him as "Mr. Williams," and always boasted that any achievements she had made, she made without his help.

INVENTORY of the estate was filed Wednesday by the Mercantile Trust Company, and J. Nicholas Shriver Jr., whom she named executor.

Her other real estate, it was learned, had been converted into cash, with the exception of the McCulloh Street property.

when police noticed a bag on the front seat of a car parked in the 2800 block Rayner Ave. Ryles was arrested when he came out of a house in the block and walked to the car.

Police said that in the bag they found slips for 1,565 numbers plays totaling $372. After questioning Ryles, they raided the Poplar Grove St. house which is reportedly rented by the suspect.

In addition to the lottery paraphernalia, police said they found equipment used for loading dice.

A PRELIMINARY hearing set for Northwestern Police Court, the following day, was postponed for a week, at request of police officers who said they needed time to tabulate the evidence.

Ryles who was represented by Ernest L. Perkins, attorney, was neatly dressed in a blue suit. He made no statement and was in court about two minutes before bond was posted.

A 27-year-old woman who police questioned in connection with the case, was not charged.

the Henry Fuel Company when he began trailing her, the detective said. Once, she got into the cab of a delivery truck, but when the truck stopped, she wasn't in it, he said.

Another time, Mrs. Mitchell was trailed to a beauty shop in the Kenilwood section. Returning, she hailed a cab, and went to a drugstore at 14th and U Sts., NW, where she and a man had a conversation.

"I wouldn't have noticed the man, if Mrs. Mitchell hadn't started talking out of the side of her mouth to him," Mr. Bonner stated.

He said the man, whom he later learned was Mr. Rose, went into a U Street movie, shortly followed there by Mrs. Mitchell. They came out separately, he said, went to 15th and U Sts., and "got away."

MR. BONNER stated Mrs. Mitchell, before going to the Rose's apartment frequently used a telephone at Langston's drugstore, on Benning Rd., NE.

On the night of May 22, when he and Mr. Mitchell burst upon the couple in Rose's apartment, Mrs. Mitchell, who was leaving, was fully clothed, the detective said. Mr Rose was barefoot, but wore trousers and an undershirt.

In one bedroom, the bed was "mussed," he said. In another bedroom, Mr. Rose's mother was asleep. The detective said he asked the mother if she knew of the affair between the couple, and she said she did not.

ASKED BY defense attorneys why he chose that particular night to raid Rose's apartment, Mr. Bonner answered:

"I knew what was going on, so I took a gamble. I figured this was it, and it was."

In his testimony linking Mrs. Mitchell with Mr. Chandler, the detective said Mrs. Mitchell and a woman companion hailed a cab in the 1700 block U St., NW, and Mrs. Mitchell alighted in the 700 block Ninth St., NW.

HE SAID a man met her there, and she stayed with him until 4 a.m. It was at this point that Mrs. Mitchell evoked the first of a series of gasps which continued through the remainder of Bonner's testimony.

Asked by defense attorney, Mr. Johnson if he knew who the man was who met Mrs. Mitchell, Mr. Bonner replied:

"If you want to bring it out, yes I know."

"Wasn't this man in fact, William Chandler, of Chandler's Electric Company?" Mr. Johnson asked.

"Yes," the detective answered.

"Did you watch them from a roof too?"

"No," Mr. Bonner said. He settled back in the witness chair, twirled his eyeglasses in one hand, and with the other, popped his suspenders. "But if I could have got on a roof, I sure would have been in it."

JUDGE McGARRAGHY advised both Mr. Bonner and Mr. Johnson to "calm down."

Mr. Rose sat cross - legged through most of the testimony. He wore a brown suit, and red necktie. Occasionally, he eyed Mrs. Mitchell, pale and colorless, in a subdued gray suit, and black and white polka dot hat.

MR. MITCHELL'S testimony was mostly confined to his employment of Mr. Bonner, and to the night he burst into Rose's apartment.

He denied under cross-examination from Mr. Mitchell (the attorney) that he frequently attended social functions without his wife.

"Don't you recall seeing me at some of them?" the attorney thundered.

Mr. Mitchell replied that he did not.

Questioned about his relationship with his wife, the bank president said they had had marital difficulties, but denied ever neglecting her.

"HOW MANY times did you take your wife to the movies? Mr. Mitchell (the attorney) asked.

"At the beginning, we went as much as the average couple. Toward the end, we didn't go often."

The bank president also said he thought it was "bad for his wife to keep late hours, and asserted the children were not properly cared for.

He listed his income as $6,000 yearly as president of the bank; 473 bank shares for which he was last paid in January, 1955, $336; one house, in the 600 block P St., NE, where Mrs. Mitchell presently resides; two $1,000 Savings bonds, and 200 shares stock in U.S. Airlines.

IN THE divorce action filed January 29, 1953, Mr. Mitchell alleged that his wife committed adultery on February 9, February 17, March 23, March 31, April 10, April 27, May 4, and May 27 all in 1953.

He and Mrs. Mitchell were married June 24, 1942. They are parents of two children.

Mrs. Mitchell has custody of one of them.

Carroll-Hynson free on parole

GETTYSBURG, Pa. — Carroll H. Hynson, 53, wealthy Annapolis, Md., businessman who was convicted of involuntary manslaughter in August, was released Oct. 17 from Adams County jail, here, and is on parole for a year.

Mr. Hynson was given a 60-day to six-month jail sentence and $300 fine.

The conviction grew out of an accident at nearby York Springs, June 7, in which Mrs. Elsie Fenstermacher, of North Wales, Pa., was killed.

MR. HYNSON suffered cerebral concussion, cuts and bruises in the accident and his auto was demolished. Two students riding with him, Michael Ivy, 17, Washington, and Kerley Vaulx, 19, Hampton Institute freshman, escaped with cuts and bruises.

The three were en route to Penn State College to pick up Mr. Hynson's son, Carroll Hynson Jr.

According to Pennsylvania State Police, the accident occurred when the Hynson auto, a late model Cadillac, collided with a tractor trailer at the intersection of Routes 15 and 94.

MRS. Fenstermacher was killed when the car in which she was riding crashed into the demolished trailer which formed a road block from the impact.

Other testimony at the trial showed that Mr. Hynson was travelling "at excessive speed — 75 to 80 miles an hour" and skidded for 40 feet before hitting the trailer head-on.

There were also warning signs posted on the road, noting the fact that the intersection was dangerous, testimony showed.

However, according to the state, Mr. Hynson could offer no adequate explanation for his failure to observe the signs.

Mr. Hynson's wife, Mrs. Betty Hynson is a teacher at Bates High School. He also has a daughter, Miss Bertha Hynson, will probably be heard by the jurors this afternoon.

Also waiting to appear before the jurors are: Aaron Nehlett, Miss Pashandi, who had been previously arrested for questioning in the murder case; Theodore Graff, who was identified as a Democratic boss in the Dundalk area; Charles Toomey, white, now serving a six-month term in the Towson jail for bookmaking. He was among persons who took lie detector test in the initial investigation of the Adams murder.

Also called to testify in the case is the Baltimore County State's Attorney John E. Raine. Pryor asked reporters how things were going in Turner Station and said he was being treated well in jail.

Clean Blockers to make final report

Emmett Till drive for NAACP memberships nearing close

AFRO Clean Blockers stepped up the tempo of the door - bell ringing drive for NAACP memberships this week.

The final report in the effort is to be made Saturday morning at two churches.

The drive, organized by AFRO Clean Block Director M. Francis Mackay, has been named the Emmett Till Block Campaign as a memorial to the 14 - year old Chicago Boy who was kidnaped and lynched in Mississippi.

SOLICITORS IN both East and Northwest Baltimore blocks are running neck and neck in the race for the awards being offered for the most memberships, Mrs. Mackay said.

So heated has become the campaign, one youthful Clean Blocker has enlisted the aid of her father, who took membership envelopes on his job. He was able to sign up a number of his fellow workers, both colored and white.

Prizes are being offered to Clean Blockers who solicit the largest number of memberships. They are to be awarded by the Baltimore NAACP branch.

YOUNGSTERS IN the Northwest and South Baltimore sections are asked to meet in the Sunday school room of Sharp St. Memorial Methodist Church, Dolphin and Etting Sts., at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Those who are working in the Northeast and East Baltimore areas are scheduled to meet at the Knox Presbyterian Church, Broadway and Gay Sts., at 12 noon Saturday.

NAACP reports $27,318 raised

The Baltimore Branch NAACP announced Friday yesterday that so far $27,318 has been turned in and 9,645 members have been reported in the fall membership campaign.

On November 15 a complete report will be made on this year's drive, said Mrs. Lillie M. Jackson, NAAC president.

"We're going over the top," said Mrs. Jackson. The quota for 1955 was 10,000 members.

"We have conducted a marvelous campaign," Mrs. Jackson stated Friday morning. "The people in the north need to be congratulated for their response. The money has been coming in at such a rapid pace that we can't keep up with our bookkeeping."

MRS. JACKSON said that $400 in memberships was reported at a meeting held at NAAC headquarters at 40 Dolphin St. Tuesday night.

On Sunday, November 13, the NAACP is holding a musical Tea at the Sharpe St. Memorial Methodist Church. At that time all churches which have not made their final reports will do so, Mrs. Jackson revealed.

The tea will be held at 4 p.m.

THE NAACP is also sponsoring a memorial service to Bishop Richard Allen on Sunday, Nov. 20, to be held at 3 p.m. at the Bethel AME Church, Druid Hill Ave. and Lanvale St.

Mrs. Mamie Bradley routs false reports

BALTIMORE—Confronted with a series of rumors growing out of her nationwide speaking tour, Mrs. Mamie Bradley, mother of Louis E. Till, the Mississippi lynch victim, spiked them one by one.

Facing a battery of AFRO newsmen, Monday, Mrs. Bradley willingly answered queries.

"Are you clearing your speaking engagements with any certain booking agency?" Mrs. Bradley was asked.

"THE NAACP scheduled every speech I make," she replied. "Glouster Current, director of branches, is in charge of my itinery."

"What about the report that you have recently purchased a new home and bought a new car?"

"My mother bought the home that I live in in Nov. 1951. It is an old beat up building.

"It keeps a carpenter busy with hammer and nails.

"As for a car, I bought the automobile on Feb. 25, 1955. I might lose my car, but I don't think I will lose my home."

Asked about a report that Rayfield Moody had absconded with $10,000, Mrs. Bradley explained:

"Mr. Moody hasn't absconded with a thing. When this situation first came up, my stepfather suggested that his newphew (Mr. Moody) accompany me on my trips.

"THERE HASN'T been any $10,000 to abscond with. I have received $4,500 at the most in honorariums.

"I paid Mr. Moody $100 a week for his services. But after thinking things out, we decided that it would be better if my father would travel with me to keep down such reports as you mention.

"That was all that was to it. My father quit his job to travel with me. Mr. Moody did a fine job."

Mrs. Bradley was asked, had she known about her husband's execution, prior to the recent newspaper accounts.

She replied: "On July 2, 1945, I was notified of his death by a telegram from the War Department.

"It was followed up with a letter of confirmation a few days later. They listed the cause of death 'willful misconduct.'

"I wrote to everyone I could think of trying to find out about his death. I even wrote the President.

"I contacted a lawyer and finally he told me that he did everything that he possibility could, and could not find anything.

MRS. BRADLEY went on to say that soldier companions of her husband told her that he was not guilty of the thing of which he was accused.

MRS. BRADLEY observed, however that if her husband was guilty he should have paid for his crime just as the murderers of her son should have been executed.

She said that she was separated from her husband at the time he entered the Army, but they had become reconciled through an exchange of letters.

"We were going to go back together after his discharge," she stated.

ALTHOUGH SHE isn't anxious to go South, Mrs. Bradley said that she was going to speak in Atlanta in January.

'Cracksman' knocks self out on job

A former employee of a used car firm who literally knocked himself out in an attempt to break into the company's safe, received a year's suspended sentence from Judge Joseph Byrnes in Criminal Court Thursday.

Lawrence H. Courts, 23, of the 1300 block of Upton St., scaled an eight - foot fence, according to police, entered the office of United Motors and apparently spent several hours trying to break the dial off of the safe with a hatchet.

Long before the safe showed any signs of giving up, Courts, who had been drinking, crawled on top of the strongbox for a nap. He was still sleeping there when company employees arrived the next morning.

Pleading guilty, he was given a year's sentence, which was suspended by Judge Byrnes, and placed on two years probation.

Youth, 19, held on robbery count

James E. Howard, 19, of the 700 block of Druid Hill Ave., was ordered held under $1,500 bond for action of the grand jury, Tuesday, on charges of attempted burglary of the home of Mrs. Frances Reason at 659 W. Franklin St.

Mrs. Reason said in Southwestern Police Court that she left her apartment for a short while Monday morning and returned to find Howard inside and the place ransacked.

Mrs. Reason's brother - in - law William Henry Vaughan, heard the commotion from his house next door and arrived in time to hold Howard until arrival of the police summoned by Mrs. Reason.

Police seek kin of dead woman

Police aid was asked Tuesday in locating relatives of Mrs. Lillian Williams, 55 of 622 W. Fairmont Ave., who died suddenly on Oct. 27 after being found unconscious in bed at her residence.

Neighbors said that the dead woman, as far as they knew, had a brother known as "Candy."
