Clean Blockers to report on Saturday

The first results of their doorbell-ringing Emmett Till Block Campaign will be made Saturday by AFRO Clean Blockers.

The Clean Blockers have been organized by Clean Block Director M. Francis Mackay to solicit NAACP memberships in their neighborhoods as a memorial to Emmett Louis Till, the 14-year old Chicago boy, who was lynched in Mississippi.

The first reports are scheduled to be made at two churches.

• • •

NORTHWEST CLEAN Blockers will meet at ten o'clock Saturday morning at the Sharp St. Memorial Church, Dolphin and Etting Sts.

East Baltimore Clean Blockers will make their reports at 12 noon Saturday at the Knox Presbyterian Church, Broadway and Gay Sts.

Considerable interest has been worked up among the younsters by the announcement that the Baltimore branch NAACP has a number of prizes to be awarded those Clean Blockers who sign up the largest number of memberships in the drive.

Poe resigns from local Y

George H. Poe, physical education director at the Druid Hill Ave. YMCA since 1950, has submitted his resignation to become effective on Saturday.

His successor has not been named and in the interim the post will be filled by John H. Henderson, executive secretary of the Y.

Mr. Poe is leaving Baltimore to accept a post as program director of the Wilmington, Del., YMCA.

• • •

THE PHYSICAL EDUCATION committee of the local Y, headed by Harold Jennifer Jr., honored Mr. Poe last night (Thursday) by presenting him with a silver bowl in recognition of "outstanding service."

A native of Pittsburgh, Pa., Mr. Poe received his bachelor of science and master of education degrees from the University of Pittsburgh.

He was formerly been employed in Pittsburg at the Soho Community Center and in New York City with experimental interracial project set up by the late Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia.

Mr. Poe is married and is the father of a son and daughter. He is a member of St. James Episcopal Church.

Your house will burn if you aren't careful

Fires — most of which could have been prevented - caused the loss of 65 lives and untold injuries last year in Maryland counties, it was reported today by the Home Accident Prevention Unit of the Maryland State Department of Health.

Ninety per cent of all fires are caused by carelessness, neglect and lack of understanding.

The combination matches smoking and misuse of electricity account for 40 per cent of all fires of known origin; therefore, home fire prevention should start at these danger spots.

The following precautions will reduce the hazards of matches and smoking:

1. Keep plenty of ash-trays handy - and use them!

2. Never toss a lighted match away. Blow it out, hold it a second, then put it in an ash-tray.

3. Before emptying an ash-tray, be sure every match and butt is dead out.

4. Never use a match to light your way into a dark closet or similar space where clothing or other combustibles are kept.

5. Before going to bed, especially after entertaining, see that no butts are smouldering on tables or upholstery.

6. Keep matches and cigarettes where children cannot reach them.

7. Never smoke in bed!

Electrical fires are less apt to occur if you follow these rules:

1. 15 ampere fuses are the safe size for most household circuits. Never tamper with them; never use oversize fuses.

2. Don't plug too many appliances into one outlet; you will overload the circuit. If fuses blow often, call an electrician. He will inspect the wiring and put in more outlets and circuits if he thinks you need them.

3. Look for the UL label on all electric cords and appliances you buy. It means they have passed Underwriters' Laboratories tests for fire and shock safety.

4. Don't let a "home handyman" tinker with electric cords, wiring or appliances. Such work should be done only by an electrician.

5. Don't string wires over hooks or around nails, or run them under rugs where they may be walked on. Insulation will break and wear out, and a short circuit may result.

Man freed on rape count

Because the prosecuting witness contradicted herself on the witness stand, Harry Bryant, 31, 900 block N. Carrollton Ave. was freed of a rape charge by Judge John T. Tucker in Criminal Court last week.

Bryant was accused of beating and attacking the woman who testified he kept her in his apartment overnight on Aug. 2.

However, two defense witnesses, Will Simms, 1100 block W. Lafayette, and Steve Scott, 400 block N. Carey, said that they had met her at 1:15 a.m. that morning on Carrollton Ave.

• • •

THE WOMAN also testified that the incident resulted from the first date with Bryant.

The two men, however, said they had encountered the couple on several other occassions.

Michael P. Freedman was the attorney for Bryant.

New jail asked by Allegany jurors

CUMBERLAND, Md. — The grand jury for the October term of Allegany County Circuit Court recommended replacement of the old County jail Friday.

Terming the present jail "antiquated," the 23 grand jurors suggested that the county commissioners give serious consideration to replacing the existing structure.

Hit, run motorist injures cyclist

CAMBRIDGE — A hit-and-run driver is being sought by local police in connection with an accident involving Walter Young, 60, of Salem, Saturday night.

Mr. Young was found lying on the side of a road suffering from head injuries, a broken pelvis, and possible fracture of the left hip, a bicycle, which he was riding, was found 25 feet from his body. There was no description of the car.

The injured man was taken to Cambridge - Maryland Hospital where his condition is listed as critical.

TWO MORE BRIDGES

In doubleheader ceremonies the State Roads Commission opened to the public two new bridges across the Potomac River, Tuesday.

Governor McKeldin, assisted by officials of both Maryland and West Virginia, presided at the both bridges. The span between Kitzmiller in Garrett County and Blaine, West Virginia, was formally opened by a traffic at 11 a.m. For this event the Town of Kitzmiller prepared a gala celebration and parade.

The bridge between Cumberland in Allegany County and Ridgely, West Virginia was opened at 4 p.m.

To install traffic light at intersection

Although no date has been set for the installation of a traffic light at N. Fremont Ave. and W. Lafayette Ave., the work will be done this year, an official in the Traffic Engineering Department told the AFRO, this week.

The contract for the installation stemmed from complaints made by the West Baltimore Citizen's League through its president Edgar Douglass. Mr. Douglass wrote Henry A. Barnes.

CONTROL AREA—Headquarters for one of the many aerial defense rings around Baltimore is this site overlooking Chestnut Ridge. This area has three radars and is responsible for the firing, flight, and control of guided missiles launched from an area some two miles away.

—POLITICS—

Democratic Viewpoint

BY LLOYAL RANDOLPH

Fourth District City Councilman Solomon Liss and Maxwell Alpert have attacked the Department of Welfare and its budget request for 1956.

So effective have been their assault on the budget submitted by Miss Esther Lazarus, director of the welfare department, that Budget Director Herbert Fallis has indicated $188,000 requested for temporary aid will be slashed from the budget.

Mr. Liss has made much of a case involving a woman who has had nine illegitimate children and who receives $115 monthly from the welfare department.

He has used this particular case to cite how the department has been abused.

• • •

HOWEVER, wholesale cutting of the welfare department's budget will result only in playing havoc with human misery.

Mr. Liss has suggested that private agencies should take the people over who need temporary aid.

There has been no mention, however, of just what private agencies are able to take over such work. Miss Lazarus herself has stated that she does not think private agencies could absorb the cost of the temporary program.

I hope, before they begin to slash the nearly into the welfare department's program, that they investigate very thoroughly to weed out those who are now receiving aid illegally.

• • •

THERE WILL naturally be some few who are taking advantage of the city's charity, but the rank and file who make up the largest portion of the relief rolls need help.

This situation should be especially noticeable to Mr. Liss and Mr. Alpert since they are representatives of a district which carries heavy relief load and the largest group of colored in the city.

If extremely doubtful, however, whether these persons on welfare are interested in politics.

Nevertheless, it would be good if these budget-saving councilmen would remember that we are facing another winter of unknown possibilities. If anything, to my mind, the welfare department needs more money instead of less.

It is because of such a situation that Miss Lazarus' department has requested a budget of almost $19 million for 1956.

• • •

THE PROSPERITY that the Republicans are continually talking about hasn't reached everyone. There are numerous persons in Baltimore who can attest to that.

And Councilmen Liss and Alpert, two Democrats, should know it.

• • •

THE DEMOCRATIC State Central Committee has now decided to hold a $100-a-plate dinner on November 28 to make up a $35,000 deficit left from the Byrd campaign of last year.

Since all the top men in the party are wealthy men it would seem that they could get together and pay off the deficit.

They spend the money for the party and even plan how it is to be spent. Now they want the rank and file to pay $100 for a $5 dinner.

I'll bet that other than the jobholders, there'll be few to attend the $100-plate dinner at which Senator Symington of Missouri will speak.

The rank and file Democrats won't be able to afford such a meal.

• • •

ON THE national level the Democrats seemed willing to let Adlai Stevenson be the fall guy in next year's presidential election before President Eisenhower became ill.

Now that it seems the Democratic candidate will not have to face the formidable Mr. Eisenhower, it looks as if many Democratic politicians are dropping Mr. Stevenson.

And this is what I believe is happening, contrary to public statements to the contrary.

Republican Viewpoint

...BY HARRY A. COLE

After it was announced that President Eisenhower had suffered a heart attack, most politicians around the country were concerned with the question as to whether or not he will run for reelection.

To belabor this question is to fail to analyze the matter of chief concern.

The President's illness more aptly poses two questions to be answered:

(1) If he runs, who will be the Vice-presidential candidate; (2) If he doesn't run, who will be the Republican candidates for both of these high offices.

• • •

ANY MAN who runs with the President will have to measure up as nearly as possible to Mr. Eisenhower himself.

This means that such a person must have the respect of the nation and sufficient knowledge of international politics to enable us to maintain leadership in the free world as Eisenhower has done.

The men we know who can measure up to this standard are few.

It may be unfair to compare candidates, but I believe the public will demand this type of candidate from the Republican party.

The electorate wants a vice-president who himself is of presidential stature.

• • •

IF THE President refuses to submit himself to the electorate for reelection, then the party members must come up with two persons who compare favorably with this date, especially in his grasp of foreign affairs.

Two such men, who have these qualifications they are Chief Justice Earl Warren of the Supreme Court of the United States or John Foster Dulles, the Secretary of State.

These two have the experience, the integrity, and, perhaps what is more important, the confidence and respect of the American public without regard to party affiliation.

• • •

I HAVE been asked many times what I think about whether the President will run. I'd like to state my position.

I think if he has not suffered a heart attack he most probably would have run and been elected.

However, I do not believe that he will run this year.

The First Lady will object very strenuously.

• • •

Friends must remember that for more than 40 years this man EISENHOWER has given his best to the security and welfare of these United States.

Another Democratic Viewpoint

By ROBERT B. WATTS

The recent appointment of John Hargrove as an Assistant U.S. Attorney has met with great approval.

Mr. Hargrove is a Republican and was appointed by a Republican U. S. Attorney.

You can rest assured that Senator Harry A. Cole, Senator (U.S.) Butler, and the AFRO-AMERICAN had a lot to do with this appointment.

The Democrats are rejoicing, for they believe that when Eisenhower is defeated in the next presidential election, the next U.S. Attorney will be a Democrat and then one of the new attorneys in the city will be appointed.

Thus, it can be said that both the Republicans and Democrats are indeed pleased with the appointment of Mr. Hargrove.

• • •

MR. HARGROVE is an excellent choice for the job. He has been a real student of the law and even though he wasn't the most widely known lawyer he will bring to that position the type of ability needed.

Senator Harry A. Cole deserves credit for hard picking John Hargrove and if you know Senator Cole, you can rest assured he made certain the man selected could do the job.

John has been active in many civic organizations, and has carried himself with great dignity.

I could think of no Republican lawyer better fitted for this new assignment, both with respect to ability and to temperament.

Neat and well groomed, he will carry on the duties and responsibilities of that position in a manner that will make us all proud of him. We wish John Hargrove the best of everything.

• • •

MANY PEOPLE have been confused by this Tom Agnew name. They thought we already had an Assistant U.S. Attorney in the person of George Rosegum.

Others confuse these two positions with that held by Thomas Hayes.

Actually each of these men holds different and distinct positions.

FIRST OF all, Ted Hayes and George Rosedom are Democrats.

George Rosedom is an Assistant U.S. Attorney and his job is to prosecute in Baltimore City Court.

THEODORE HAYES handles State Accidentally Killed cases, no criminal cases. He represents the State of Maryland in compensation cases only.

John Hargrove not only handles criminal cases but represents the Federal Government in his area in civil cases as well. He has been assigned to cases where the Federal Government has a claim.

• • •

WE DEMOCRATS must admit again that it took a Republican administration to name the first Assistant U.S. Attorney. One of these days the Democrats will take the lead in this department.

Until then we will insist that men of proven ability be given top spots in all phases of our City, State, and Federal Government.

With men like John Hargrove taking office, we can be assured that the process will move forward.

There's a Lucky Photo with a head encircled in this and every edition of the AFRO. Look for it, it may be you. It's worth $5 if it is.

Little Things

By JESSE H. WALKER

"This is one crazy world," my best friend said to me, shaking his head sadly.

"Why?" I asked dutifully, although I was a bit wary of what was coming next.

"My best friend, you see, is a little crazy himself: he drinks Vodka with Muscatel chasers, he likes squash, he says the Orioles are going to wind up in the first division next year and he says even if Maryland is forced to open up all her beaches to everybody, colored folks will still segregate themselves by sticking close to each other.

Mr. Walker

"This world is crazy, Man," my best friend observed again. "People do the craziest things to remind us that we're colored, always putting up signs reading 'white' this and 'colored' that."

"THAT'S A fact," chimed in my second best friend.

My second best friend always imitates my best friend which explains why he ain't number one.

Seeing as how my best friend, however, had something pressing on his mind I felt it my duty to pull it out of him.

"What's eating you now?" I asked.

"It's those signs," said he. "What signs?" asked I.

"Those signs at the track, the track in Marlboro, I can't dig 'em."

"What signs," I repeated, I was getting impatient.

"Ain't you seen the signs," he asked. He looked at me as if I had committed a mortal sin.

I professed my ignorance.

"Well," he continued, "they got signs down at that track which say 'White Women, Colored Women' but just plain Men."

"That's a fact," chimed in my second best friend. "Crazy, ain't it?"

I agreed. "What's the logic behind this?" I asked.

"They must have run out of paint," observed my best friend smugly.

I nodded my head. It is a crazy world. Real crazy.

NUMBERS TRIAL — There'll be a lot of folks who will be making the trip to Towson expecting to get steak for gossip but what they get salad instead.

By that I mean the fact that the big Turner Station numbers raid trial is not coming off today. What will happen at the Baltimore County Circuit Court this Friday will be simply a preliminary hearing on law motions, etc.

Old folks seeking grist for the gossip mill won't have anything to talk about but legal gobbledygook. Unless, of course, one of the defense attorneys seeks to move the trial to another county. That could cause some talk.

BUT NO MATTER where they hold the trial finally the eager beavers who're so anxious to know who sounded off to the State Police about the alleged operation are going to be disappointed.

The State Police certainly aren't going to reveal their sources of information. And those that gave said information aren't going to be parading around shouting "I did it!"

Meanwhile the small county community remains a tinderbox of unrest and the speculation continues.

And the unrest in Turner Station has also moved to Catonsville, another Baltimore County community, it is reported. It's lopments will be watched closelopments will be watched closely.

• • •

HOT TIP — My usually reliable undercover agent in Turner Station, however, reports that the folks in the little community are getting all het up over something some of them are responsible for.

My agent says the complaint that led to the raid actually originated with a white gambler who was bested by a fan operator during a dispute over territorial rights.

And the fact Turner Station is now torn "smack dab in the middle" is just what the "other brother" wanted.

100 men protect us from bombing

Battery 'B' mans watch with the formidable 'Nike'

Like a guardian angel, 100 men comprising "B" Battery of the 54th AAA Missile Battalion of the 17th Anti-Aircraft Group are standing watch over Baltimore around the clock.

On a 21-acre site overlooking Green Spring Ave., men of the 54th stand poised and ready to ward off air attacks on this city.

Their weapon, the "Nike," a guided missile, named after the Greek Goddess of Victory, is ready for instant flight against enemy aircraft at all times.

• • •

OFF THE 100 men in the battery eight are colored. The54th is part of an aerial defense ring around Baltimore. All of the men have had special training.

Among those serving the the 54th are Pfcs. Eugene Wilment of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Zeddie Lilly, Brierfield, Ala.; Lafayette Williams; Charles Cook, William King, Richard G. Jones, Kenneth Rice, and Donald Ellis.

Battery "B" is divided into two basic areas, control and launching.

The control area contains three radars and is responsible for the administration of the control, fire, and flight of the guided missile.

Twelve launching areas on three platforms are located on the opposite side of Green Spring Ave.

Beneath the platforms, in a are stored and brought to the surface when needed on a giant elevator.

Nearby stands an assembly and testing building as a fourth area. The control and launching areas each contain mobile vans with electronic equipment to control the radar and fire the missiles.

• • •

A SLIM cone-like object with fins, the "Nike" is approximately 20 feet long, 12 inches in diameter and weighs 2,200 pounds.

Attached to the end is a booster which helps to lift the rocket into the air and throw to the ground after the missile reaches supersonic speed.

It is impossible for any known aircraft to outmaneuver the "Nike."

The actual speed of the weapon is a military secret. It is known, however, that it is not necessary for the missile to hit an aircraft to damage it.

According to Capt. Charles L. Bowyer, Commanding officer of "B" Battery: When the "Nike" comes, within a certain distance of a plane it simply disintegrates.

• • •

ONE OF the most dangerous aspects of the operation is fueling the rocket.

Since liquids used for this purpose are corrosive, crewman who perform the task wear plastic suits, helmets with windows, heavy gloves and boots.

As a safety measure, 12-foot-high earth bunkers have been constructed around the fueling area.

THE 54THwent into full operation in Baltimore last June. In the vicinity of their neat and attractive, green and white quarters recreation is varied.

The small post contains a miniature golf course, a recreation room with television two baseball diamonds and a wood work shop.

Near the launching site, where another barracks stands for crewmen on duty and noncoms, the men themselves recently completed work on an outdoor barbecue pit.

• • •

DUE TO the importance of their work passes for men of the 54th are few and far between.

Since three crews must be on duty at all some of the men sleep with their boots on, particularly during practice alerts.

On an average practice alert they are summoned from their quarters three or four times a night.

Allegany County gets new voting machines

CUMBERLAND, Md. — Forty one voting machines, the first of five truckloads for Allegany County, arrived at the Court House this week.

The addition brings to 168 the number of devices available for future county elections.

WORK BENCH:

Carolina through control

Example of what makes it tick

By CLARENCE MITCHELL

WILMINGTON, N.C.—The savages who now control Mississippi have some kissing cousins in North Carolina. While here I have been told about how some of the defenders of the status quo are operating.

Methodists will be painfully surprised to know that the Wesley Foundation of Greensboro, N.C., was one of the first groups to engage in thought control on civil rights.

Miss Jo Lee Fritz, a white worker on the staff, was fired because she was active in the NAACP.

• • •

APPARENTLY THERE was no question about Miss Fritz's efficiency. The Methodist brethren, who probably give liberally for missionary work in Africa and other remote places, declared that workers who identified themselves with civil rights causes were controversial.

Scholarly Dr. H. A. Eaton, successful in his practice of surgery and medicine, has felt the sting of anti-civil operators.

He is one of the few men in the country who has actually talked face to face with those who sought to frighten him.

DR. EATON is a tennis champion and maintains a healthy interest in the game. Beside his beautiful home in Wilmington, there is a regulation size tennis court with floodlights for night playing.

White as well as colored players like to use the court.

Recently Dr. Eaton heard a crash outside his home. Investigation revealed that someone had thrown two bricks on the porch. A few days later there were more bricks and two windows were broken.

At this point Dr. Eaton sought aid from the police. He also posted a guard at his home. One night a car drove by and beamed its lights into the house. The guard managed to get the license number.

• • •

THE OCCUPANTS of the car turned out to be white teen-age trouble makers from middle class homes. When he asked them why they singled him out for attack they said, "You live in a house that is too good for a n--r."

• • •

WHEN NEWSPAPER publisher Thomas Jervay ran for city council in Wilmington he got through the primary safely, but was defeated in the runoff.

Mr. Jervay's opponents sent out numerous letters to voters enclosing a series of pictures showing Sammy Davis talking with various white movie stars.

The smear sheet carried a statement that the pictures showed "interracial hugging and handholding."

It was printed in Englewood, Calif., and bought in large quantities by Mr. Jervay's opposition.

• • •

IN SPITE of the adverse pressure in this area, one gets the distinct impression that it is moving forward. There is increase interest in political action.

It is no longer an idle dream to expect that colored people can get elected to public offices.

• • •

THE MEMORY of those who served at the turn of the century is still fresh in the minds of many persons. In almost every conversation about politics one hears about the numerous office holders who served with distinction.

With continued effort on the part of the North Carolina NAACP there is no doubt that the goal of a half million colored voters will be realized.

I believe that when this happens the white people of the area will be mature enough to accept it as a fact of life.

It will bring about a new day of greatness for the Tar Heel state.

CHANGING OF THE GUARD—One of the most closely guardad sites in all Baltimore is the working area of the 54th. Pfc. Eugene Wilmont, left, of Chattanoogs, Tenn., and Pfc. William Genung of Akron, Ohio are two of the men responsible for guarding the 23-acre site on Green Spring Ave., at Chestnut Ridge.

MISSLEMEN—Looking like men from Mars in their rubberized suits, Pfc. Joseph Prather of Urbana, Ill., and Pfc. Robert Moore of Guthrie, center, Iowa, fuel up one of the guided missiles used by the 54th AAA Missile Battalion of the 17th Anti-Aircraft Group. The battalion is responsible for guarding the city against air attacks.
