—Cecelia Rezar

Mrs. Rezar had retired under an option which provided for her having a lesser retirement allowance with the following provision:

If she died before receiving back from payments the amount which she had contributed, the difference between the amount she contributed and the balance would go her beneficiary.

Mrs. Rezar's total account showed an amount of $30,371.34.

When Mr. Mitnick prepared to file suit for the balance, the retirement system agreed to turn the balance over to the Beneficiary, he said.

MR. MITNICK also said that Mrs. Rezar called him mornings, noons and nights, for such services as obtaining medical services when the family physician refused calls because he had not been paid, and to come and talk to Mr. Rezar when he had been "drinking and misbehaving."

On such a last occasion, May 18 the attorney said he was called by Mrs. Alice Diggs at Mrs. Rezar's request.

Mr. Rezar, who had earlier been placed in Crownsville, had been released without his knowledge, he said.

When he went to the Rezar home he found Mrs. Rezar had been severly beaten, her glasses broken, her knees and feet horribly swollen and that she was short of breath and scarcely able to talk.

He stayed with her and the husband from 6 to 11 p.m. and through her sister, Mrs. Catherine St. Clair, arranged for her to be placed in a nursing home, then went to Northern Police Station to obtain transportation to return Mr. Rezar to Crownsville, the lawyer said.

Mrs. Rezar died two days later.

Even on that occasion, the lawyer recounted, Mrs. Rezar begged him not to let a policeman mistreat her husband.

He said he prevented the officer from using a club and handcuffs on the mentally ill husband and summoned other policemen who were able to subdue him without violence and return him to Crownsville.

EVEN WITH Mrs. Rezar's death, the fight still went on, says Mr. Mitnick.

A devout Catholic, it was Mrs. Rezar's intention to be buried in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Because survivors were unable to find a deed, a priest, Monsignor Ekanrode of St. Mary's rectory refused to grant permission, the attorney added.

Mr. Mitnick says that for an evening and a full day he was at the cemetery helping to pace off distances, uncover markers and identify graves.

He alleged that her parents were buried in the wrong lot and though he found the graves of her parents, he still could not convince the sexton that Mrs. Rezar should be buried in St. Mary's.

During the night, he said, he and Mrs. Mitnick searched through two pillow cases of papers looking for the deed.

IN THE meantime, he said, the Holland Funeral Home stood by with a burial lot in a Protestant cemetery and he stood by with gravediggers for St. Mary's, until he finally received permission and Mrs. Rezar was buried in St. Mary's, with the Holland Home preparing the body for burial "in its deteriorated state."

Mrs. Mitnick recommended, and the court approved an $981.50 fee for the latter service upon filing of a petition by Ben Foreman, attorney for the Holland Home.

MR. MITNICK says that the fight still continues. A day after his client's death he said persons purported to be Mrs. Diggs, a cousin, and her husband, Robert E. Diggs, entered the Rezar home and removed many of the household effects.

He adds that neighbors report that three automobile loads of belongings were removed.

He (Mr. Mitnick) says that he got one auto load returned, including linens, radios and sterling silver candlesticks.

Mr. Mitnick said he is trying through Orphans' Court to have other belongings returned.

He is also trying to trace other silver and jewelry, having found pawn tickets for two diamond rings and two wrist watches. These he has redeemed with his own funds, he says.

THE ATTORNEY says his time is still being taken up credits, including the Household Finance Corp., which wants the furniture.

The finance company's attorney, James F. Thrift, charges, he says, that no proof can be found of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Rezar and that Mrs. Rezar signed the mortgage.

RECORDS OF THE MARRIAGE bureau in Annapolis, Md. show that the couple was married on April 5, 1926 by the Rev. Augustine J. Duke of St. Mary's parish.

Other creditors who are consuming his time, says the attorney, include the Garren Finance Co., with a Mrs. Garren threatening to "have him disbarred because he is cheating her out of her money," the Green Spring Dairy Co., Gomprecht and Benesch Furniture Company, Harry Orman, a liquor salesman; Sidney Shulman, plumber and L. E. Jefferson, awnings.

IN HIS REPORT on Mr. Rezar, the attorney says he has placed the $22,296 in government insured savings accounts with the exception of a small amount to meet current expenses.

These will include $90 per month to the Department of Public Welfare for the hospital charges, and $5 per month, recommended by Crownsville physicians as spending change for Mr. Rezar.

Mr. Mitnick says that he is still looking for a more suitable institution in which to place Mr. Rezar. He pointed out that Mr. Rezar is unhappy in the "A" Building at Crownsville.

He also added that Crownsville doctors have about 3 hours to devote to each patient per year, there, and that two of these hours are taken up in paper work, travel time and the quelling of ward fights and disorders.

MRS. ALICE DIGGS, the cousin mentioned in the Mitnick petition above, lives at 1712 N. Carey St. The AFRO was first to notify her of the petition.

She said: "I'm greatly surprised. Mr. Mitnick is in error when he says I took things. My cousin, Mrs. Rezar, gave me her linens and said to me, 'Take anything else you can use, Alice.' They were all small things, of little value.

"Since March when she became seriously ill, I went every day to visit her and continued to do so up until her death in May. I took care of her as best I could.

"As to Mr. Mitnick's statement that the house was infested with rats and vermin, I saw no rats. There were a few roaches.

"She had been ailing for some time and was not able to clean up. And he has no proof that Mrs. Rezar was beaten by her husband. I was there that night. In fact I found her on the floor. If you ask me, Mr. Mitnick has exaggerated aplenty."

MRS. CATHERINE St. Clair, sister of Mrs. Rezar, resides at 2044 Ruxton Ave. Another survivor is their brother, Eugene Connor, a patient at the Veterans' Hospital.

THE AFRO was also first to advise of Mr. Mitnick's petition. She, Mrs. St. Clair said, "I didn't know anything about it. My sister made a will and named Mr. Mitnick as executor and intended for her money to go to her husband.

"Mr. Mitnick called me and told me he was auctioning off the house and the furniture but he didn't tell me he was going to put all that in the petition for his fee.

"Of course, I think a $3,000 fee is a lot of money. It is utterly ridiculous for him to bring up all these things now that she is dead. You can quote me as saying this a great surprise."

of the books for one dollar a copy.

One of Bishop Ransom's first charges was in Altoona, Pa., and the first bishop to visit his bedside was the late Bishop J. P Campbell. He says the bishop preached in the morning and also listened to with much appreciation. The collection was $15.

Officers gave the bishop $5. After church was dismissed, the bishop sat on the steps of the church and refused to go home. "The officers had not treated me right," he said. "They should have turned the collection over to me." He didn't budge. The officers handed him the entire amount.

When he got home, he laughed heartily. He said, "Here Bub, take this money. I got it for you. I knew the officers never would have given it all to you."

AT ONE OF the business meetings of another church; the Rev. Ransom pastored, he said, he was in the midst of calling attention to dereliction of duty on the part of some of the members, when a sister arose.

She said, "Was you deludin' to me, sir?" I replied, "I was not." "Well then," she said, "I want you to be more instinct in your remarks."

"On another occasion I married a coachman to a cook." The bishop said, "The man gave me three dollars. But thereafter each month he gave me two dollars, remarking each time, 'Elder, I can never get through paying you for that good women you gave me.'"

RECALLING a visit to Matthew S. Quay, political boss in Pittsburgh in 1890, with a delegation of ministers, Bishop Ransom says, "After Mr. Quay received us, he told his colored butler to go to the cellar and get some wine.

has run from $40,000 to $50,000 at each convention.

Of the $206,679 collected in the last year lodge, $112,504 went into the general fund, out of which the payroll and grand lodge expenses come, Mr. Hueston stated.

SUMS ALLOTTED to other departments included $20,648 to the education department; shrine department, $28,693, including rentals from property in New York City; civil liberties department, $16,196; The Eagle, official organ, $12,420; Junior Elks, $876; health department, $4,316; economics department, $100, and veterans' affairs department, $266.

Mr. Hueston said he found it necessary to comment in his annual report on the John Brown Farm. This farm was the subject of a lawsuit in the District of Columbia District.

Trezavant Anderson, Washington newspaper reporter, sued Mr. Hueston and the estate of the late J. Pinley Wilson, grand exalted ruler for 30 years, for the difference between the $9,000 they paid for the John Brown Farm and the $30,000 for which they sold it to the Elks.

THE JOHN BROWN Farm was a real estate transaction in which the grand lodge did not invest a cent, Mr. Hueston said. The interest of the Elks in the Farm began with the Tri-State Association (Maryland, District of Columbia and Delaware), he said.

After beginning negotiations for the purchase of the farm, he said, the Tri-State Association found it was not in a financial position to carry out the transaction.

Chief District Deputy Onton S. Lloyd of the District of Columbia signed to the investigation.

POLICE REPORTED that Lewis stated his wife had been out with another man Wednesday evening returning at about midnight and stating that where she had been was none of her husband's business.

An altercation developed during which Mrs. Lewis seized a knife, her husband was quoted as saying.

Lewis, police said, took the knife away from her.

A verbal argument followed during which he reportedly grabbed his wife's throat and she collapsed.

THE AIRMAN, police said, stated that he then took aspirin tablets and some turpentine, thinking if both he and his wife were dead their child would then be cared for by a relative instead of being taken to an institution.

When his stomach refused the aspirins and turpentine, he left the apartment and hailed the patrol wagon.

Police said Lewis is the son of Saul Lewis of 4300 block Rhode Island Ave. in Brentwood, Md.

Masons see peace as Shriners drop suits

Nobles vote to end all pending actions

DETROIT — The Shriners, in the closing session of the 54th annual convention in the Institute of Arts Friday, voted to terminate all pending legal action against grand masters and grand lodges and will discontinue William. R. Ming of Chicago as general counsel.

Imperial Potentate Booker T. Alexander, newly elected head of the Shriners, presided at the closing session and the action of the convention followed a reading of the detailed reports of Imperial Legal Advisor Levi Morris of Chicago and Mr. Ming.

MR. MING, in remarks to the Imperial Council officers, had praised them for their forbearance and continued efforts to find ways and means to alleviate tensions without court action.

While he emphasized "the right" of the Imperial Council position, he also noted that there was continuing efforts to forestall embarrassment.

This action of the Imperial Council was seen as another effort on the part of the Shriners to bring peace and harmony with the grand masters and grand lodges without legal action.

DELEGATES EXPRESSED hope that by the 1956 convention in Washington the whole matter will have been solved and the problems now existing in various grand lodges affecting Shriners dissolved.

Meantime, Mr. Alexander stated that an immediate audit and inventory of all books, records and equipment of the Imperial Council would be made.

Both members of the convention and officers of the Imperial Council stated emphatically that the Shriners did not want any more legal suits.

Potentate Alexander and other officers were installed at the Thursday morning session. Alexander is the 13th Imperial Potentate of the Ancient, Egyptian, Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

Wants realtist to refund $250

Legal action has been taken against Mrs. Priscilla Carter Hall, realtor, ordering her to return a $250 down payment to a client who says she improperly tempted to sell a house.

In a summary judgment filed recently in Superior Court, Mrs. Ertie T. Allen, 705 N. Fremont Ave. alleges that Mrs. Hall accepted the deposit from a Leonard Lyle, Oct. 15, 1953, for purchase of Mrs. ALLEN'S HOME.

Mrs. Allen contends that Mrs. Hall knew at the time that the property had already been sold to another party and that on Oct. 6, 1954 it was adjudged in Circuit Court II that she sale to Mr. Lyle, was improper.

Under order of the Circuit Court judge, Mrs. Allen said that she returned the money to Mr. Lyle, but that Mrs. Hall has still refused to refund the deposit to her.

MISSING—James Juna 13, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Dunn of 726 E. Preston St. have been looking for their son James Thomas Dunn, 14. The youth, when last seen, was on an elevator in Lafayette Courts. He was wearing gray trousers, brown shoes and a black jacket trimmed in green.

Child killed going to store

A four-year-old girl who was on her way to a store with a nickle for candy died early Wednesday afternoon when she was struck by a truck near her home.

Celestina Austin of the 2020 block McCulloh St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Provident Hospital. Funeral arrangements had not been completed at press time.

The child was struck in the 500 block Gold St., between McCulloh St. and Druid Hill Ave. Near her body, her playmates reported that they found the unspent nickle.

THE DRIVER of the truck was identified as Lloyd H. Wilson, 22, of the 2900 block Riggs Ave., a chauffeur for a downtown department store. He faces a hearing for automobile manslaughter.

Police said that Wilson was traveling north on McCulloh St. when he made a turn into Gold St. and struck the child who was running across the street.

One of seven children, Celestine was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Austin. The children range in age from 10 years to 11 months. The father is also employed as a chauffeur.

Famed superfort to go on exhibit

The world's most famous bomber, the B-29 Superfortress "Command Decision," bows in to Baltimore Monday for a two-day stand.

During its stay in Baltimore—adjacent to the War Memorial Plaza at Holliday and Fayette Streets, the combat veteran of the Korean conflict will be open for public inspection between 8:30 a.m. and 9 p.m.

Sponsored here by the Baltimore Ground Observer Corps, the big Superfort's local appearance is being made to stimulate interest in the National Aircraft Show at Philadelphia's International Airport over the Labor Day week-end.

Man lies in street for fifteen minutes before help arrives

A crowd of over 100 persons gathered and watched in the 1500 block Pennsylvania Ave. on Wednesday afternoon as William Jenkins, 44, 600 block Smithson St., laid sprawled in the street, awaiting help.

For over 15 minutes they waited until a cruiser wagon from the Northwestern Police Station, three blocks away, showed up to take the man around the corner to Provident Hospital in the 1500 block Division St.

Jenkins was treated for cuts of the scalp and released. In his story to police, Jenkins was quoted as saying that he fell after leaving a bar in the 1500 block Pennsylvania Ave.

Fulton Ave. residents battle Barnes on islands

Some 44 residents in the 1900 and 2000 blocks of N. Fulton Ave. who are seeking to take action against Henry A. Barnes, traffic director, were admitted as plaintiffs into another case against the traffic czar this week.

The admission was granted upon request of Hyman Pressman as attorney, by Judge Herman M. Moser of Circuit Court in connection with a legal attempt to prevent Mr. Barnes from readjusting the speed laws in Baltimore.

Judge Moser is holding the case under advisement.

THE 44 NEW plaintiffs also seek to prevent Mr. Barnes from harrowing the park island in the Fulton Ave. area in order to increase the traffic lanes.

According to Mr. Pressman, the disposition of the speed law case will determine whether or nor he will have to take further action regarding the Fulton Ave. case.

The plaintiffs who signed a petition to be admitted into the speed law case include:
