Wright, late ex-champ lauded

LOSES TO GRIM REAPER—Chalky Wright, former world featherweight champion, was found dead Monday afternoon in the bathtub of his mother's apartment in Los Angeles, Calif. The 43-year-old winner of the featherweight title in 1941 was apparently the victim of accidental drowning. He retired from boxing in 1948, after losing the title to Willie Pep in November, 1942.

The higher echelon in Washington's boxing circles spoke with high regard for Albert (Chalky) Wright, ex-featherweight champion who drowned accidentally Monday in the bathroom of his mother's home in Los Angeles.

Ray Alvin, who promoted the championship fight between Wright and Joe Archibald, said "Wright was one of the greatest. In his prime he could lick these present featherweights with one hand tied behind him."

Wright won the title in a blistering 15-round bout here Sept. 11, 1941.

The kid was an ageless wizard such as Archie Moore is regarded today. Mr. Alvin said, and out of the ring Wright was a high-class, well-respected fellow.

Mexico-born, Wright use to box at the Goldie Ahern Gym when it was on Ninth st. "He was one of the top- notch fighters.

The 43-year-old boxer started his 20-year career in 1928. He won 88, 52 by KO's, lost 31 and fought to four draws.

THE DETHRONING of Archibald by Wright set off a feud between the two fighters' managers, Al Weill, handling Archibald, but better known for tutoring Rocky Marciano, and Eddie Walker fought because the latter would not grant Archibald a rematch.

Willie Pep took the feather weight crown from Wright on Nov. 20, 1942.

Police reported Wright—who suffered from a heart condition —slipped and fell in the bathtub.

Wright had just moved in with his mother, Mrs. Clara E. Wright, on Sunday after a spat with his wife.
