NOTICE TO PATRONS

The War Board has asked or ordered all newspapers not to extend credit of over three months to subscribers, which means that any subscriber whose subscription is over due for a period of more than three months is to be discontinued, and all free copies must be omitted from the mailing list. So should any subscriber fail to receive the Transcript October 5, they will understand the reason. We sent bills to all subscribers the first of the year, and those who have failed to settle should do so at once in order that there may be no interruption in the weekly visits of the Transcript to your homes. As soon as we can we will put the date of expiration on the label of your paper, so in the future you can see just how far your subscription is paid to. In the meantime, we ask all delinquents to remit at once. The shortage in news print paper is one of the reasons for the action of the War Board. SEND IN YOUR SUBSCRIPTION AT ONCE.

PRESIDENT WILSON has signed a proclamation prohibiting after October 1 the use of any foodstuffs in brewing beer and near beers except malt and hops. After December 1 brewers must cease brewing altogether. The Food administration says there will still be enough beer in the vats to last from two to six months and the sale of this will not be stopped.

UNDER THE STARS AND STRIPES

Private Hynson Loud, of Camp Meade, visited his parents in Kent County during the week-end.

Private Conlyn Noland, of Camp Meade, visited his family at Fairlee for the week-end. Mr. Noland is doing well at camp.

Sergeant Elmer Sterling, brother of Dr. A. L. Sterling, is now in France.

Messrs. Joseph Lambert and Eli Elliott, of Camp Meade, were home last Saturday.

Private Louis Sheats, of Camp [illegible]de, was home Saturday and Sun- and visited his parents in Church Hill.

Private Barber Bartley has written a number of his friends from Camp Meade the past week.

Lieut. A. Huey Malsberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Malsberger, of Massey, is now posted at Camp Fuller, Paoli, Pa.

Looking backward, we see that the Marne established the superiority of French military genius over German. The whole German plan of campaign was wrecked by Joffre at the Marne in 1914, by Petain at Verdun in 1916, by Foch at the second Marne in the present summer. These have been the three great crises of the Western front and thus of the war. Each time victory for Germany would have won the Continental phase of the war. But each time French military genius has risen to the highest level and the result has been German defeat. But in each case the exploitation of victory has waited upon the coming to France of sufficient numbers to supply the weight France could not furnish. Three times, however, the fate of the world has hung upon the issue of a clash between French and German military genius, and in each case the German has lost. Here is a final answer to the claim still advanced of the invincibility and the superlative ability of the German high command.

This letter comes from Capt. Earle Withgott, who is well known here. Mr. Withgott is right in the front. The letter follows:

Dear Friend:

Many times I have started to write you, but each time I would be interrupted until after dark, which seems to be about the only time I have for letter writing, and then by candlelight. We are occupying one of the front line sectors and holding our own fine. Naturally there have been some casualties, but very few, no more than expected.

As disbursing officer for the division I have been about France quite a good deal on business, including Paris, when the air raid was going on, delaying the train about nine hours to repair the tracks where a bomb dropped. No one minds that or anything else apparently. I see many air battles, but have not seen any fall. The roads are fine and the country beautiful, but that is about the limit. The climate is cold; even at this time of the year we wear sweaters, and often overcoats, so I guess this winter will make us sit up and take notice. Personally, I am feeling fine and enjoy it, but will be glad when the Boches are torn to pieces and we can come home again.

Everybody lives in billets, but move around so often and on very little notice. Wine, champagne, etc., are drank altogether in the place of water and just as much and lots more plentiful. I often think of all of you and wish you could be here.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Stafford received the following letter from their son, Dr. Olin B. Stafford, who is in France, this week:

Dear Mother and All:

Your letter received the other day. Also one Transcript also. We have been at war for nearly a year running straight across the page. I have already seen many changes. The other day we had an air battle between an American and German airplane. The latter was brought down. We have made many raids, but we are at present located in a fairly good size city. I don't know whether we will be here very long or not, but I surely do hope so. We are finding things much better than we looked for in every respect and are getting plenty to eat. All that we are short of is money. I am now sleeping in a house with French people. I regret very much that I was unable to be home to the Fair. Suppose you had a wonderful time. We are having a much easier time than we did at the training camp. I am delighted to be here. I suppose the people at home are very much interested in the war since the big drive is on. I have been many times within a mile of Germany. Our boys are now engaged at the front, but bileted back from the line. I am taking a day of rest today and suppose that I must be celebrating a French holiday as I am rather another fellow and am driving a Ford. I will have to close as it is near supper time.

Privates Leonard Leary, Frank Sewell and Roby Kelly spent the week-end at their homes at Rock Hall.

Private Rolph Townshend was the guest of his parents, S. P. Townshend, Esq., and wife several days this week.

Private Raymond Wilkins spent the week-end with friends in town.

Lieutenant Wilbur Ross Hubbard, who is stationed at Camp Jackson, S. C., is home on a ten days' leave. He has just been commissioned directly from the Yale Field Artillery Regiment Reserve Officers Training Corps. This is exceptional and shows the efficiency of the Yale Unit, because men are not usually commissioned in the Field Artillery except at the Officers Training School at Camp Zachery Taylor.

P. S. Will sell stock or anything else for you on commission.

TERMS.—CASH.

JOHN ANDERSON, Owner.

Padley and Racine, Auctioneers.

Farms Wanted.

Over 250 farm buyers have applied to me within two months in response to my extensive advertising. I am making many sales but need more Kent County farms, especially water-fronts, large and small, to meet actual demands. I can produce at least fifty buyers for suitable water-fronts.

REMEMBER—I CHARGE NO COMMISSION OR FEES FOR SELLING. Not one cent of expense to you for advertising, showing property or my services. No other farm agency affords such facilities and liberal terms.

Just notify me that you have a property to sell, state size, price, etc., and I will call promptly, inspect it, take pictures and arrange with you for selling it. This is the best season of the year, and quick action is to mutual advantage.
