Morgan College schedules second annual conference

The Division of the Humanities of Morgan State College will sponsor its second annual Faculty - Student Conference March 11 - 12.

The theme of this year's conference will be "The Languages of the Humanities."

This theme will be explored in many different ways and at many different levels in the opening meeting, at the four discussion meetings, to be devoted to architecture, music, sculpture, the theatre, and painting, and at the luncheon meeting.

Keynote speaker will be Professor Leo Spitzer, Professor Emeritus of romance philology at Johns Hopkins University and world - famous authority on stylistics, a discipline in which he is both pioneer and innovator.

Author of more than 18 books and countless articles in several different languages, Professor Spitzer provided a landmark in post - war criticism with his "Stylistics and Literary History."

He will speak March 11. 8 p.m. at the Morgan Christian Center.

THE LUNCHEON speaker will be Professor James A. Porter, chairman of the Department of Art at Howard University, well known as a painter and art - historian.

Professor Porter's writings on American, African, and Modern Art include his book, "Modern Negro Art," contributions to important reference works, and numberous articles.

The luncheon will be held March 12, 12:30 p.m. in the Memorial Refectory.

Other speakers will be: Miss Virginia Carty, dean of the Peabody Conservatory of Music with Mrs. Frances Hill of Morgan State College serving as discussion leader; R. H. Gardner, drama critic of the Baltimore Sun with Arthur Lamb of Morgan serving as discussion leader; Dano Jackley, associate Architect of Taylor and Fisher Architects, Robert Forth, artist and archeologist, also chairman of the Foundation Program of the Maryland Institute with Harry L. Jones of Morgan serving as discussion leader.

Mrs. B. C. Overton, painter and art teacher from Wilmington, Delaware with Jack Stephens, curator of education, the Baltimore Museum of Art, who will be the discussion leader.

EDMONDSON NOTES

Scholarship stressed at 3d honor assembly

By MAXINE A. JOHNSON

Today the guidance counselors of Edmondson sponored its third honor assembly of the school year. Participating in this assembly werg students ranging from the 9th to the 12th grades who have achieved honor standing in the past quarter.

Among these achieving excellence that is an average of 90 or more in all subjects, was Kathline Neal who served in the capacity of mistress of ceremonies. Kathline is a 9th grade student.

The assembly was highlighted by several speeches made by members of the guidance department, the English department, and by the principal. Remarks on the need for stressing scholarship were made by a member of the Public Education department.

Among students displaying the red and white ribbons throughout the building today were; Kathline, Vida Misiunus, Sarah Cousar, Donald Fischer, Carol Twilley, Susan Hamilie, Charlotte Gundersdorf, Barbara Tucker, Joseph Smith, Joyce Creamer, Betty Jean Cote, this writer and many, many others.

"EVERYBODY LIKES the cha-cha-cha" is the general opinion concerning Sam Cook's new record.

Seniors are being indicated these days by those "neat" white lab coats that they insist on wearing, regardless of whether they have lab day or not.

Eighth graders give program

Eighth grade students at Fairmount Hill Junior High School recently held its brotherhood program.

Guests speakers were the Rev. Vernon Dobson, assistant pastor of Union Baptist Church and director of Harvey Johnson Community Center, and Miss Priscilla Wells, students at Carver Vocational and Technical High.

Also, Barry Fell, student at Baltimore Polytechnic Institute, and David Applefield, student at Baltimore City College.

Other guests for the day included Bob Dum, a reporter for City College's Collegian and a representative from a national magazine.

SEVERAL MUSICAL selections were presented by the school chorus and glee club.

Eighth graders appearing on the program were Winfield Fobes, Joyce Forbes, Nancy Thomas, Audrey Norris and Sheila Flood. Mrs. Phyllis Thompson was program chairman.

Ruby Pennington served as reporter.

Parenthood agency still needs help

The Planned Parenthood Association of Baltimore is hopeful that belated response from persons contacted during the annual campaign in February will help toward the yet unrealized goal of $36,000.

Mrs. Anne G. Huppman, executive director, said the association is now, in its "clean-up phase" during which second contacts will be made with persons who have not yet responded to the February requests for support.

In 1956 the agency gave service to 2,638 of whom 677 were new patients. Last year these figures increased to 4,750 and 1,331 respectively.

Still further demands for services are expected by the association.

Mrs. Anne G. Huppman said it is also hoped a clinic can be established in the Dundalk-Turners Station area.

School No. 183 is burglarized

Northwestern Police reported that Junior High School No. 183, Lafayette and Carrollton Aves. was burglarized Wednesday night.

According to a police report, some unknown persons entered the school by cutting a piece of glass out of a side window, and made away with two portable record players, an adding machine, a radio, and a 35 mm camera, total value of about $396.

WOMEN'S WEEK speakers at Morgan State College, next week, will include Mrs. Mable Turner, left, U.S. Assistant Attorney in Philadelphia, on March 13th; and Dr. Deborah Partridge, professor of education at Queens College, Flushing, N.Y., on March 11th.

Brotherhood Week was memorable at School 103

Bertin Edmund, senior at Morgan College, and Miss Ruth Fegley, director of Fellowship House, helped to make Brotherhood Week a memorable one at Henry Highland Garnet School No. 103.

Mr. Edmund's charming personality captivated his audience so, that there is no doubt he left everyone with the warmest of feelings for his native country, Haiti.

With an intriguing accent, he described what life is like for Haitian boys and girls.

Miss Fegley brought some of the character dolls from the collection at Fellowship House to stress the contributions of such great people as Marian Anderson, world-renowned artist, Blessed Martin DePaur of South America, and Jane Addams, founder of Hull House in Chicago for the underprivileged of all races.

MRS. ESTELLE Hagan's second grade class completed a program of information, songs and dances of other countries with a class prepared meal of chile con carne and Hawaiian punch.

The sixth grade pupils of Mrs. Frances Wooten studied some of the countries of the United Nations and summarized their findings at a United Nations birthday party, where their artistic national flags substituted for candles in a huge cake.

Mrs. Reba Brailsford's fifth graders collected souvenirs of foreign countries from home and friends, displaying them in a colorful and informative exhibit for parents as well as pupils.

Other classes participated in making posters or designing bulletin boards on the theme: Brotherhood for Peace and Freedom.

Mrs. Lena K. Lee is principal of the school. Mrs. Catherine Greene, counselor, was chairman of the planning committee.

Winslow finds Wright 'aged in indignation'

Richard Wright's new novel, "The Long Dream," illustrates that the distinguished author of "Native Son," has "aged in indignation and developed a more penetrating satire than ever."

That's what Henry F. Winslow, English instructor at Morgan State College, writes in the current Crisis Magazine in his review of the book.

The book is based in part on the disastrous fire which occurred in a Natchez, Miss., dance hall in 1940.

It tells the story of the nightmare experiences of a middle-class undertaker and his sons in terms of a long dream.

In doing so, Mr. Winslow points out, it details the progress of a father-son relationship as determined by the racial culture pattern of the Deep South.

Gwynns Falls center sets dance March 14

McKeldin talks on Ver. XYZ-2

Call Vernon XYZ-2 and former Governor Theodore R. McKeldin will answer, was an announcement made last week.

Those who called the number listened to a 40 second political tape recording statement by the Governor.

The message was played back to callers over a 10-trunk line and for hours after the announcement was made, the telephone lines were still clogged with people who wanted to hear what Governor McKeldin had to say.

He told the AFRO that the idea was not new to him; that it had been employed successfully by Governor Rockefeller in New York.

League luncheon lives up to traditional style show

with Lula Jones Garrett

Traditionally, the Cooperative Women's Civic League has, along with its cultural contribution, tipped off the spring fashion display at its annual luncheon.

It's 35th annual event, Saturday, was completely in keeping with its usual high standard and a capacity crowd attended the ballroom with pretty hats, chic ensembles, flower-filled tables and corsage pinned diners.

In the cultural end, Miss Bertha McNeill, former Washington teacher and now on the staff of Howard University, and a top official in the Women's Freedom, was speaker.

Miss McNeill issued an eloquent plea for club women to devote more time to the sponsoring of better education for youth in America, and for peace throughout the world.

Her generalship was evidenced in the smooth running of the affair, from the food, which was both hot and tasty, to the posies provided at each place setting for the guests, while with the aid of Mrs. Bernard Harris, who had so efficiently run the recent flower show for the League.

Mrs. Vivian Bundy was in shades of purple for the occasion and one of the prettiest hats on the scene was the flower concoction worn by Mrs. Elizabeth Marshall.

The League's extensive program and year's achievements were in printed form, thus leaving the heavy thinking for home work, and the afternoon strictly to enjoyment.

Two lone males ventured to the affair . . . the Rev. Messrs. Spencer G. Dobson and James S. Williams, who provided the invocation and benedictions for the ladies, the latter including:

Mesdames Felicia E. Adams, Mildred Atkinson, Hazel F. Brown, Esther W. Bailey, Dennis Barrow, Vivian Bundy, Harrison Bryant, Veola Coleman, Phebola Carroll, Vivian E. Cook;

Mesdames Lena Dickerson, Hilda Dozier, Marguerite Dixon, Frederick Dedmond, Estella Dobson, Irene Epps, Viola Garnes;

Mesdames Bessie Henry, Martha Harvey, Henrietta Holliman, Juanita Hill, Blanch Lindsay, Nellie A. Moore, Elizabeth Marshall, Nellie H. Moore, Lillian Moore;

Mesdames Qumi Nance, Louise Perrin, Thomas Peay, Norman Pritchett, Vivian Pendleton, Mark Patterson, Georgine Rollins;

Mesdames Esther Roberts, Catherine Rogers, Inez Smith, Frances Smith, Gladys Shepherd, Mamie Stewart, Pearl Taylor, Malinda Wyatt, Pearl Williams, Russie Wonderlic, Violet H. Whyte;

Mesdames Verda Welcome, Beryl Williams, Sadie Johnson, Rose Jackson, Harriet Jones, Benjamin F. Jackson; and Misses Florence Purviance and Kate Sheppard.

POT-POURRI: The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Smith (the former Alma Jones of this town) formerly of St. James Protestant Episcopal Church and now of Chicago, expect their first heir in July.

And, in clerical circles, none are more happy than the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Baxter Matthews of Union Baptist Church, whose parishioners voted, Monday night, to purchase the lovely maison at 2085 Grantley Road as their future manse.

The Freddie Howards are others soon to have a new address . . . 2915 Boarman Avenue

The Rutgy Savings Bank is looking for Mrs. Louise Jones Keys, or relatives of Mrs. Keys. She formerly lived at 2512 Madison Avenue. Left an account at the bank which has gone unclaimed for much too long.

Baltimore, traditional city of joiners, will have a link in another national organization when the Holes move in the near future. Plans are being kept under wraps . . . but the Baltimore chapter has a set of mighty charming gals.

Drop a line of cheer to Eugene Mays, marriedlady who was rushed to Johns Hopkins Hospital, Monday . . . he is Catherine Mays's husband.

Add to your "don't-miss" list the Lawyers Wives "Fashions With a Flair" being presented on Sunday March 15 at the Carver Auditorium. You will not only see the fabulous New York designer and model Lois Bell, with her unusual creations, but there will be tips on the newest hair styles by Rose Davis and music by Rivers Chambers trio.
