the father's record.

The Grahams also have been a part of a previous Republican administration. Mr. Graham Sr. was comptroller under Mayor Broening, whose secretary at the time was Mr. McKeldin.

The Principal Candidates

These then are the principal candidates whose election the AFRO urges in Tuesday's balloting.

For Mayor, Theodore McKeldin.

For Council President, Philip Goodman.

For Comptroller, R. Walter Graham.

For Councilmen, 4th District

For Councilmen in the Fourth District: Cole, Dixon and Alpert. Harry Cole is a former state senator with a brilliant record.

Walter Dixon and Max Alpert are incumbent council members seeking reelection.

The council at present is all Democratic.

The election of Mr. Cole will insure the presence of a Republican in that body for the first time in many years. The council will function the better if its membership embraces both parties.

Mr. Jack Pollack

He is political boss in the 4th District.

Both Mr. Grady and Mr. McKeldin have disavowed any alliance with him.

This can be a thinking man's election with a voting man's taste.

If 80% of the 31,000 colored persons registered in the 4th District vote their convictions Tuesday, it will make very little difference whom Mr. Pollack supports.

On the election day that voters think for themselves, they become their own bosses.

Our Voting Assets

Here is a table which shows the registration of colored voters in the city's six Councilmanic Districts, the percentage of the total vote that is colored, and the highest vote given any candidate in the 1955 councilmanic election:

District	Colored Registered	Percent of Total	Councilmanic Election Top Vote in 1955
1	2,834	7%	18,154
2	13,704	38%	10,886
3	13,908	10%	39,014
4	31,301	57%	15,779
5	28,704	26%	32,783
6	14,002	26%	15,258

In the last Councilmanic election Joseph Curran defeated Republican Margaret Sparrow by 633 votes in the 3rd District.

In the 1954 election for members of the Legislature, Fourth District's Harry Cole defeated Bernard Melnicove by 37 votes.

Republican Emory Cole was only 176 votes ahead of Democrat Milton H. Saul.

Therefore let no AFRO reader say his ballot is not important.

An election can be safely won by one vote and that one vote can be yours.

The Two Dixons In The Race

In the election for members of the legislature last year there were two Coles—Harry Cole, State Senator, and Emory Cole, member of the House of Delegates.

In next Tuesday's election two Dixons are candidates for City Council in the Fourth District.

One is Walter Dixon, Democrat incumbent councilman, who heads the Cortez Peters Business School.

The other is Howard D. Dixon, Republican, who is connected with several successful business enterprises on Pennsylvania Avenue.

There is bound to be some confusion in the minds of the voters.

Mr. Howard D. Dixon probably fervently hopes that it will be to his advantage.

However, it may well be the other way around.

Mr. Earl Koger

Despite the fact that the big 5th District (29,000) has nearly as many colored registered voters as the 4th (31,000), the bosses have never nominated a colored candidate for office.

Earl Koger, insurance broker and civic worker in many good causes, proposes to change that.

The total registered in the 5th District is 110,000.

Strong support of Mr. Koger, an independent, could change the minds of the bosses on this subject.

Four years ago Leon A. Rubenstein won a seat in the City Council from this 5th District, polling 28,232 votes.

Today the registered colored voters in this 5th District is 28,704.

So it makes sense that candidates like personable Earl Koger should offer themselves for office in every election.

Knox, Brown and Patterson

In the Sixth District Augustus Knox, Mrs. Mary Thelma Brown and Mrs. Eleanor Patterson constitute the Republican ticket.

No women at present serve in the City Council.

All three of these candidates are well known in their community and they deserve a vote of confidence.

Fourth District Registration

	Democrat
Colored 18,790		White 18,629
	Republican
Colored 11,905		White 3,886
	Declined
Colored 608		White 579

Total registered voters in the 4th District is 54,395

Total colored voters 31,301. Total white voters 23,094.

These figures have been furnished by the office of the Supervisors of Elections.

A law sponsored by State Senator J. Alvin Jones, a Pollack supporter, would make it a criminal offense for the Supervisors of Elections or any of his employees to release such figures as these to the public after June 1st.

The Pollack organization does not like these figures which show the potential of an organized opposition.

For example, these figures show that for the first time colored Democrats in Mr. Pollack's own bailiwick outnumber the white.

The Jones Bill was passed by the legislature and was given a hearing before Governor Tawes on Thursday.

Mr. Jones' law would make it possible for the Supervisors of Elections to keep registration figures by race and to make them public only to agencies of the state.

During the recent registration drive in which churches and the NAACP registered 25,000 new voters, Supervisors of Elections made available to the NAACP and the press daily registration results.

The Jones law would prohibit that also.

Baltimore City daily and weekly newspapers opposed the Jones Law before Governor Tawes as a violation of the public's right to know and a denial of the freedom of newspapers to have access to and publish public records.

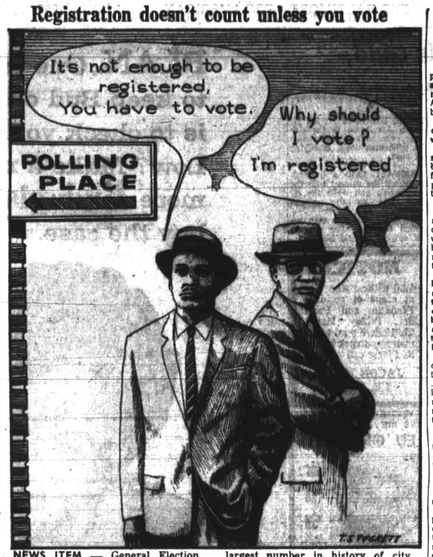
The Jones law is a thoroughly bad measure so Governor Tawes vetoed it Thursday.

Its effect would have been to put a muzzle on the press as big as the Maryland Penitentiary.

No member of the Maryland Legislature has attempted to gag newspapers in that manner for a long time.

We are glad to say this attempt did not succeed.

Registration doesn't count unless you vote



NEWS ITEM — General Election, Tuesday, May 5, 1959. Polls open 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. Unprecedented 104,453 colored citizens eligible to vote, largest number in history of city. 31,301 voters in 4th District represent 57 per cent of registered voters, largest in history.

Leave the date on

Before the City Council is an ordinance (No. 2813) which would eliminate the day of the week from milk bottle caps.

Proponents of the measure argue that the dating requirement is 42 years old, and outmoded. They say modern sanitation and refrigeration controls make such dating unnecessary.

But, the City Health Department, through Dr. Huntington Williams, Commissioner of Health, opposes the ordinance on the grounds that adequate public health protection requires dating of milk so purchasers will know milk is legally sold within the 36 hours after pasteurization and is safe and fresh for use in infant feeding.

Periodically, when a proposal to abandon the date on milk bottles comes up, health officials and pediatricians agree that the public must have protection against the illegal sale of outdated milk which is a health hazard.

We agree with these experts who argue further that the milk consumer has the right to know the age of the milk he buys, and not be stuck with older milk which could be dangerous.

For these reasons, we hope the Council will not approve Ordinance No. 2813. Let the date stay on the milk bottles.

Northwood and NAACP

LAST WEEK the City Council heeded the wishes of residents in the vicinity of the Northwood Shopping Center.

They defeated a measure which would cut away 125 feet of a 150-foot grass strip on Loch Raven Blvd. to permit parking of 100 cars.

THIS WEEK, the Council, without explanation, did an about-face and approved the proposal 13-7.

Residents, who opposed the measure, caught off guard, were absent.

It looks like the Northwood residents should join the NAACP, which for years has successfully fought spot zoning changes like this.

Just last week the NAACP won a two-year spot zoning fight.

Judge Joseph L. Carter declared illegal a 1957 City Council Ordinance authorizing a mattress factory in the 500 block of Laurens Street, a residential area.

Judge Carter ruled in this case that such spot zoning would "indicate a lack of accord and harmony with the comprehensive zoning plan and tend to result in very piecemeal and haphazard development which zoning is supposed to prevent."

Residents in the Northwood Shopping Center would do well to team up with the NAACP in all fights to improve the zoning mess.

Keep bath houses

Dear AFRO:

Once more it appears that the Public Baths are open for criticism and possibly for elimination.

Since I am the sole office force, keeping all the records, etc., I feel that in this capacity I may be best suited to bring out a number of points to both the candidates and the public as a whole.

The remark has been made that the baths have become obsolete.

I would like to point out the fact that a couple of thousand more bathers used the baths [illegible] of 1959 than during the same length of time in 1958.

Does this seem as though the baths have outlived their usefulness?

We maintain a central laundry where all the towels for the schools are laundered, bagged and delivered to the schools. We used over 3,000,000 towels last year.

A year ago, we contacted a number of laundries and also the Penitentiary to see how cheaply they could launder the towels. The Penitentiary was the lowest priced, which was three cents a pound.

Two towels damp, as they come from the schools, weigh exactly one pound. This would mean it would cost the city over $45,000 for the laundering of the towels.

The yearly saving on this one item alone, through the efforts of the Public Bath Commission, is $20,000.

The people in our bathhouses, when they are not busy with regular bathhouse duties, mend the towels, cut the towels up and hem them for wash clothes, take the better part of two worn towels to make one good towel.

The remark has been made numerous times about closing the public baths in order to lessen the burden on the taxpayer. I would like to know if there is any one who would consider less than one-fifth-of-a-cent on the tax dollar to be a burden?

It must be understood that the $315,000 as quoted in the Appropriation Request for 1959 is not the amount used by the public baths in order to maintain their six bathhouses.

This amount includes the attendants at 41 schools, the Central Laundry, Chick Webb Recreational Center, plus our baths.

Therefore, the saving, if any, would be nominal; for we know for a fact that the attendants for the baths and the schools can be run at a much lower price together than if they were separated and the schools were to take over our attendants.

A mistaken concept that has been brought forth a number of times is that the school janitors could take care of the showers.

In the first place, the janitors have as much work as they can capably perform without taking on extra.

Our bath attendants mop the showers after each class has bathed, gather the towels into laundry bags to go to the laundry, and in general have supervision over the shower room.

Next, what is to happen to our bath attendants? Most of these attendants have been with the city over 20 years, a few more than 40 years.

After dedicating the better part of their lives to the health and welfare of Baltimore, are these people to be turned out to go on relief and become "charity" victims?

What is to be done with the number of people who still actually need the baths? There were over 100,000 patrons who used the baths during 1958.

Are we going to take away from these people their only means of maintaining cleanliness? It has been stated that, according to law, each dwelling place has to have a tub.

It is a known fact that there are many, many places where the law has not been fulfilled. The law does not require that the bathroom be heated, that the water be hot, that the tub be kept clean, that diseased people not be allowed to use the same tub as others.

In my honest opinion the baths still play a vital part in the health and welfare of the City of Baltimore.

THE AFRO'S CREDO

A newspaper succeeds because its management believes in itself, in God and in the present generation. It must always ask itself —

Whether it has kept the faith with the common people;

Whether it has set other good except to see that their liberties are preserved and their future assured;

Whether it is fighting to get rids of slums, to provide jobs for everybody;

Whether it stays out of politics except to expose corruption and overthrow injustice, vote prejudice or compromise.

—JOHN MURPHY, SR., 1920

Sightseeing

By JAMES D. WILLIAMS

In conversation with a compatriot several late evenings ago he let drop an idea that might well revolutionize the American way of life, sans bloodshed.

His gem, and I'll give him credit, it was a dilly, is to invent instant liquor.

Visionary that he is, he foresees the day when industry will be able to remove all the liquid from the hard stuff and compress what remains into a pill the size of an aspirin tablet.

* * *

EACH PILL will be equal to a single shot and the pills will come in different flavors. There will be scotch, bourbon, vodka, brandy, and for those who just must do things the hard way there will also be wine—ugh.

The beautiful part of this idea is that it will enable a drinking man, notice I said drinking not thinking, to carry around his daily ration without any telltale bulges in his pockets to give away the not so secret secret that he is a plain out and out lush.

Why the inherent possibilities of this idea are so enormous that they make the head spin . . . Just imagine a guy showing up for work one early morning needing a little pick-me-up to help get him through the day.

* * *

INSTEAD of suffering through the rest of the day he can reach into his pocket and take out his little tin of pills and pop one into his mouth.

If he prefers he can dissolve it in water, but if he's in a hurry he can take it straight.

I can just imagine some employer going slowly out of his ever loving mind trying to determine how his employees can stay charged all the time with never a bottle in sight.

To one of his employees he might well say:

"John, please don't think I'm suspicious but I couldn't help but notice that you have been acting a little strange this morning. Instead of signing your names to the letters your secretary typed, you wrote your name across her forehead and tried to put a stamp on her.

"Tell me frankly John, have you been drinking?"

* * *

POOR JOHN, who by this time of day is working on his second tin of pills, gets a sad, hurt look on his face.

"I don't see how you can say such a thing to me. I'm a very sick man and all I've been doing today is taking my pills.

You should be ashamed of yourself."

If John plays his cards right he can make his boss feel like such a louse that he'll probably give him a raise.

* * *

THEN THINK of the poor fellow who goes into an expensive night club where the drinks start at $2 a throw.

Equipped with the pills he can order a beer, sit there and watch the show while he chews his pills and gets loaded as the owner of the place, with one eye on the cash register, wonders what in the world are they putting in beer these days.

As I said, the possibilities are unlimited. . . Now if somebody could just invent instant water for a chaser, we would really have something.

I wonder just how long it will take the government to pay for those windows that jet planes smashed Wednesday night when it broke the sound barrier?

Never saw or heard so much confusion in all my life after that jet jockey pulled his caper. He threw the town into a panic.

Called a hospital to ask if anyone had been injured. They wanted to know what happened?"

No matter how lucky you are your luck is bound to run out sooner or later.

It took 18 years for the luck of an elderly engineer to run out but it did just that this week.

A traffic officer stopped the engineer for the first time in his life Tuesday and that's when he admitted that he had been driving for 18 years without a license.

* * *

I THOUGHT I HAD heard almost everything but around the Northeastern District station house the other day they were telling a new one.

After chasing a suspect all over the neighborhood an officer finally caught his man sneaking through the window of a home on Broadway.

When the lawman asked the young fellow where he was going and why he was crawling through a window he got this answer: "I'm going after a loaf of bread. I always leave the house this way."

People, places and things...

Say a prayer for Lewis S. Cooper (Clifton Ave.) the Hendler Ice Cream Co. salesman.

He was in Provident for three weeks, left the hospital Saturday and was back in Hopkins on Wednesday. Underwent an operation Thursday morning to remove a cancerous growth on the lung.

He died this morning (Friday).

* * *

Doing nicely at Provident is Mrs. Monterey Clay, the teacher.

Admitted to the hospital on Wednesday was 18 - month-old Richard Montgomery Jr., son of the physician and Mrs. Montgomery. He entered with a 105 temperature, but is better now.

Send get - well cards to: Mrs. Carrie Washington, Gloucester, Va. resident, who is 76. She entered Provident for surgery on Wednesday.

Also in Provident: 77-year-old Frill Cornett, 535 Wilson St.

* * *

Pleasant, new resident of our town met last week: Mrs. Robert Phillips (Joan), wife of the Edmondson Ave. dentist.

Two-year-old twins Robert Jr. and Stephanie, make up the rest of the family. They reside on Winters Lane in Catonsville.

Mrs. Phillips is the former Joan Hickman of Montclair, N.J. Like her husband, she is a graduate of the Jersey City Medical Center.

When they settled here in Baltimore four years ago, Mrs. Phillips was a staff nurse at Provident Hospital. Of course, with the twins, she has given up her post as her housewife duties keep her busy.

* * *

In Criminal Court on Wednesday morning, Northwestern Patrolman Willie McCray received orchids galore from Judge Edwin Harlan for his investigation of the robbing and robbery of Edward Kline some time last month.

Within 15 minutes after the incident, an arrest was made, and Mr. King's 25 - year-service watch (from Baltimore Copper Works) was recovered.

Judge Harlan praised Officer McCray, then sentenced Leesie E. Davis to four years for the robbery.

* * *

Speaking of Officer McCray, am reminded that he and his wife, Helen, now have 3 children. (Remember their first infant was born after 18 years of marriage?)

The family first came to the AFRO's attention back in 1954 when their first baby, Willie Jr., now 5, won the $300 first prize in the AFRO - Carnation Milk healthy baby contest.

Since then, there have come two other children. James is 2 and the first girl, Alice, is seven months old.

* * *

All right, here is your chance — if you've been one of those who has said, 'why don't people do something to help themselves instead of asking others to help, them,' you'll want to support this endeavor:

Provident Hospital staff members, under the direction of Dr. Biffie Ellis, are planning a gigantic benefit concert which they hope will realize the $7,000 needed to purchase the cardiac monitor, a machine the hospital badly needs to help heart patients.

The benefit is the concert by Daniel Comegys on May 8 at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Eastern High School. All tickets, save a few student tickets, are $5 each!

Now that's not too much to give to help such a worthy project as this. . . here's a chance to help people who are determined to help themselves.

Get your ticket today, sure!

* * *

Speaking of Provident. . . the second annual W. Berkley Butler Memorial lecture, to honor the physician who served the hospital and community so well, is also set for May 8 at 3 p.m. in the hospital annex.

Speaker will be Dr. Allan Gutscheer, formerly of this city, now obstetrician and gynecology chief at N.Y.'s Sinai Hospital.

Topic: Newer methods of conception control.

* * *

Thanks to Henry Hornstein of the Regent Theatre, the Crownsville State Hospital Women's Auxiliary will hold a midnight theatre benefit after all.

It is set for May 22 at the Regent, of course. Proceeds will be used to purchase television sets so badly needed for mentally ill patients at the hospital.

Get your ducks in a row now, and be prepared to support this worthy effort. Mrs. Simon Carter is Auxiliary president.

Mrs. Antoinette (Netta) Clarke Allen, 1519 Druid Hill Ave., the longtime teacher who died on Monday evening, will be cremated following funeral services today.

She is the aunt of R. Clarke Davis, housing exec, and the widow of Frederick D. Allen.

* * *

Before she went off to Hopkins Hospital two weeks ago, for an exploratory operation, Mrs. Sadie Bryant, the friendly Dunbar High teacher, made arrangements for her own funeral just in case anything happens.

After her death on Monday morning (it was cancer), the letter was opened. It detailed time of funeral (it was 3 p.m. Thursday), and gave other instructions for the rites in line with her wish that things 'be done right and well.'

A close friend, Mrs. May Adams best describes Mrs. Bryant: "She was a wonderful person, a loyal friend. One who gathered friends, not for who they were, but for what they were. I will truly miss her."

* * *

Some idea of the panic which can grip a city was gleaned on Wednesday evening between 8:30 and 9:30, when residents in all sections of the city reported hearing a mysterious blast.

Their houses shook, windows were shattered, doors banged. We here on the city desk received 100 calls in the one-hour period.

Many of the callers were panic - stricken. One Monastery Ave. mother, alone with four children, sounded as though she would faint any minute.

When the reporter advised that the nearest we could gather was that a jet plane had broken the sound barrier, she heaved a sigh of relief.

'Thank God, thank God,' she repeated over and over. The Fire Department laughed when we called to ask what was what.

Said the Fire Department spokesman: 'We've received 5,000 calls. We have no idea what the noise was all about."

Fire early Thursday morning at 802 W. North Ave. (near Linden) destroyed the Thrift Shop operated by the National Council of Jewish Women, and routed two families living on upper floors.

The organization uses income from the shop to support its community services.

Mrs. Alan Wolfe, a member of the group, says a fire sale will be held shortly, and the group will try to locate new quarters to carry on this vital program.

$18 million school loan on ballot

Accommodations for 20,000 public school pupils are at stake in the $18 million school loan question to be submitted to the voters at the May 5 municipal election.

The Department of Education is distributing to the homes of some 163,000 pupils a brochure which gives the facts about the school construction loan.

The brochure avoids telling the voters how they should vote, but points out that the school building program cannot be continued unless the loan is approved.

Approval of the $18 million loan by the voters would enable the department to proceed with construction of nine new buildings accommodating approximately 9,120 pupils in nearly 300 classrooms, the acquisition of sites for new schools, and advanced planning for the next schools to be built, according to Dr. John H. Fischer, superintendent of Schools.

The nine new school buildings to be placed under contract in 1960 are:

Park Heights High School
Northern Parkway High School
Collington Square Elementary School
Johnson Square Elementary School
Lafayette and Whitmore Ave. Elementary School
Belmont Elementary School
Lexington Terrace Elementary School
Commodore John Rodgers Elementary School Addition
Ten Hills Junior High School

COMPARED TO a school enrollment of 105,000 pupils in 1945, enrollment totaled 163,535 pupils in October, 1958, and is expected to reach 183,230 pupils by 1963, or a 20,000 pupil increase in the next five years.

School buildings to be constructed from loan funds would help to eliminate the part-timeness in elementary schools.

In February, there were 10,709 pupils in 36 elementary schools attending school part-time.

Commenting on the overtime schedules, Dr. Fischer stated that every pupil receives a full schedule of classes but the boys and girls involved are often kept from holding part-time jobs and frequently cannot take part in extra curricular activities. Facilities are definitely inconvenienced, he added.

Dr. Fischer also stressed that while enrollment has been rising in both elementary and secondary schools, past increases have been proportionately greater in the elementary schools.

Now a larger share of the increase is occurring in the secondary schools.

This Thomas Cook very much alive

Thomas Grafton Cook, 1406 Druid Hill Ave., advised the AFRO this week that the readers of the AFRO have been led to believe that Thomas G. Cook in memorial inserted in last week's edition referred to him.

Mr. Cook, who is a government worker, told the AFRO obviously the advertisement refers to another person, and expressed the theory that someone is playing a prank.

He said the in memorial advertisement gave the name of Mrs. Edith T. Cook, the owner as his mother's. In addition, he reported that $12.50 worth of roses had been sent to his home C.O.D., as well as a 50-pound package of ice cubes.

He said he has complained to the police also about anonymous telephone calls at all hours of the night.
