Stewart Smith takes honors on ROTC Day

with Lula Jones Garrett

If there are parents more proud than Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Smith (he's the musician) this week, you'll have to search for them.

Their bright young man, Stewart Edward Smith, Straight-A chemistry major at Howard, walked off with so many honors on ROTC Day at the Washington University that he kept them practically pinned to the edge of their seats.

He had evidently said "Want to come over to ROTC Day, Mom? I may get an award." And then he walked off with four: the first for leadership, a second as outstanding cadet in the Junior Class; third, the Defender metal for achievement; and fourth, having his name placed on the plaque for academic and ROTC standings.

He was one of three, out of the 780, holding the highest awards.

IN FACT, the week-end [illegible] full of delightful intervals. One of the best was the beautiful singing of a very young soloist, Miss Margaret Linsey, and that of a more experienced one, Miss Rosalind Gatlin, at the afternoon with the Rector's Guild of St. James P. E. Church, Sunday.

Mrs. Evelyn Linsey was accompanist for her daughter, and St. James' choir master, William Parrott, accompanied Miss Gatlin.

Piece de resistance, of course, was the address by Victor Okwusa, of Nigeria; who told the group that his country has no intention of being disuaded from its push towards freedom.

Chief handicap, said he, is Nigeria's heritage from foreign rule, under which its populace has not been trained. Nigeria's strength lies in its women and the Church, said the speaker, adding that the women are not traders, hold the purse strings.

There was, in addition, a movie, and a display of objects of art from the collections of Mesdames Virginia P. Jones, Eliza Carpenter and Naomi Speede.

Mrs. Speede (who had on the prettiest of pink hats . . . chiefly a side - swung wide hand which was posied) presided. Mrs. Jones was chairman of the affair. At the close, the ladies of the Guild served. Miss Beecher Grinage is warden.

FROM THERE on to dinner with Chi Phi Sigma Fraternity (Alpha chapter) which was entertaining wives.

The party was small and intimate and beautifully staged in the Carrel Room at Wilson's, where their U-shaped table was filled with flowers and, of course, ended in being laden with food.

The only "unattached" ladies were Mrs. Catherine R. Byrd, guest of William H. Nelson Jr., and Miss M. Margaret Johnson, guest of William W. Freeman.

Chi Phi Sigma men and their wives present were Messrs. and Mesdames Aaron Ellis, Raymond Ayers, Clarence P. Briscoe, Wallace E. Blackwell, William S. Lyles;

Messrs. and Mesdames Alonzo White, C. Avon Wright, Jesse P. Peaker, Albert B. Brooks, Leonard W. Thompson, Carlton A. Brewer and James Barnet.

The feminine guests added no small bit to the beauty of the affair. Mrs. Briscoe had on a most entrancing hat above her soft print frock. High standing, of white petals, there were tiny green leaves at intervals to relieve the single color.

Mrs. Blackwell selected a green eyelet embroidery frock, added a dash of color with a coral hat. Mrs. Barnes was a monotone in yellows . . . the prettiest of print frocks, a yellow straw hat.

And Mrs. Brooks skipped the headwear, was charming in deep electric blue print. Petite Mrs. White chose a beige silk suit and Mrs. Thompson, a chic navy frock with the new note, a big white collar.

Mrs. Byrd was another in popular eyelet . . . her frock being in beige. Mrs. Lyle's dress was intricately tucked pale blue nylon; and Mrs. Blackwell, classic in chic black with pearls. A rose - colored flowered frock and matching hat was selected by Mrs. Wright, and Mrs. Peaker wore black satin, with a smart white hat.

Mr. Brooks filled us in on the fraternity. The group is a business organization with aims, at this point, towards opening job opportunities as well as keeping on file opportunities already open.

THE BALTIMORE CARDIGANS were very lavishly entertained by member, Beulah Wescott, of Elsinore Avenue at her gorgeous home last Friday.

After a business session which finalized their plans for their usual spring cabaret party to be held at Unity Hall this month, the girls retired to the dining room, to find themselves facing a beautiful smorgasbord, almost too pretty to eat.

Casting aside their concern for figure, however, they partook heartily of shrimp salad, turkey salad, smoked fish, ripe black olives, green olives and numerous other delectables. A fine evening was spent in sipping, eating and chatting about their forthcoming party (which by the way is complimentary, so if you find an invite in your box, you're pretty lucky!)

Baltimore Cardigans are Willie Cade, Ruth Tonkins, Gloria Sims, Janie Wright, Harriette Morton, Beulah Wescott, Margaret Peck, Elizabeth Butler, Bernice Hall, Bernice White, Vera Fry, Mary Williams, Vera Taylor, Myrtle Smith, Mary Stanley and Jimmy Clay.

MEMBERS OF the Pitch and Putt Golf Club, now in the midst of their Round Robin tournament, took time out for the monthly meeting, Saturday night.

The session was in the home of Lindora Houston, with Rosalie Hunt sharing the hostess duties with Mrs. Houston.

And when the business portion was over, the golfers turned their talents to pinochle . . . ending up with Lucille Monroe, Marie Murphy, Mildred Carter and Wahseela Jackson taking home prizes. Lucille took two, adding the door prize to her loot. Also playing were Minnie Davis, Madeline Davis, Morphelia Winston and Alma Arvin.

The June session will be hosted by Lavadia Johnson and Wahseela Jackson in the home of Mrs. Jackson.

BLANCHE HUBBARD, who was formerly on the staff of Provident Hospital, here, and is now a lab technician at College Hospital, Brooklyn, N.Y., was the raison d'etre for two elegant parties here the past week end.

Miss Hubbard is to be married to George Callander, New York public accountant, on June 13th.

Bernadine Harrison and Elise Clarke had a shower for the bride - elect at Bernadine's home on Saturday.

Coming to the affair and fetching a luscious array of miscellaneous gifts were Audrey Brooks, Frances Wood, Esther Harcum, Juanita Harris, Elaine Jackson;

Also Rebecca Griggs, Mae Chamberlain, Anita Harris, Phyllis Diggs, Nicki Randolph, Mildred King, Ethel Hunter, and Mary Harris.

Morgan Deltas hold May Week

Alpha Gamma, the Morgan State College campus chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, ended their annual celebration of May Week with a cabaret party and talent show and the crowning of their "Brother of the Year," John Q. A. Webb of Omega Si Phi Fraternity.

The party was held in the Christian Center on Saturday evening and climaxed a series of activities. On Monday the sorors held a fashion show in the Student Union Lounge, at which time they showed their own clothes.

ON TUESDAY an inspirational hour, words and music, was held in the Student Union Lounge, and the following afternoon, at crowning ceremonies, Miss Hope Gray became "Miss Delta, of '59." in the patio of Calloway Hall. A swimming party and Red Cross safety demonstration was held on the Hurt Gym on Wednesday.

Chapter members went to Crowdsville State Hospital to serve as recreation helpers on Thursday, and a panel discussion was held on Friday.

"Job Opportunities for Today's College Graduate" was the topic discussed by a panel which included Dr. Gill, Dr. Burke, Miss Brown and Dr. Newton.

THE SERIES of affairs began on the previous Sunday, when the Deltas attended services at Morgan Christian Center, served as ushers, provided flowers and participated in the program.

Sunday afternoon's activities also included the second annual Mother-Daughter banquet which was held at the Memorial Refectory.

Mrs. Thelma Cox, advisor to the chapter, was honored as chapter Mother and presented with a corsage and a gift inscribed with the sorority's symbols. Two house mothers at the campus, Mrs. Sarah Diggs and Mrs. Alyce Young, were also honored.

Sorors attending were:

Hope Gray, chairman of the banquet; Shirly Beard, May Week chairman; Constance Hazzard, president of the chapter; Barbara Moore, Anita Stewart, Barbara Montgomery, Doris Wooten, Elouise Tyson, Nancy Burke, Delois Barnes, Portia Boston, Betty Jones, Barbara Randall, Patricia Winston, Barbara Solomon.

McLemore-Stuckey July rites will unite two noted families

Mr. and Mrs. John W. White Jr., 2301 Braddish Ave., announce the coming July wedding of their daughter, Miss Jean McLemore, to Sterling Stuckey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Stuckey of Chicago, Ill.

The vows will be said in a single ring ceremony at the Morgan State College Christian Center Chapel on July 11 with the Rev. Robert Newbold officiating. A reception will follow.

MISS McLEMORE is a teacher at the Fairmount Hill Junior High School and is the granddaughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Julian of this city and formerly of Greencastle, Ind. Her grandfather was the late James Julian Sr.

Her mother is Mrs. Elizabeth Julian White, a Douglass High School teacher.

Miss McLemore is also the niece of the famed scientist, Dr. Percy Julian of Chicago and Guatemala and of Drs. Emerson and James Julian, Baltimore physicians.

Her aunt, Mrs. Mattie Julian Brown is the former director of the education division of the New York YWCA and the wife of the noted City College professor of sociology, Warren Brown.

A MEMBER of the Alpah Kappa Alpha sorority, Miss McLemore is a graduate of Rochester University, Rochester, N.Y. in Romance Languages in the class of 1954.

Mr. Stuckey is the grandnephew of Mrs. Vivian Cook, Baltimore retired educator, and a graduate of Northwestern University in political science.

Mr. Stuckey is a Chicago public school teacher.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams honor three at dinner

The entrancing music of the Rivers Chambers Combo invaded the Patterson Room of Wilson's Restaurant, Sunday, afternoon.

Fifty - odd chic guests sipped cocktails from an installed and serviced bar as they awaited signal from the hosts to be seated at the flower decorated, candle lit tables.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland (Anethia Barksdale) Williams were entertaining at a Mother's Day dinner. Honorees were Mrs. M. L. Barksdale (natural); Mrs. J. Logan Jenkins (foster); and Mrs. L. Mark Patterson (adoptive) mothers.

Mrs. Williams, attractive in a black and white ensemble, her frock of silk print, the empire waist line emphasized with a high cummerbund of black silk, and the black repeated in a harem panel that began at the low neckline at back. Her hat was a pert semi - sailor banded in tiny white flowers.

SHE WAS assisted by a bevy of hostesses, identified by corsages of carnation and including Mrs. Marcia Mills, Mrs. Bernice Robinson, Miss Betty Williams, Mrs. Betty Bundara, Mrs. Evelyn Barksdale, Miss Venis Williams and Mrs. Nicki Randolph.

Mrs. Mills, pretty in black starched chiffon with the new high white collar, received the honorees and pinned orchids on them. And the other hostesses served in capacities that included presenting gift to Mrs. Pauline Watte, who is godmother to the Williamses' son, Ronnie, to assisting with the program that enlivened a period between dinner and dessert. In placing about the throats of the "mothers" lovely necklaces, gifts from the hostess.

ITEMS ON the program included a poem read to the honorees by Mrs. Williams, an instrumental solo played by Mrs. Sinclair Swan, and music by the Dunbar High School Choral Group, underdirection of Miss Vernon Williams, chairman of the music department of that school. Soloist for the group was Miss Sandra Harris. James Smith, violinist, played a number, and throughout the evening The Chambers musicians serenaded honorees and guests from various sections of the room.

For her daughter's party, Mrs. Barksdale selected a crown of maize lace and tiny [illegible] was black and white print, and Mrs. Patterson wore sheer blue wool.

THE PARTY was a very high dress affair. One of the most eye - catching ensembles was worn by Mrs. Raymond Hunt . . . a deep blue silk with white coin dots, a turban of the same material, three white roses enhancing the side front. Mrs. Jimmie LaForest wore one of the ultra new designs . . . a black frock with intricately draped bodice and knee-length peplum. A wide brimmed, flower trimmed hat completed her costume. Mrs. Martin Rodney selected heavy white lace, with a portrait neckline, and Mrs. Earl Bundara, an ensemble in yellow silk from head to heel.

MRS. WILLIAM WATTS, who accidentally celebrated a birthday on Monday, received a special ovation in song, was crowned in soft blue satin, with an especially pleasing crossed band neckline, and close fitting feather hat in matching colors.

Guest at the dinner included:

Messrs. and Mesdames Lloyd Randolph, Sinclair Swan, Lloyd Randolph, Robert Diggs, Benjamin Barksdale, Powell Sheffey, Irvin Williams;

Messrs. and Mesdames William Lewis, Charles Lightfoot; Drs. and Mesdames Martin Rodney, Edward McDaniels, Bernard Christmas;
