Origin of Spanish Influenza

It is no uncommon thing these days in Chestertown to hear the remark that Germany started the epidemic of influenza in this country. Read what the government says about it:

Is this new disease, which has already killed hundreds and stricken thousands of our soldiers and civilians, a new German war offensive? If not, how did it happen that this epidemic appeared so suddenly and extensively in such widely scattered cities and army camps throughout the country?

Smitten as from a bolt from a clear sky thousands of Americans have been suddenly prostrated in many widely separated parts of the country, during the past three weeks, by a disease which is called, apparently for want of a better name, "Spanish Influenza." Naturally, under all the circumstances, there is much speculation regarding the matter. Perhaps because there seems to be a rather natural disposition to ascribe about everything that is perfidious in the world today to Germany, some have ventured the guess that the disease may have been introduced and spread by German agents. This theory, however, is generally considered as being not only entirely groundless, but really absurd, for it seems hardly conceivable that, if Germany undertook an offensive of this kind, she would not choose such a mild and humane sore of disease. A much more plausible explanation would seem to be the simple fact that the recent cold snap caught the country entirely unprepared for such severe weather and, as a result of our unheated dwellings and other buildings and the inadequate clothing that was being worn, large numbers of people in different sections of the country contracted colds, which developed in many cases into pneumonia and resulted in an unusual number of deaths.

Almost always at this season of the year colds are frequent and they often result fatally; and it may well be that, but for the high tension of these strenuous war times, this epidemic would not have attracted unusual attention. In any event there seems to be no occasion for special alarm or panic about the matter, for the disease is evidently one which the American medical profession is perfectly able to handle and, moreover, effective measures are being taken, wherever it appears, to check it and destroy its power. It is important, however, at all times—and certainly no less important now—for each individual to secure prompt medical attention for all cases of so-called "cold" or "grippe." This is necessary for the conservation of the health of the community as well as the welfare of the individual.

The Red Cross At The Front

American army officers suffering from arm and leg wounds, who might have remained cripples all their lives will regain the use of their damaged limbs as a result of the arrangements that have been made for their prompt treatment at the two orthopedic hospitals established by the American Red Cross in London. In this respect Uncle Sam's fighting men are to benefit by knowledge dearly bought by England and France, the war having taught surgeons that orthopedic treatment should not be delayed.

Great things in the way of restoring the use of arms and legs to wounded soldiers are being done at St. Katharine's Lodge and Baroda House, the Red Cross institutions, which were formerly the homes of two Americans who turned them over for this splendid work and who provide all the funds for their maintenance. The doctors and nurses at both hospitals are American. Originally the hospitals were intended for American officer patients, but British officers have been cared for in the interval before the arrival of American wounded.

The name hospital as applied to these places is really a misnomer. The majority of the patients are in good health and their cheerfulness further helps to dispel the hospital idea. The patients are army officers whose wounds have long since healed and who are undergoing treatment designed to restore the use of arms or legs. A visitor to the two institutions is surprised to see most of the beds vacant. A majority of the patients spend the day roaming about the parks in which the buildings are set.

Both hospitals are auxiliaries of the British Military Orthopedic Hospital at Sheppard's Bush, one of England's great orthopedic centers.

Success of Fourth Loan.—The splendid success of the Fourth Liberty Loan of $6,000,000,000 is one more, and it may be hoped, a final warning to Germany. It bespeaks the firm determination of a great and united people to end at once and forever the greatest conceivable menace to the ideals and principles which form the foundation of free states. Now the people of the United States will settle down to a less excited but none the less fixed and determined endeavor to help their armies and those of the Allies to finish this war in such a way that the enemy will be compelled to lay down his arms and submit to the terms imposed upon him by a tribunal of the nations he has so grievously offended. Nothing short of unconditional surrender can be considered, and no political pretenses and alleged internal reforms will be allowed to turn the Allies from the resolve to punish both the rulers of German who made this war and the people who aided and abetted them in their crimes.

Our Great Unlearned.—The war has thrust a schoolmaster's task of tremendous proportions on our Government. Because there are 5,500,600 persons over 10 in this country who cannot read and write in any language, the Secretary of the Interior has urged Congress to enact laws to remedy this situation. The figures quoted in this connection are startling. There are nearly 700,000 men of draft age in this country who are illiterate. Aside from the big economic loss which such ignorance entails, there are vital military considerations involved. These men, of whom between 30,000 and 40,000 are already in the army, cannot read the orders posted on the bulletin boards, they cannot read the manual of arms, nor understand signals given by the Signal Corps in time of battle.

BONES AND BAGS.

On account of the war many of our supplies of Bones have been cut off, and in order to get all the nice dry country bones possible, we have determined to pay about twice as much for dry bones as we used to pay, if they are delivered at our factory.

The country boys should pick up all they can and bring them to us instead of selling them to the junk dealers.

We will also pay the highest market price for good second hand Fertilizer Bags. Please communicate with us.
