boat stopped and all 10 people ran to the stern, causing it to settle in the water. The waves came rolling over them."

The group was in a 20-foot cabin cruiser, which had been rented for the outing.

ASKED IF he had any racial feeling about his role in the rescue in view of his public position, Mr. Rathbone said:

"We don't hate colored people. We are called hate mongers and all that. We have no ill feeling toward colored people.

"We would like to stay separated," added the executive secretary of the Arlington Chapter of the Defenders of State Sovereignty and Individual Liberties.

"We were born that way. We wish people wouldn't say things about us the way they do."

3 more D.C. men drown

The resort region of southern Maryland claimed three additional drowning victims this week, two in the Wicomico River in St. Marys County and one in the Patuxent River near Benedict.

All three were Washington residents.

Dead are Clarence Wright, 12, of 339 54th St., NE, and Obediah White, 27 of 306 54th St., NE, who were lost Monday when they attempted to take a swim from their 20-foot outboard motorboat and Francis S. Thomas, 26, of 1101 Seventh St., SE, who succumbed Sunday morning while swimming.

The latest drownings make a total of seven in the area within the two-day period of Sunday and Monday.

EARLIER FOUR Washington persons had perished.

Barbara Thomas, 18, one of four passengers on the small craft, said she had journeyed Sunday with the two victims and Obediah's brother, David, to the beach home of the brothers' uncle, Travers Thomas, on the Wicomico.

Monday morning they took the boat out. They were about 300 feet off shore when Wright, who couldn't swim, followed Obediah White into the water, planning to hold onto the side.

But the victim began drifting away.

He panicked, and David White, who has an artificial leg, joined his brother in the attempted rescue.

REALIZING DAVID'S handicap, Obediah suggested he get back into the boat and hold it steady while he attempted to calm the drowning man.

But the victim caught Obediah around the neck and refused to let go.

"They went down two times," recalled Barbara, who also couldn't swim, "then we didn't see them anymore."

According to his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Banks of 731 21st St., NE, Obediah White was married and the father of three sons and a daughter ranging in age from 1 to 7.

He was employed as a cook at the Bar-20 Restaurant in Kenilworth. He and David White had married twin sisters, Mrs. Banks said.

IN SUNDAY'S mishap, Francis Thomas reportedly was fishing from a rented boat with his brother, Alfred, 445 Franklin St. NW, and a friend Augusta Lewis, 56, New York Ave., NE, about 7 a.m.

He jumped into the water for a swim opposite Golden Beach, and shortly afterward began calling for assistance. His brother jumped into the water but was unable to save him.

THE BODIES of Clarence Wright and Obediah were found near Mill Point Shores in the Wicomico River Wednesday, police reported. The body of Francis Thomas was washed ashore at Sandy Point Island, south of Benedict in the Patuxent River on the same day.

The body of a woman, still unidentified but believed to be one of Sunday's drowning victims, was recovered from the St. Marys River near Roscroft Point.

shut Little Rock's four high schools last fall against court ordered desegregation, was out-maneuvered by the board's latest move.

THE DECISION to reopen the schools apparently was designed to head off possible interference with the board's plan by Faubus and the Arkansas Legislature. The schools had been scheduled to reopen Sept. 8.

Another development was a Federal court ruling that Arkansas' 1959 pupil placement law, under which the school board plans to reopen the schools, is "constitutional on its face" and another was the announcement that privately-operated Raney High School is going out of business.

Judge Axel J. Beck of Aberdeen, S.D., sitting in the Federal District Court here, upheld the pupil placement law with an observation that its provisions "assure equal rights to all children in any Arkansas school district."

THE SCHOOL board relied on this law in its recent assignment to six colored students to Little Rock high schools — three to Central and three others to Hall — and 54 other colored students to the all-colored Horace Mann High School.

These assignments disposed of applications from 60 colored students seeking transfers to white schools.

The all-white school closed Tuesday because of financial difficulties. Dr. T. J. Raney, president of the Little Rock Private School Corporation, announced that Raney High School, named for him, would not open in September. He said:

"SINCE IT appears that the Little Rock public high schools will be opened and since spontaneous support has failed to materialize, we find no alternative but to release our students so they may register at the public school of their choice because Raney High School will not be able to operate this next semester."

Raney High was the largest of three private schools established to provide schooling for white students denied education by Faubus' closing of the high schools.

The other two private schools, Baptist High School and Trinity Interim Academy, an Episcopalian Church school, announced earlier that they would not hold any more classes.

Raney High School operated in the 1958-59 school year with 750 pupils and was financed with donations of $297,540. No tuition was charged.

FAUBUS, who had conferred with Dr. Raney, before the folding up of Raney High School was announced, remarked that "You can't operate a school without money."

School desegregation in Arkansas won another victory in another decision by Judge Beck Tuesday.

Ruling in a case arising from the failure of the Dollarway School District, near Pine Bluff, Ark., to assign colored pupils to an all-white school, Judge Beck ordered the board to admit three this fall.

The judge said the Dollarway board and school officials had maintained a "rigid racial segregation policy in all of its schools," and accused the board of using a 1956 pupil-placement law as a "cover-up" for this policy.

SHORTLY BEFORE the 11 a.m. rites began, a sister, Mrs. Joslyn Braxton, entered the funeral home, accompanied by a younger person.

The funeral director was overheard advising an assistant to "open the casket for Mrs. Braxton."

Mrs. Braxton, who gave birth to a son four days before her sister was slain, left the funeral home at 11:05 a.m., shortly after she entered. She was met by a nurse who walked the block and a half with her to a waiting car.

Mrs. Braxton is the wife of the physician, Dr. John Braxton, and one of the slain woman's two sisters residing here in her native Maryland.

The other is Mrs. Louise Spencer of Cherry Hill.

A brother, Forrester Ferrell, and their mother, Mrs. Ardelle Ferrell, also live here. A third sister, Marjorie, resided with Mrs. White in Chicago.

AMONG OTHERS attending funeral was the slain woman's husband, Samuel White, Chicago postal worker.

In the 79th St. and St. Lawrence Ave. neighborhood where they resided, Mrs. and Mrs. White were active in neighborhood clubs and civic organizations. She was an auditor with the State Department of Labor.

Mrs. White was also known as a fashion consultant and did "outstanding" work with the Volunteer Service Guild of Provident Hospital. She headed the Cotton Ball benefit last year, and this year's fashion show held three weeks ago.

Meantime, in Baltimore's Central Police Court on Friday afternoon, Arbie Robert Cummings, accused in the death of Mrs. White, pleaded not guilty to the charge and was remanded to City jail without bail pending a preliminary hearing to be set by the state's attorney's office.

Police said Mr. Cummings is 35 and is employed as a welder in Chicago. At the hearing, he wore a lace-striped white sports shirt and fancy sport shoes. His hair was neatly processed.

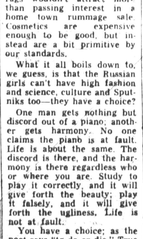
About him is a distinctly contagious charm and an air of seriousness which shows most through his eyes.

Mr. Cummings, also a part time hairdresser, was standing beside an egg-shell blue Cadillac with Illinois license plates when he was arrested.

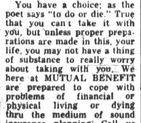
In Chicago, it was learned that Mr. Cummings has a wife and five children. His wife and a brother visited Baltimore shortly after his arrest.

He is a native of St. Louis where he attended public schools, but has made his home in Chicago for the past 14 years.

A Chicago source reported that Mr. Cummings is also active in the Provident Hospital Volunteer Service Guild, and is chairman of the men's advisory committee. He and the slain woman have reportedly been friends for seven years.



ACCUSED — Arbie Robert Cummings, 35 - year - old Chicago welder, accused in the fatal shooting of pretty Chicago matron who was visiting relatives here in Baltimore. He is in city jail awaiting hearing.



BY R. DELACY PETERS

Judging by what we hear from those who have glimpsed the Soviet Exhibition of Science, Technology and Culture showing in New York, Russia is no place for a working girl from our side of the pond.

A dress, for example, would cost more than an average month's rent, and the general cut and style of the new glad rags wouldn't attract more than passing interest in a home town rummage sale. Cosmetics are expensive enough to be good, but instead are a bit primitive by our standards.

What it all boils down to, we guess, is that the Russian girls can't have high fashion and science, culture and Sputniks too—they have a choice?

One man gets nothing but discord out of a piano; another gets harmony. No one claims the piano is at fault. Life is about the same. The discord is there, and the harmony is there regardless who or where you are. Study to play it correctly, and it will give forth the beauty; play it falsely, and it will give forth the ugliness. Life is not at fault.

You have a choice; as the poet says "to do or die." True that you can't take it with you, but unless proper preparations are made in this, your life, you may not have a thing of substance to really worry about taking with you. We here at MUTUAL BENEFIT are prepared to cope with problems of financial or physical living or dying thru the medium of sound insurance planning. Call us at MU. 5-0624, or come to 407 W. On several occasions, Littlejohn whispered to the attorney.

The dead woman's father refused to comment on the case Tuesday night.

However, he did say that his wife had lost all of her hair due to the effects of the dose of poison and still was bald.

At the time, she was out walking the family dog, who had also lost all of his hair.

Littlejohn lives in the 2100 block of N. Gilmor St.

Police reports show that the Littlejohns were having domestic problems at the time of her death.

Police said that the defendant has a record of four previous arrests.

Four members of Littlejohn's family were in the courtroom for the initial hearing.

first arrived the day Pauline was killed.

In that letter Sgt. Knighton expressed disappointment over the fact that Pauline was not at his home when he arrived from the Far East.

He stated in the letter, addressed "Dear Pauline:

"I have been here for two days now and it's almost about to run me crazy but I'm sure it will change when you get here."

FROM a letter found in her bedroom near a pink telephone there was evidence that Pauline was impatiently awaiting the arrival of her sweetheart.

The Harper letter, one that was never delivered stated:

"Darling David: "I am sorry I didn't write sooner but I just knew you were going to send me a ticket so I went and spent all my money on things I knew I would need."

The letter ended with the promise "I'll see you as soon as you send for me."

In preparation for their wedding Sgt. Knighton had sent his bride wedding rings from California.

The dead girl had bought her wedding dress and had packed her bags for the train trip to Oklahoma.

Pauline was buried in her wedding dress five days after writing the letter.

RELATIVES AND friends are at a loss to explain why the attractive well liked girl was murdered.

"There is one theory that Pauline may have been killed by mistake.

That theory is based on the knowledge that a member of her family argued with someone the day before her death. There is a second theory that Pauline was murdered by a jealous suitor who would rather have seen her dead than wed to another.

It is known that she attended a cocktail party with friends on the eve of her death.

It is also known that Pauline was accompanied home by a friend who argued with her in the hallway before leaving.

The events that transpired after that are still a mystery.

RELATIVES were not aware that Pauline had been killed until the following morning when her mother entered the bedroom to ask the time.

It was there that Mrs. Harper found her daughter with the top part of her blue pajamas wrapped around her throat.

The big question in connection with Pauline's death is this:

Who but a person well known and apparently well liked by the Harper family, could have entered the home without attracting attention, killed the girl and then walked out into the night unchallenged? H. M.

ON COST OF GOVERNMENT — "Government is everyone's concern today, and the payment for government is every one's obligation."—Remarks to Deborah Grand Chapter, Order of Eastern Star by Pennsylvania Gov. David L. Lawrence.

MR. A. FRO AND FRIENDS — Wherever Mr. A. Fro goes around this town he usually attracts a crowd of well wishers anxious to see him give away some money. It was warm on Saturday when Mr. A. Fro gave away the money in the Lucky Sticker Contest and that's the reason for the Bermuda shorts. The trousers may have been short but the money was long as Mr. A. Fro gave away $128.

A VERY LUCKY LADY — You don't need any words to say that this lady is happy, the expression speaks for itself. She is Mrs. Lorraine M. Wood, 3206 Leighton Ave., who won $25 when she answered Mr. A. Fro's jackpot question correctly on Wednesday. With her are her daughters, Myra and Rena, who is one year old. Said Mrs. Wood when Mr. A. Fro handed her the money: "I'm very delighted." You too may be a winner. To learn how, read the rules of the AFRO Lucky Sticker Contest.

THEY HAD FUN—These wonderful people of the 200 block Amity St. were on hand Wednesday to watch Mr. A. Fro ask Mrs. Viola Easley at 244 a jackpot question. Mrs. Easley missed the answer but she still received $5 and her friends were mighty happy about the whole thing.

so it can be seen from the street.

The stickers may be obtained free from your AFRO newscarrier or clipped directly from this issue of the AFRO.

As Mr. A. Fro draves about this wonderful city he makes frequent stops at homes displaying the Lucky Sticker.

If the person in that home has the latest edition of the AFRO he or she automatically wins $5.

Then Mr. A. Fro asks one of the jackpot questions and if he receives a correct answer he gives the reader a total of $25.

If the question is missed, the reader still receives $5. Actually it is as easy as pie to answer the jackpot questions.

Every edition of the AFRO carries a list of the questions and the answers are included in the same paper.

The answers change in every edition of the AFRO so in order to be able to answer Mr. A. Fro when he comes calling, you have to read every edition—and that's a lot of fun.

Each time that Mr. A. Fro goes out in the street he has three $35 prizes and five $5 prizes. He also has consolation prizes of $1 each for people who have the sticker displayed but do not have a current edition of the AFRO.

So you see that everyone visited by Mr. A. Fro wins something and if your sticker is up, you may well be a winner.

WHEN MR. A. FRO was out on Wednesday he gave away $25 prizes to the following persons:

Mrs. Lorraine M. Wood, 3206 Leighton Ave., Mrs. Gaynelle Perry, 2620 E. Oliver St., Mrs. Agnes McGlone, 2417 Moinsel Ct., Westport Homes.

Mrs. Wood was Mr. A. Fro's first jackpot winner and the attractive mother of two young sters was, in her own words, "very delighted," to see the man with the money.

At the Oliver St. residence of Mrs. Perry, her neighbors gathered about her front steps and held their breaths while she thought about the answer.

They let out a cheer when her answer came loud and correct and Mr. A. Fro gave her $25.

THE SAME scene was repeated at the Westport Homes where adults and children seemed bowled over with pleasure when Mrs. McGlone gave the correct answer and received the money.

The $5 winners on Wednesday were:

Mrs. Gladys Campbell, 939 N. Mount St.; Mrs. Viola Easley, 244 Amity St.; Miss Doris McCrea, 1315 Caroline St.; Mrs. Grace Books, 1736 N. Dallas St.; Mrs. Alma Jordan, 2316 E. Lanvale St., Rowe, 1929 Herbert St.

Remember on Saturday that there will be a new set of winners and Dame Fortune may smile on you.

However, remember that Mr. A. Fro can't stop unless he sees one of those Lucky Red Stickers and if you haven't put yours up yet, you had better do it now.

Don't forget to check the questions and answers in today's paper so you will be prepared when Mr. A. Fro comes a calling.

After tomorrow's (Saturday's) contest, Mr. A. Fro will have four more weeks to give away money so be patient and he'll be sure to visit your neighborhood.

Tunnel leads to loot, jail cells

Two men, convicted of burglarizing a Greenmount Ave. liquor store, were sentenced to a total of seven years in Criminal Court on Wednesday.

They were:

Alfred Bowman, 16, 3 years; Norman Harris, 24, 4 years.

They were tried along with Tyrone Alisberry, 16, and John H. Royster, 19, who were given suspended sentences and probation.

ACCORDING TO testimony, the four defendants with two other men tunneled their way into the cellar of a vacant house into the basement of a package goods store in the 1800 block Greenmount Ave. on May 31.

The two other men were not identified.

Testimony showed that Royston, who was given a suspended sentence and one - year probation for receiving stolen goods met the group on a corner after the burglary while they were arguing over the division of the loot.

He acted as arbitrator and received $3 in pennies for his services, it was testified.

The fourth defendant was Tyrone Allsbery, 16, who was given a two - year suspended sentence and probation for two years.

According to State's attorney Charles Moylan Jr., the group took $2,644 in merchandize and cash from the store.

This included $344 cash; ladies' hose, valued at $150; an automatic pistol valued at $25; 150 cartons cigarettes, valued at $350; beer, valued at $75; and whiskey, valued at $1,500.

Sgt. August Klemmick and Officers John Skalstad and William Delahanty were in on the arrest.
