my watch off my wife".

Prior to the slaying, Mr. and Mrs. Stokes had gone to a neighborhood grocery store and bought bologna, cheese, bread and a soft drink for their lunch.

Gordon Elliott testified that he loaned Stokes a dollar after the defendant had worked for about 15 minutes.

Mr. Elliott testified that on one occasion, he overheard Stokes tell his wife "out of the clear blue sky," "I'm going to kill you one of these days."

One witness, Mrs. Grace Tolz of the 2600 block Windsor Rd. testified that she heard muffled shots and turned in time to see Mrs. Stokes coming out of a car.

Mrs. Tolz stated, "I couldn't take my eyes of the lady, who had fallen. I was frozen. I got my little boy so that he couldn't see this".

SERGEANT Frank Jasper of the Parkville police said Stokes told him the following at interrogation

"After eating, Bobby said she knew I had been kissing a girl on June 2 in the back yard.

"She put her hand under the front seat and came up with a screw driver and said she would get even with me. I tried to get out of the car and fell."

Sergeant Jasper said Stokes maintained that he fired only two shots at his wife both outside the car.

Police reports were introduced to show that bullet holes were found inside Elliott's automobile and that part of the victim's flesh was found on a door panel.

When his turn came to take the stand, Stokes said he came to Baltimore eight years ago from Camden, S.C., and had done odd jobs.

The defendant said he had never been to school and could neither read nor write.

After preliminary questioning Mr. Bottom asked Stokes the following questions:

Q—How long were you and Bobby married?

A—Almost a year I guess.

Q—How long had you known her before you were married?

A—About a year and a half.

Q—Were you ever in any difficulty with the law in connection with your relationship with her?

A—That's right.

Q—Tell the court what that difficulty was.

A—Messing around with a girl under age.

Q—You were going with Barbara and charged with carnal knowledge in the city and served some time didn't you?

A—That's right.

Q—Were you ever in any other trouble with the law?

A—For disorderly conduct.

Q—Were you sentenced for any charges?

A—I was given 27 days for being drunk and disorderly.

Q—You were never charged with larceny or anything of that sort?

A—Never in my life.

Q—WHERE DID you live for seven years?

A—On St. Mary's St., in the city and then I moved to Cpl. Elliott's mother's home a couple of weeks before this happened. I moved there with my wife.

Q—How did you and Bobby get along?

A—Good.

Q—Did you ever argue?

A—Now and then.

Q—Tell the court as best as you can what happened.

"She asked me about Bell and I told her she should know better than that because where ever I went she went.

"I told her she was only joking or she was crazy or something. She said, 'I'm not kidding' and reached under and got the screw driver."

Stokes sat with his head bowed throughout the day long trial.

When sentence was pronounced, he grimaced and continued chewing gum.

Only a handful of spectators were on hand when Stokes was led into the court room wearing tan trousers, a brown dress coat, black shoes, blue socks and a white shirt.

—Mayo divorce

W. Franklin St. divorced Terry Jones on grounds of desertion.

Married on March 25, 1939, they separated in 1945. They are parents of three children, two of whom are adults. The third was given into custody of the mother.

Milton B. Allen was attorney for Mrs. Jones.

MRS. MOZELLA BARNWELL, who divorced Solomon Barnwell on grounds of infidelity, won the custody of their two children, boys, three and five years of age.

Mr. Brannwell was charged with general support for the children.

The couple was married on Dec. 28, 1952 and separated on May 10, 1959, the wife testified.

The alleged adultery, according to Mrs. Barnwell's mother, Mrs. Charlotte Boyd, took place on May 8, 1959 at 2035 Cliftwood Ave.

Mrs. Boyd said that her daughter was away for the night, that she went to the apartment occupied by the couple next morning and found another woman with her son in law.

MRS. HELEN M. GLOVER of 935 Pennsylvania Ave. was given a divorce after testifying that James W. Glover ordered her from their home.

Married in 1928, they separated in 1957.

A DIVORCE also went to Herman Mooney of 1914 Barddish Ave. from Mrs. Audrey L. Mooney on grounds of separation.

The marriage, according to the husband listed from Feb. 17, 1952 to Oct. 1954.

Mrs. Mooney just said she was leaving and returned to the home of her family, he said.

By the time the batting order got back to Fox for the third out 20 minutes later, Chicago had seven runs and a 9-0 bulge. Ella's second homer and record-tying fifth run batted in raised it to 11-0 in the fourth.

The rest of the way, with Early Wynn toying with them the Dodgers simply went through the motions.

Charlie Neal collected two hits, Junior Gilliam and Maury Wills one each for L.A. but the visitors could mount nothing that resembled a threat.

MR. BARRY then said this reason was given:

"The South Atlantic district ports were negotiating a contract with their steamship association, and they were refused retroactive pay as of October 1.

"They called out the men from Hampton Roads, Va., down to Brownsville, Tex., and reported matters to New York.

"Our strike followed."

The longshoremen are presently seeking increased pension, welfare and vacation benefits, and an increase in their hourly pay rate.

The strike completely paralyzes the port of Baltimore.

AT MONDAWMIN TODAY AND SATURDAY—Early "Guns that won the West" are among the 200 odd and unusual inventor's actual models now on display in a free show at the Mondawmin Shopping Center, Liberty Heights and Reisterstown Rd. Visitors to the free show have a chance to win a color TV and two portable TV sets.

Inventions displayed at Mondawmin Center

Over 16,000 visitors jammed this unique Air Dome at Mondawmin Shopping Center, Liberty Heights Ave and Reisterstown Rd., in the first two days of the showing of 200 inventor's models displayed in the Antique Americana Exposition.

Early "Guns that won the West," Edison's first light bulb, an 1880 egbeater —these are but three of the 200 odd and unusual inventor's actual models on display in the touring Air Dome that made its premiere performance at Mondawmin.

The Air Dome, suspended by air pressure, will be open to the public free now through Saturday night, October 3.

The exhibits are presented by Antique Kentucky Straight Bourbon, a product of the Four Roses Distillers Company and the Mondawmin merchants as a public service.

There is no charge, no donation, to see the exhibit of the models submitted by inventors. These inventions are in the original form when patent was applied for.

Visitors are invited to guess the "Mystery Model" with an RCA Color TV and two RCA Portables being awarded as prizes to the three persons who come closest to naming what the model is and when it was patented.

THINKING OUT LOUD

Johnson urges lawyers to entlist in war against discrimination

By RALPH MATTHEWS

WASHINGTON on say that:

Several months ago I was very much disturbed to learn that my good friend George M. Johnson, former dean of Howard University Law School and now a member of the Civil Rights Commission was wading down in South America studying the racial problems of Brazil.

With so many of our own problems unresolved and getting worse, it seemed to me that a member of the Civil Rights Commission would be of no use in North America without going to South America in search of more trouble. It looked to me like although we had decided to let George do it, this particular George was failing down on the job.

BUT I AM HAPPY TO say that my fears were unfounded and the dean completely vindicated himself in his speech last week before the convention of the Federal Bar Association.

Both lack of space and lethargy prevented most of the press from carrying his speech, but many of his observations deserve studied consideration.

I am using some of his excerpts here because I believe they are sound and should be digested. Among other things he said:

"When I received the invitation to participate on this program, I was in Brazil engaged in a short and independent pilot study of the role of law in race relations in the Western Hemisphere. I had selected Brazil for the pilot study because of the multi-racial composition of the population, the country's general reputation for racial tolerance, and the fact that Brazil had enacted a national civil rights law in 1951.

"IT SEEMS appropriate to raise with this distinguished group of lawyers, an issue of which needs to be given serious thought. I refer to the role of law in race relations.

"'Is law the proper tool or social sanction for the control of intergroup conflicts? It is often said that because prejudices are at the root of intergroup conflicts, especially interracial conflicts, the only solution is to rid people's minds and hearts of race prejudice and this cannot be accomplished by laws."

"Stating the issue this manner is, in my humble judgment, inadequate for at least two (2) reasons. First, it fails to recognize the important distinction between prejudice and discrimination; and second, it assumes that laws are powerless to change attitudes.

"On the importance of distinguishing between prejudice and discrimination, Professor Melvin Tumin, in his recent book, "Desegregation, Resistance and Readiness," on pages 46 and 47, has this to say:

"Prejudice literally means pre-judgment. But it has come to stand for a set of unfavorable beliefs about and desires for distance from certain types of persons.

"More often than not, unfavorable qualities are ascribed to whole groups of persons on the basis of limited experience with a few members of that group.

"By contrast, discrimination refers to types of actions taken to keep distance from the disfavored group..."

"Professor Tumin then goes on to say that:

"For some time now It has been fashionable to contend that there is an automatic connection between prejudice and discrimination.

"This implies that the prejudiced person naturally tends to practice discrimination. As a corollary, it is held that discrimination cannot be eliminated except as one first removes the prejudicial feelings which underlie the tendency to discriminate.

"More recent research and theory, however, have been very persuasive in demonstrating that there exists a gap between the thing we call prejudice and that which we call discrimination. In this gap a variety of factors can be interposed which will either facilitate the acting out of the prejudice or inhibit the prejudiced person from discriminating."

"IT IS SUBMITTED THAT laws requiring racial segregation in areas of intergroup relations, such as education, transportation, public facilities, and public accommodations, have facilitated the acting out of racial prejudices. Moreover, the enforcement of such laws has made it difficult for prejudiced persons to change their minds and hearts on rational bases of experience.

"Logically, anti-segregation laws inhibit the acting out of prejudices and provide opportunities for prejudiced persons to have experiences which may change their minds and hearts. Those who favor legislation as an appropriate tool for the control of intergroup conflicts are concerned primarily, with preventing discriminatory conduct and patterns of behavior.

"THE ASSUMPTION that laws are powerless to change attitudes, recalls to mind one of my law school professor's description of rebuttable presumption, that they are 'bats in the night that vanish in the sunlight of facts.' There is considerable evidence that laws can and do change attitudes. This evidence is discussed by Professor Tumin and also by Messrs. Maslow and Robison. Gordon W. Alport, in his book, 'The Nature of Prejudice,' objectively analyzes the pros and cons of the issue under discussion in a chapter titled 'Ought There To Be A Law.' One of his conclusions is:

'Law is intended only to control the outward expression of intolerance. But outward action, psychology knows, has an eventual effect upon inner habits of thought and feeling. And for this reason we list legislative action as one of the major methods of reducing not only public discrimination, but private prejudice as well.'

"THERE IS SOUND reason therefore, for the Commission decision to include legislation in its recommendations. The facts which the Commission found, put in bold relief the sobering fact that, in mid - twentieth century America, a substantial portion of our citizenry is unwilling to follow the rule of equal rights.

"With the facts collected, studied and reported, pursuant to Congressional direction and mandate, the President and the Congress may be aided in the formulation and development of mmethods for remedying the defects found to exist. The Commission gave serious thought to methods and, as directed, by the Congress, has included as its report a number of recommendations for consideration by the President, the Congress and the people.

"I OFTEN WONDER whether members of the legal profession in this country appreciate fully their distinctive over- and concomittant responsibilities.

"Because a democracy is a distinctive legal organization the issues confronting thoughtful citizens are legal problems. Serious efforts to solve legal problems are led inevitably to relevant fundamentals. Thus, the crucial questions of the 20th twentieth century, what ever else they may involve, are ultimately jurisprudential ones.

"Commission Chairman Hannah has often voiced his conviction that the problem of Civil Rights transcends in importance all other domestic issues that this country faces. I am in complete agreement with him. While the problem today is, to a large extent a race and color problem, it is by no means limited to any particular section of the nation as the Commission's report on housing reveals. None of us has all the answers and there is a desperate need for imaginative but thoughtful leadership at national, state and local levels. It does not seem unrealistic or reasonable to assume that members of the Federal Bar Association should contribute substantially to such leadership and, in so doing, make a meaningful contribution to Western Hemisphere Solidarity.

"Bravo George! That's telling 'em!

Decisions is a sharp knife that cuts clean and straight, indecision, a dull one that hacks and tears and leaves ragged edges behind it.

GORDON GRAHAM

Lucky Pic $$ can buy a heap of milkshakes

Miss Cathleen Taylor, 9, 3312 W. North Ave., came into the AFRO office recently to collect $5 lucky Pic money.

Little Miss Taylor's picture was snapped in her fourth grade classroom at the new Edgewood Elementary School.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Taylor, (Jennie) Cathleen is one of three children in Bright, alert and talkative, Miss Taylor said she intended to keep the money herself.

But sister Cynthia adds, "she'll wind up spending it all for milkshakes!"

Cathleen admitted that milkshakes were really her great weakness.

TELLING HOW she discovered she was Lucky Pic winner, Miss Taylor said:

"I bought a paper for my grandfather. I wasn't thinking my picture was going to be in the paper.

"When I saw the circle I didn't know what the circle meant and I showed it to my father.

"My father told me what it meant. I thought he was kidding," she added.

"All the children in my class have been talking about it just because I won $5," she said.

Miss Taylor, who is pleasingly plump and has a quick smile is president of her Brownie Troop, No. 554.

Mrs. Alice Ross is leader of the troop, Miss Taylor said.

You too, can be a winner of the Lucky Pic $5. All you have to do—if your picture is circled in the current edition of the AFRO— is appear at the AFRO office at 628 N. Eutaw St. before the AFRO's next publication date.

How about you? Won't you have some of our money?

Father wants daughter back

Missing from home since last Tuesday is Lavern Nicholson, 13, of 224 Pierce St.

Her father, William Nicholson, this week issued a plea for his daughter to return home.

She is five feet three inches tall and weighs 118 pounds. When last seen she was respondy on her way to classes at Edmondson High School.

ADA will hear Dr. R. Musgrave

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 7, the Baltimore Chapter, Americans for Democratic Action, will present, at the Walbrook Library, 5203 W. North Ave., at 8:15 p.m., Dr. Richard A. Musgrave, professor of economics, Johns Hopkins University.

He will speak on "Municipal Taxation. A Nationwide Problem."

Professor Musgrave, comes to Baltimore from the University of Michigan, where he has been professor of economics since 1950.

He is the author of "Theory of Public Finances: A Study In Public Economy," published in 1957.

Born in Konigsteen, Germany in 1910, diploma, U. of Heidelberg, 1933, M.A., Harvard, 1936, Ph.D., Harvard, 1937, instructor at Harvard, 1936-41; research economist, Federal Reserve System, Washington, D.C., 1941-47; associate professor, U. of Michigan, 1948-50 and full professor of economics from 1950-59.

No 'joke'?

After pleading no contest a young defendant was convicted and sentencing was held for a later date for the burglary of a clock radio.

According to Patrolman De Flavis of Western Police Station said he was called to the 1300 block of Gilmor St. Aug. 10 by Robert Tazewell, who told him of the radio theft.

The officer testified that he jokingly told Savage, who was present, "Why don't you give him his radio back?"

According to the officer, Savage answered "O.K., I'll give it back tomorrow."

He returned it.

Mitchell Memorial is new Methodist church

The John Mitchell Memorial Methodist Church, will hold services on Sunday in the lecture room of St. Paul Methodist Church, Saratoga and Schroeder Sts.

This is the new congregation which is an outgrowth of the Wesley Methodist Church. The Rev. Mrs. Myrtle Wood is pastor.

The church is named for the late John Mitchell, former trustee of the old John Wesley. His wife, Mrs. Eleanor Mitchell, is one of the 100 members of the new church.

The speaker on Sunday morning will be the Rev. H. A. Parker, superintendent of the South Baltimore District of the Methodist Church.

BTC profits

The Board of Directors of The Baltimore Transit Company at its Wednesday meeting was advised that the net profit from operations for the month of August, 1959 was $32,354 compared with a profit of $4,991 for August, 1958.

In August, 1959, the company provided $35,042 for City, State and Federal income taxes compared with $5,257 for these taxes in August, 1958.

Ann Sheridan in play slated for Ford's

Ann Sheridan, more famous among Americans as a movie star than as an actress on the legitimate stage, will appear at the Ford Theater in Baltimore Oct. 5-10 in the comedy, "Odd Man In."

The play, described as one of the funniest to come out of Europe in a generation will play at the Ford Theater prior to its Broadway run.

Miss Sheridan, who has impressed millions in America with more than 250 moving picture roles, has chosen the role of Jane Maxwell in the new play.

Technicality frees three defendants

On the heels of two Criminal Court convictions for lottery, three other defendants were acquitted Monday in Judge Joseph Allen's court on the same charge when their attorneys stood on a technicality.

The two defendants who were convicted in Criminal Court and sentenced to one year and $1,000 each (consecutive) were James A. Coleman, 59, 400 block Ostend St. and Miss Mae E. Holt, 32, also 400 block Ostend St.

The defendants who were acquitted were

Charles J. Marshall, 54, 200 block Mura St.,

Mrs. Bessie Marshall, 57, same address, and Richard E. Palmore, 45, a tenant in the Marshall home.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall were represented by Paul J. Cockrell and Tucker R. Drayton.

Mr. Palmore was represented by Alan Murrell.

At the trial, Sgt. William Treeheard testified that one of his subordinates witnessed certain actions which led him to believe the defendants were in violation of the lottery.

However, the sergeant said he himself, had filed a sworn affidavit to obtain a search and seizure warrant from Judge Anselm Sodaro early in the summer.

THE MARSHALL home was raided on the warrant August.

In dismissing the Marshalls and Mr. Palmore, Judge Allen said he refuses to issue search and seizure warrants to anyone other than the person who files the affidavit.

Assistant state's attorney Julius Romano prosecuted in all of these cases.

At the previous trial in which Mr. Romanen won convictions, it was testified that police found $430 in numbers plays in the Ostend St. home on June 25.

Mr. Coleman pleaded not guilty and Miss Holt pleaded guilty.

Cherry Hill selected as pilot area

The Baltimore Urban League has taken on the new and vital task of promoting an educational program designed to help parents develop the concept and practice of sound family life.

The project is known as "Strengthening Family Life" and funds were secured from the United Steelworkers Union of America in the form of a $12,000 grant for a two - year program.

Cherry Hill has been chosen as a pilot project because of its unique geographical setup and the interest that has been shown by the community.

Family life will be emphasized with the cooperation of community leaders in order to promote and encourage sound family life.

Extensive plans are being made for projects to be carried on in other parts of the city following the Cherry Hill initial effort.

A SKIT DENOTING the negaediling some every day family occurrences will be given at the Cherry Hill Community Building, Wednesday, Oct. 7, at 8 p.m.

It is jointly sponsored by the management of Cherry Hill Housing Project, Ladies Guild, Mothers Club, Department of Recreation and the Baltimore Urban League.

The ministers in the community are cooperating with this program by choosing as the theme of their sermons, during the months of October, some phase of family life.

Parents have expressed their desire for guidance and assistance in formulating a code of behavior that can be used in instilling in their children those attitudes and values necessary for productive citizenship. This project entails the participation of both parent and youth.

Persons interested in participating in a similar project for other areas are needed, said prime sponsor, Mrs. DeBord of the Baltimore Urban League.

The Grand Drawing sponsored by the Cherry Hill Community Recreation Council will be on Friday (today) at 8 o'clock.

First prize is $50 worth of groceries. A record hop will also be held.

All proceeds from the drawing will be used to buy sports equipment for the children's recreation.

Shephard Burge is president. Mrs. Gladys Johnson, financial secretary and Harry Ogles-by, treasurer.

'New approach' for contracts group

By LOUIS LAUTIER

WASHINGTON (NNPA)—The President's Government Contracts Committee, in a new approach to race and religious discrimination, is making significant gains in breaking down such barriers, NNPA learned Monday.

In the past, reliance has been placed by the committee, chiefly on advising, recommending and educating employers to obtain compliance with the non-discrimination provision in Government contracts.

Complaints of race and religious discrimination have been processed by the committee through the Government contracting agencies.

VICE PRESIDENT RICHARD M. Nixon as chairman of the committee has sponsored several conferences, including those held with leaders of industry, community leaders and religious leaders, all of which served a useful purpose.

The committee has no enforcement powers. Concerning a contract with a recalcitrant firm could be cancelled, but it is not likely that the Army would cancel a contract for missiles, the Air Force a contract for aircraft and the Navy a contract for an atomic submarine.

In all of the history of fair employment practice efforts, there is not a single instance of cancellation of a contract because of violation of the anti-discrimination clause in a Government contract.

IRVING FERMAN, who heading the Washington chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, was named executive vice chairman a few months ago and Mr. Ferman initiated a program of direct negotiation with firms.

As a result of these negotiations, nine companies in the South and elsewhere, having Government contracts, are now employing colored workers in jobs previously reserved for whites only.

While the total number of colored persons employed by these firms in such jobs is small, the "breakthrough" of the race and religious barriers is considered significant.

The firms with which the negotiations were carried on for a beginning in compliance with the anti-discrimination clause of their contracts were regarded as the toughest ones. Most of the "soft" ones were already complying.

Bengies Center opens Oct. 3

The Bengies Recreation Council has announced that the Bengies Teen Center will open on Saturday, Oct. 3.

The rules and regulations for the Teen Center will be as they were last season, that is, it will be open to boys and girls between the ages of ten and twenty.

Many new activities have been planned for this season. They include a big "Record Hop" by Kelson Fisher, a gala Halloween party, Thanksgiving Dance, many new games, tournaments in Ping Pong and many other surprises.

The hours of the Teen Center are from 8 until 11 p.m. Admission is by teen center cards only.

Edward D. Young is the leader of this teen center.

Rocking students brings 60-day term

A 16 - year - old youth, Robert Franklin, 400 block N. Chapel St., was sentenced in Eastern Police Court Thursday to 60 days in jail for throwing rocks at some students on the grounds of the Dunbar Junior - Senior High School, Caroline and Jefferson Sts.

Young Franklin, who does not attend the school, pleaded guilty to a specific charge of disorderly conduct in the case.

12-year-old wins AFRO's $5 lucky picture prize

Twelve - year - old William Ford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Ford, 1225 Oakhurst Pl., is the winner of the AFRO's $5 lucky picture prize.

His head was circled in Tuesday's edition. He was pictured with a group watching Mr. A. Fro.

"This is the first time I ever won a prize like this," said young Ford when he visited the AFRO office on Thursday morning to collect his cash award which he said he plans to save.

William is an eighth grade pupil at Lemmel Junior High School.

There's a lucky picture in this and every edition of the AFRO. Look for it. It may be you. All you have to do to collect is call at the AFRO City Desk before the next edition is out.
