"EMPTY POCKETS" A MYSTERY STORY

Herbert Brenon's presentation of "Empty Pockets," Rupert Hughes' best seller, to be exhibited Friday and Saturday of this week at Lyceum Theatre, is a mystery story of New York's slums and palaces.

As in the novel, Mr. Brenon introduces the mysterious strands of hair "from some copperhaired woman" right at the start of the film and keeps everybody guessing which of five copper-haired beauties committed the murder until he relieves the suspense near the finish of the film. It is a masterly piece of "suspended interest" handling.
