Mother and wife share Dr. Woodland's estate

The $19,210.77 estate of Dr. Charles T. (Pap) Woodland, less expenses and administration costs, has been divided equally between his widow, Mrs. Anna Maude Woodland, his mother, Mrs. Helen G. Woodland, both of whom will get a little over $7,000.

The distribution was made according to the Intestate law of Maryland, the late physician having died without a will.

Dr. Woodland's estate evolved chiefly from bonds, which brought $7,153.48; $7,944.50 in cash; the sale of an automobile for $1,420; and his home at 843 Harlem Ave., valued at $5,000.

There was a small amount of office furniture and a U.S. Bond also in the estate.

THE ADMINISTRATOR George L. Russell, Jr., was allowed by the Orphan's Court to retain $1,000 for a final settlement of taxes, etc.

Total payments out of the estate amounted to $4,058.41. The largest items of payment was the one-tenth commission to Mr. Russell as administrator, and a funeral bill to the Charles Law Mortuary of $1,206.50.

In the final distribution, Mrs. Anna Woodland, the wife, received $1,005.42. Mrs. Helen Woodland, the mother, whose address is 1205 Myrtle Ave., received $7,076.18.

Dr. Woodland, who practiced medicine in this city for 30 years, died on March 25, 1959 at the age of 55.

final say in approving the budget, can not add any items, it can only make further cuts in the proposals.

In prior years, procedure followed was presentation of the budget to the Board of Estimates, where additional expenditures, if desired, could be added.

Mayor J. Harold Grady had this to say about the new budget proposals Tuesday:

"We feel this is a firm position of the Board of Estimates, in that we have all consented and reached these conclusions.

"But we must leave the avenue open that we may have overlooked something."

HARD HIT in the proposed new budget is the city's Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The assistant executive secretary post, now held by Murray Abramson, is to be abolished, and $8,100 is planned to be slashed from its 1959 appropriations of $29,024 for operating expenses, saving the city $13,980.

Mayor Grady, the Board of Estimates members and Charles L. Benton, budget director, offered this comment with the cuts in this instance:

"We believe that these reductions can be sustained with out seriously impairing the efficiency and effectiveness of the commission."

This means that EEOC will operate next year with a salaried staff of two persons— an executive secretary and a stenographer.

Another of the harder hit agencies is the Bureau of Building Inspection, where the budget makers recommended slashing 103 jobs.

Most of these, a total of 77, involve custodial employees. However, there are 11 such cuts in the recently established multiple dwelling division.

It was noted these cuts would save the city $180,622.

The city's six free public bathhouses, and the bath conmission, as previously announced, were abolished at an estimated savings of $99,912.

THE BOARD of Liquor License Commissioners loses 21 jobs, including 18 part time inspectors. The Department of Aviation lost its position of assistant director.

The Department of Transit and Traffic loses 32 jobs. The Bureau of Highways faces the loss of 19 jobs. The Urban Renewal and Housing Agency job cuts totaled 44.

The Department of Public Welfare lost the opeation of Camp Wood, which will be discontinued at an estimated savings of $18,000 city funds, but got nine new positions and increased funds based on the estimated caseloads for 1960.

Increased operating expenses and additional jobs were granted the Board of Education, the Fire and Police Departments, City Hospitals and the Health Department.

SALARY INCREASES for the teachers, aside from normal increments, fell under the city's new economy axe.

The budget - makers noted that the School Board's salary plan would cost $6,750,000 for a full year— and would require an additional property tax of 15 cents, or its equivalent.

Mayor Grady was thoughtful with the salary increase denial He said:

"Increased salaries for teachers can be postponed, but not long ignored."

Followers of the city's Bureau of Music band concerts are certain to be disappointed next year.

The new budget abolishes this bureau, and increases its allotment to the city's symphony orchestra instead.

OTHERS AMONG the new and increased taxes for the coming year include:

1. A $2 a ton private refuse disposal charge.

2. A $1 and $2 vending machine charge.

3. A 15% tax on garbage grinders used for commerical purposes.

4. A 50 percent increase of full rates, special water and sewer rates applicable to churches, hospitals, charitable institutions;

5. Increased water rates for residents of Anne Arundel

Personality of the Week

Tall, attractive and studious describes our personality this week.

Elain McCoy was a honor graduate of Dunbar High School and at the present she is a student at M.S.C.

In 1948, Lain hopes to attend grad school if not she will enter the field of teaching attending school duringtha summer months.

Her likes are friendly people, good motion pictures and collegiate football. Dislikes: selfish people, hypocrites and braggarts.

She is a member of the following organizations: president of the Pan Hellenic Council, secretary of the Kappa Delta Pi National Education Honor Society, and the Grammatean of the Alpha Kappa Alpha Society.

On Tuesday Elain addressed the faculty on the problems of the Greek letter organizations as seen by the "Greek" students and they the have problems.

Nevertheless with more students like Elain, all problems will soon be alleviated. Elain loves pink, green (colors) and the Tea Roses.

INQUIRING REPORTER

Question: Do you think that the "Religion in Life" week had any significance in the student body as a whole?

Louis A. Janes — "The Religion in Life week reflects man's rationality. It is only significant if the idea is carried throughout the year.

"From this stand point it is significant only to those who extend the week into a year."

Clifton Henry — "I am of the opinion that the Religion in Life Week program had a very significant effect upon the student body, in that it provided a 'Search Period' where in the student was able to analyze his individual religion, philosophies, and share them with others.

It provided a real opportunity to Think' a word of which many of us are afraid."

Robert Watts — "Though the efforts of the Religion in Life Week were commendable, I think that Religion cannot be emphasized in a week.

"Religion also requires the use of the external and the internal senses which should be directed toward God for the betterment of one's mind and soul and his hopes for enternal happiness".

Vernetta Watson — "I think that Religion in Life week was very significant because it gave us a prospective in this age of rockets, cold war threats, atoms, and various other hostilities."

Harry Boatwain — "No, why should it have any significance? Most students are set in their ways and the teachings of the so - called major religions affect them very little if any.

"I also think that it is a waste of time (for the most part) since very few students took an active part other than those on the committee".

FASHIONS OF THE YEAR

By JACQUELYN JOHNSON

NOW FOR a few words from our new fashion editor, Miss Johnson, who is replacing Gleen McGill.

By the way Gleen will be home during the Christmas holiday; as you know he is in the Navy.

This year on every campus I am sure you've seen an abundance of coats and sweaters with the zip or button.

An average plain coat can easily be transformed with an addition of this new fad.

The fur collar can be purchased separately from the parade of coats. These jackets are bold plaids and tweeds, with a V - shaped hem-line.

Still another fad is the petite checkered and corduroy all-weather coats with the hats to match.

Again this year sweaters have an important roll in one's wardrobe. They consist of bulky knit cardigans for the fellows as well as the girls, and the new hooded and draw string sweaters.

To be in the know around town you must definitely have a fur collared coat, a Continental pop - over jacket, or a bulky knit sweater.

Panel conducted

The Parents Education Class of School 141 conducted a panel, "The Relationship Between Parents and Teachers," at the school on Wednesday morning.

Valuable historical papers added to Morgan's collections

A collection of papers which gives a valuable historical view of the colored American from of 1900 to 1951 is now ready to be used at Morgan State College.

The body of papers has been called the Emmett J. Scott Collection in honor of the late leader and former Secretary to Booker T. Washington who bequeathed the papers to the college in 1957.

The nearly 3,000 pieces comprising the collection are now contained in 15 boxes of 2 or 3 more folders each and have been housed in Morgan's Morris A. Soper Library to become a part of the college's growing "special collections."

Other special collections housed at Morgan are the Quaker Collection, given to the college by Dr. Bliss Forbush, headmaster of the Friends Select School and a Morgan Trustee, and the Matthew A. Henson Collection, which was given to the school by the widow of the late Arctic explorer.

DR. ROLAND C. McCONNELL, Professor of History at Morgan who had the big job of classifying the collection, describes it as of "significant value in rounding out the story of the Colored American from 1916 to 1951."

The papers, Dr. McConnell says, cover every aspect of colored life during that period — politics, education, military service and "even religion."

The Morgan professor calls the collection "essentially the papers of Dr. Scott, a private citizen with a public interest."

But giving the papers historical significance is their reflection of the important activities in which Dr. Scott engaged during his life from 1893 to 1957.

Dr. Scott served successively as: Secretary to Booker T. Washington, Tuskegee Institute, Secretary of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute and of its Board of Trustees, 1909-1919, Special Assistant to the Secretary of War, 1917 - 1919;

Secretary - Treasurer, and Secretary of Howard University, and of its Board of Trustees, 1919-1938; Assistant Publicity Director, Republican National Committee, and Advisor to the Chairman, 1939-1942; Director of Employment and Personnel Relations, Shipyard No. 4, Sun Shipbuilding Company, Chester, Pa., 1942-1945; and Secretary of the Southern Education Foundation, 1931-1954.

Dr. Scott was also one of the founders of the National Business League and its Secretary, 1900-1922; a member of the Taft-American Commission to Liberia, 1909; member of the National Council of the YMCA, 1930-1937; and a member of the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole of Washington, D.C., 1922-1937.

In addition, he contributed to magazines and newspapers a number of articles on national and international issues and wrote two books, "The American Negro in World War" and "Negro Migrations During the World War."

With Lyman Beecher Stowe, he co - authored "Booker T. Washington, Builder of a Civilization," and though his name does not appear on the title page, Scott was credited by Washington with editing the book "Tuskegee and Its People."

* * *

DR. McCONNELL was employed as an archivist at the National Archives in Washington, DC prior to joining the Morgan faculty in 1947.

The student of colored military history will also find the collection valuable, the Morgan historian says, pointing out that:

The work also contains a series of reports on conditions of colored soldiers in camps throughout the United States during World War I.

A prized item in the collection is the original manuscript of Dr. Scott's most important book, "The American Negro in World War I."

Dr. McConnell spent more than a month and half, starting to work in the early part of last June, analyzing and describing the collection.

Once this job was over, he prepared a check-list for the collection.

Labels for the collection were typed by Miss Rosemary Dennis of the Soper Library staff.

All papers of the collection are available for use upon request except those of Howard University which are for the present sealed.

EDMONDSON NOTES:

Interview seniors for work-study program

By DELORES COUSER

This year's Junior Class will have an eventful year, says Bill Morris, class president. At the first meeting Bill plans to be sponsored by the class, their class rings and the junior prom.

Other class officers, all of whom are cooperating with Bill in activity plans, are:

Donald Flaher, vice president; Joyce Mergle, secretary, and Karen Hocheder, treasurer. There are 15 members in the 11-B class. Advisors for the sub-junior class are Robert Rhinehart, Edward Roberts and Joseph Marshner.

A $1,500 scholarship is the first prize offered in the 13th annual Voice of Democracy Contest, now being conducted nationwide. The scholarship may be used at the college of the winner's choice.

"Talks on teaching, movies and field trips to other Future Teacher of America clubs are planned for the forthcoming year," says Anne Hooper, FTA president.

She said the club will also send representatives to the state conferences of the FTA.

A new addition to Edmondson's faculty is Dr. Oscar C. Stine, M. D.

He is an elected member of the American School of Health Association, which is devoted to leadership and efficiency in school health service.

ONCE AGAIN, seniors in the Commercial Department are being interviewed for the work study program, the 12-B's are being interviewed by Mrs. Helen Reimuller, work study coordinator.

After filling out several forms, they are told of the job opportunities available to them.

This program is designed to give the students experience in the business world. Those on the work study program will work and go to school on alternate weeks.

An early call will get help for employers

Baltimore area employers who need workers on short notice can now place an order for them as early as 7 a.m. each weekday morning through the Employment Service of the Department of Employment Security.

The Department has announced that it has begun opening its Employment Service Office at 116 W. Lombard St. earlier than usual as a special service to employers who find they have an unanticipated need for workers at the start of the day.

The categories most likely to be hired under these circumstances are unskilled laborers, construction workers, and hotel and restaurant workers.

Employers wishing to do their hiring by telephone can call Saratoga 7 - 5000.
