BIG THRILLS IN THE AMBULANCE SERVICE.

Redlands Boy Writes of His Experience on the Italian Front to a Friend

Mr. Edward Harper, the writer of this article, is the grandson of Mr. George W. Harper, of Still Pond.

The American ambulance men are having their time of thrills in the present moving events "over there," and are on duty as long hours as any branch of the service, and their danger while at work is constant.

A young member of the Stanford ambulance corps unit, Edward B. Harper, of Redlands, who is stationed in Italy, writes an extremely interesting letter to a young friend in San Bernardino, from which extracts are taken. The letter was written while sitting on a cot and using a suitcase for a table. He says:

"I am now at our front post, about two and a half kilometers from the front line. The wounded are brought in on stretchers, carried by two men, and if the cases are severe the dressings which have been put on in the trenches are changed, then we rush them back to the dressing stations, about ten kilometers away.

"The road has been shelled, and the holes have been filled up with young boulders so the feriti (wounded) have a rough ride.

"When we are going fast from necessity in order to get the wounded to the dressing station quickly, and hit a large bump, they will start shouting 'piano' and 'retardo.' After dark we must go a bit slower, for no lights can be used, and the road is narrow.

Perils of the Night Ride.

"There is a canal on one side, and a deep ditch on the other. It is quite thrilling. You go tearing along, blowing on a tin whistle, and straining your eyes to see the road. Suddenly a big camion looms up ahead and you turn out to pass it, trusting to luck you do not go six inches too far, and end up in the canal.

"Bang! Bang! The Austrians are shelling a bridge about 400 yards from our present location. We can see the flash and the smoke of the bursting shrapnel, and then hear the explosion.

"To go back to the ambulance ride. If you miss the camion train (a camion is a motor truck, and they usually go in trains), you will probably have to pass a train of field guns coming in or going out. On the whole it doesn't pay to go to sleep. I have never gone into the canal, but I have been hit by a camion, and suffered a bent axle and mud guard.

Living in the Big Noise.

("More shrapnel). They are now shelling a little town about half a mile in front of us. There are two batteries of big guns just across the road from us, and smaller guns on all sides. When the big boys go off the house rocks and the windows rattle. When they all get going the noise is terrific. They seem to like to lay a barrage about 2 a. m., though lately the time has been changed often There are also some big guns near our other front post, where I have just spent some days, so I am getting used to the noise.

After the Austrians Left.

"This place is quite interesting. It was held awhile by the Austrians, and the first time I saw it, the day after it had been retaken, the dead were strewn all around, some dead for six days, and it was far from pleasant. Put now it has all been fixed up. There are seven or more bullet holes in the wall of our room, on the second floor, but the house (which is used as a gas abri) has been thoroughly cleansed and disinfected.

"We go back to the dressing station to eat. The food is very good. I am getting so fond of the famous native dish that I must have a big plate of macroni to start each meal. We don't eat any breakfast, and it is so hot now that we don't eat much meat. As we are in the lowlands and the marshes we take quinine at every meal to ward off malaria. Good drinking water is hard to get, but I am becoming used to the 'wine of the country' now.

Courtesy of Italians to Americans

"The Italians certainly treat us fine. We are given officers' quarters and food, an orderly to shine our shoes (when we are so fortunate as to be able to take them off at night), and, in fact, all the privileges and respect due officers is ours. The Italians are characteristically very polite, and do their best to make us feel at home. The officers are well educated and very patient with our efforts to learn Italian. We often find a soldier who has been in the United States and who talks English. At our other front post there is an Italian soldier from Los Angeles.

"I have secured some good pictures, but I cannot send them through the mail to you. You might recognize me in my tin hat, but I am sure my gas mask would prove an effective disguise.

"Of course the censor cuts out some of our letters, but that is as much for our benefit as his, and it must be. We try to be as vague as possible, and to leave out any suggestion of location, etc. But once in a while we are bound to make a slip, and the censor corrects it. At first I couldn't 'see it,' but now I am heartily in favor of the censorship.

Boy Howdy! The Luxury of Pajamas

"Last night for the first time in two weeks I was able to sleep in pajamas, instead of turning in for an hour between calls, in my clothes. Day before yesterday I even essayed a bath in a tin wash basin. The operation was highly successful.

"I must be cutting this letter short, for it is about time to go for food and the feriti are almost ready.

"Letters are great treasures over here, so don't neglect your Italian friend.

E. B. H."

Resolutions of Respect

At a special meeting of the Betterton Chapter of the Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the following action was taken:

Whereas, Our Heavenly Father has called from his earthly labors to his reward our brother, Fountain Crew, a loyal and consistent member, and prompt, thorough and painstaking official of the League, ever manifesting a deep interest in the spiritual welfare and progress of the Association, and

Whereas, Recognizing his sterling qualities as a christian and a valued member of the church and league as well as a useful and highly esteemed citizen, a kind and loving husband, and desiring to give public expression of the esteem in which he was held by his associates and co-laborers in the Lord's vineyard. Therefore be it

Resolved, That we deeply mourn the passing from our midst of one so faithful and so helpful, and while we sincerely regret the loss, we rejoice in the knowledge that when the summons came it found him prepared and we take comfort in the thought that having drawn the curtain over the scenes of this life, he has joined the blessed society of the redeemed in Heaven, and be it.

Resolved, That we tender our loving, heart-felt sympathy to the sorrow-stricken widow of our departed brother and commend her for consolation to Him who doeth all things for the best and whose chastisements are dealt by a loving, tender and rersiful hand.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be placed upon the records of the Epworth League, a copy be sent to the bereaved widow and that they be published in the county papers.

President's Thanksgiving Proclamation

President Wilson has issued this proclamation, designating Nov. 28 as Thanksgiving Day:

By the President of the United States of America:

A Proclamation:

It has long been our custom to turn in the autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His many blessings and mercies to us as a nation. This year we have special and moving cause to be grateful and to rejoice.

God has in His good pleasure given us peace. It has not come as a mere cessation of arms, a mere relief from the strain and tragedy of war. It has come as a great triumph of right. Complete victory has brought us, not peace alone but the confident promise of a new day as well, in which justice shall replace force and jealous intrigue among the nations.

Our gallant armies have participated in a triumph which is not marred or stained by any purpose of selfish aggression. In a righteous cause they have won immortal glory and have nobly served their nation in serving mankind.

God has indeed been gracious. We have cause for such rejoicing as revives and strengthens in us all the best traditions of national history. A new day shines about us in which our hearts take new courage and look forward with new hope to new and greater duties.

While we render thanks for these things, let us not forget to seek the Divine guidance in the performance of these duties, and Divine mercy and forgiveness for all errors of act or purpose, and pray in all that we do we shall strengthen the ties of friendship and mutual respect upon which we must assist to build the new structure of peace and good will among the nations.

Wherefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the 28th day of November next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and invite the people throughout the land to cease upon that day from their ordinary occupations, and in their several homes and places of worship to render thanks to God, the Ruler of Nations.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done in the District of Columbia, this 16th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundrde and eighteen, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty third.

By the President,
WOODROW WILSON.
Robert Lansing, Secretary of State.

Mr. George Returns Home.—Mr. J. E. George, of Sudlersville, who has been undergoing treatment in Philadelphia and Baltimore, and who last Saturday underwent an operation at St. Agnes' Hospital, Baltimore, returned to his home in Sudlersville Thursday evening. Though weakened by the long trip, following so soon after the operation, Mr. George rallied nicely and spent a comfortable night. His friends in Kent as well as Queen Anne hope for his speedy return to perfect health.
