UNDER THE STARS AND STRIPES

Mr. Charles W. Kibler received a letter from his son, Lieut. J. T. Kibler, on Tuesday. Lieut. Kibler is getting along nicely and is out of the hospital.

Chestertown friends of Capt. Carey Jarman received interesting letters from his this week. Capt. Jarman has been in some heavy fighting at the front, but escaped unhurt.

Mr. W. F. Russell, Jr., wrote his parents this week from France. He is well.

Sergeant Farnk Jarman is on his way to the United States, according to letters from France. Sergeant Jarman has been in a hospital, whether from sickness or from injury is not known. A royal welcome will be extended to him on his return.

Nearly 5,000,000 letters were received in this country from France this week.

Letters were received from Sergeant Colin F. Duyer this week from France dated Nov. 2. Sergeant Duyer took part in twenty-one days of fighting in the front line and escaped unhurt through the dreadful carnage when the crest of Hun wave broke against the iron wall or American valor. Sergeant Duyer sent some interesting souvenirs from France.

Sergeant Irving Sparks wrote his parents a letter from France on the date of Nov. 2. Sergeant Sparks is now stationed at Verdun.

A letter from Mr. Olin B. Stafford follows in part:

I am well and getting along fine. I have seen much action and since arriving here have not missed as much as three weeks away from the front. For the last two days we have been back from the front and are now at rest and out of hearing of the big guns and shell fire. I was in the biggest battle that the Americans have been in yet. I drove to the advance dressing station with the shells falling all around me and I regret to say that I saw many of our brave boys killed or wounded. One of our ambulances was hit direct by a shell which took off all of the rear part, killing two men. But the driver kept his nerve with him and got the car to the rear and saved the rest of the men. If I had time I would mention many such things as this which I have witnessed. One shell bursted so close to me that it throwed dirt on me and a part of the shell landed at my feet. If one at home could have had our experience and lived through it as we were lucky enough to, it would be an experience never to be forgotten. I never will. But we are today rejoicing at our victory. We are now billeted far behind the lines and in a town that is of fairly good size. You can bet that we are mighty glad to live at ease once more.

Corporal Bryan Newton, who was sick in a hospital in France, recoverd and went back to the line in time for active fighting.

A letter from Mr. Olin B. Stafford written on Nov. 2, says he recently saw Colin Duyer, Bryan Newton, Loice Rust and Hubbard Townhend, all being Kent county boys.

Sergeant Colin Duyer has seen much active service in the front-line trenches of France. The following letter is to his mother, written on Nov. 3, after having spent 21 straight days in the trenches. Mr. Duyer escaped unhurt. The letter, in patr, follows:

This is the first opportunity I have had to write for nearly a month, as we have been in the last American drive, as you no doubt have already seen in the papers. I came through without a scratch. It was hard to see lots of my friends stop one of the Hun bullets or a piece of shrapnel, but it is to be expected in a drive such as we were in.

We marched all night and at daybreak the next morning found ourselves in "no man's land" waiting for our barrage to open on the enemy. This opened up at the zero hour and when it lifted we went over the top of a large hill in the face of machine guns, riflemen and a heavy counter artillery barrage by the Huns.

The discipline of the men was great and it reminded me of when we were on the drill field, the way the boys kept the battle formation. A great deal of our fighting was in thick woods where the fighting was hard and we were in constant danger of running into machine gun nests. Lots of these were fired from tall trees where they had the guns mounted on platforms. The number of casualities we had I think was much less than that of the enemy, not counting the prisoners we took.

The fighting on this front sure separated the men from the boys and also was a good place to find out just how much nerve a fellow might have. I'll tell you it made "Christians" of a lot of the fellows.

Capt. Jarman also pulled through all right, I am glad to say. I saw Lieut. Frank Hines today.

I came out of action without a thing except what I had on, but gathered a few souvenirs off the Germans.

Letter From War Industries Board

Highways transport facilities at the farmer's gate and—at every farmer's gate—must immediately suggest the initial phase of overseas distribution; must make a picture in the farmer's mind of the movement of the products of his soil and labor from his own gate through to the distant points of the world; to Europe, to Algiers, and the Orient.

The highways transport service is the first step in the great system of transportation to the sea and then on the merchant marine to the far points of the world.

Food must begin to move soon from every hill, through every valley of the great country behind our shores, down to the shipping points before we can start our ships from the ports and fulfill our duty; and with the promise of the war's end before us, the Highways Transport Committee throughout this land could and should render a peacetime service by stimulating highways transport of nourishment and supplies so badly needed. Routes and channels from shipping points must be opened up and efficiently maintained, and our merchant marine must be built up to meet the demands for distribution overseas.

Resistance in any form to the free movement of farm products must be reduced and eliminated, and the most efficient utilization of man-power must be introduced wherever possible.

The United States Shipping Board urges that this message be carried through you and Regional Chairmen to the state organizations and on down through your great body of patriotic men whose visions can well embrace the crying need of their brothers in other lands for help.

EDWARD N. HURLEY,
Chairman.

Germany Helpless.—Many have expressed themselves to us as somewhat apprehensive that Germany will not submit to the terms of peace that the Allies will fix at the peace conference. Here is how the experts look at: On the left the British Army of occupation will stand along the Rhine with a spearhead thrown across the river at Cologne and spreading like a fan on a 30-kilometer circle. At Coblenz the Americans will occupy a similar position and at Mainz, still further up the River, the French will hold the third great highway into the heart of Germany. Thus three main roads to Berlin itself, each held by a strong, fully equipped army, ready to sweep forward at a moment's notice, will be held open and constitute a threat against which there can be no resistance. Germany is at the mercy of her opponents.

Thanksgiving Day In Kent

Thursday, which was observed in the usual quiet fashion in Kent, was a day of exceptional thanksgiving this year, and our people gathered around the festive board with thanks to the Creator of the Universe for many blessings.

Chief among the great gifts was, of course, the blessing of peace. In every one of the many Kent county homes peace breathed a message of happiness. On the last three Thanksgiving giving days the shadow of war fell on many tables, but this year happy parents, brothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts rejoiced with the knowledge that no more is the deadly shrapnel dealing out its daily toll of lives; nor the deep-throated cannon causing death and destruction in the ranks of our nation. Though our soldier boys were far away last Thursday, peace spanned the 3,000 mile stretch of ocean, and caused the spirits of those at home and those abroad to unite over a happy Thanksgiving that forecasted many future joys for the people of the earth.

Wood Fuel Committees Urged.—To help meet the coal shortage, the Forest Service of the United States urges that wood-fuel committees should at once be organized in every community where they have been allowed to lapse and appointed if none exist. They are needed to do many things, such as finding total fuel needs, whether the reserve is adequate, and, where wood can be obtained, pointing out means of getting it ready for use and organizing distribution and marketing.

To Bring Back American Dead.—The bodies of American boys who gave up their lives on the fields of France will be brought back to this country, if the nearest relatives of the dead so desires it. Otherwise they will rest in a great American cemetery in that country. The work of exhuming the bodies of American men and shipping them to this country will require many months, but it will be done. Every American soldier wore an identification tag, by which they can be identified.
