PRESIDENT WILSON has reached France and has been given a hearty welcome by the French. His enemies in America are still criticizing him, but apparently the President is little concerned about what is being said. He is pursuing the even tenor of his way.

COMING HOME

The following poem which appeared in the New York Times is one of the most fitting tributes to our soldier boys that we have read and we gladly publish it for the benefit of our readers:

Hail! our conquering heroes come!
Fame unblemished! victory won!
Worlds and nations safe once more
From the deadly cannon's roar!
From the savage lust and hate,
From the fangs of savage fate!
Went they forth to help, to save
France and England—Belgium brave—
Went they forth when hope seemed lost.
They have won, tho great the cost!
Hail, all hail! give homage due
To our boys in brown and blue!
To our heroes! To our Yanks!
Heroes of the trench and tanks!
Heroes of the air and sea,
Heroes who have made man free!
Heroes of immortal fame!
Led by Pershing! hail the name!
Give them welcome, give them cheer!
Give them care and comforts dear!
Give them love and give them joys,
Give them praise—our soldier boys!
They have given blood and life
In the deadly zones of strife!
Some have left an arm behind!
Some are lame and some are blind!
Give them gratitude and love,
Give them blessings from above!
Hail our heroes of the fight—
Victory for the true, the right!
They, Old Glory have unfurled
O'er the freedom of the World.

To Make Our Navy Second To None

Neither the end of hostilities nor proposals for a League of Nations has altered the policy of the general board of the navy in regard to making the American Navy second to none in the world. Rear-Admiral Charles J. Badger, chairman of the executive committee of the board, on Thursday told the House Naval Affairs Committee that the navy should be equal to that of any other nation by 1925 and urged that sufficient appropriations to make this possible be made by Congress.

NOTICE TO PATRONS

Owing to war conditions, the County Board of Education was disposed to be very lenient in the application of the Maryland school attendance law. It was recognized that labor requirements demanded the utilization of all the resources available, and, in the absence of adult help, school children were compelled to work as never before. While the cessation of the war has not entirely relieved the situation, still the same necessity for child labor does not exist, and the Board of Education must insist upon more general observance of the attendance law. It is felt that the liberty accorded to children for what were considered legitimate and pressing needs, has been somewhat abused and children are now allowed to remain away from school for various unlawful reasons. The Board would like also to remind parents that outside of educational and legal reasons for keeping their children in school, the financial aspect is worthy of consideration, since state aid is largely dependent upon the general average of attendance. The Board takes this method of calling attention to the existence of the law, impressing upon parents their obligations in the case, warning them against possible prosecution for violations of the statute, and appealing to them from the standpoint of their children's educational welfare.
