THREE HUNDRED guests greeted Bishop and Mrs. James H. Jackson, Saturday, at a reception that marked the 25th anniversary of their marriage.

Rev., Mrs. Jackson married 25 years

Bishop and Mrs. James H. Jackson celebrated their 25th anniversary of their marriage at a reception in the Madison Avenue branch YWCA, Saturday afternoon.

Assisted by Mrs. Ruth Moyd, Mrs. Rose Brown and their daughter, Miss Diane Jackson, the couple received 300 guests, who showered them with cards, gifts and good wishes.

Mrs. Jackson was lovely in a floor-length gown of blue chiffon with silver trim. Her accessories were silver and she wore a small tiara in her hair.

Nixon Thanks God

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has issued his annual Thanksgiving Day proclamation, asking Americans to welcome older citizens into their homes to share the Nov. 26 observance. He added:

"Although some may see only strife, we give thanks that this nation moves closer each day to peace for world. And we give thanks all its citizens and the for God's strength and guidance upon which we confidentdly rely today and every day.

TEEN TALK

By MICHAEL BELFIELD

Many good and capable men were put into office by last Tuesday's election. In B-More for the first time a black State's Attorney and a black Congressman were elected.

Milton Allen was elected to the State's Attorney's office and Parren Mitchell was elected to the office of Congressman from the 7th district.

I think these were both good choices and feel these men will do a good job helping to solve the problems of the black community.

For a long time Carver has needed a field house and nothing was being done about it, so the students decided to build one themselves.

Under the direction of Clyde Bryant, and Anthony Watson the students from the carpentry and masonry departments are building the project using the materials supplied by the school board.

Ground-breaking was October 9 and the foundation for the field house has already been laid. The building after completion will be 20 feet wide, 30 feet long and 12 feet high.

It will be used to store the school's athletic equipment. All the work done on the project is being done by the students.

Target date for completion of the field house is set for around Thanksgiving.

Here's a little poem I thought you'd like to read about this month:

NOVEMBER
November comes, and November goes
With the last red berries and the first white snows.
With night coming early and dawn coming late
And ice in the bucket and frost by the gate
The fires burn and the kettle sings
And the earth sinks to rest until next spring.

There are a couple of dances and cabarets coming up in the near future. One will be at the James Brown Motor Inn on November 27. The Softones will be the featured guests.

And on the 19th there will be a Turkey Hop at the Lexington Terrace Recreation Center. I'll have more details about these dances in next week's column, so watch for it.

Coppin emphasizes inner-city teaching

Coppin State College is entering its sixth year of working with Project Mission, a teacher education program designed to attract and prepare trained teachers for teaching in inner city schools.

During the first five years of the program, 41 Coppin students were enrolled. Of this number, 36 are now teaching in inner city area Public Scrools.

Looking at this year's enrollment, Coppin has 14 of its students in the program.

When the project was conceived, its aim was to first attract competent college seniors and liberal arts graduates to teach in tre inner city; and second, to design a program of teacher education that would equip them with the skills needed for working with children in disadvantaged communities.

• • •

Also participating in the program at the outset was Morgan State College and Towson State College. Funded originally by the Ford Foundation and the participating colleges, Project Mission now receives its funds from the Baltimore City Department of Education.

Intern teachers enrolled in the program spend half a day in classroom teaching activities under the supervision of a master teacher. The remaining time they devote to their college studies.

Each intern receives an annual stipend of $1500 beginning with orientation in August. Intern teachers completing the program are given preferential treatment in teaching assignments.

The impact of Project Mission on teacher education programs can be noted perhaps by the modifications made in the teacher-training programs of the participating colleges.

Experimentation, longer practice teaching programs and the stress on the use of relevant materials are some of the steps that have been taken to improve the educational program for teachers of inner-city children.
