CPHA urges Council halt Zoning

The Citizens Planning and Housing Association today urged the Baltimore City Council to refuse to consider further amendments to the new zoning ordinance which has been awaiting Council approval since 1968.

In a letter to all of the city's Councilmen, CPHA Executive Director Christopher C. Hartman explained:

"We feel that the community has had ample opportunity through extensive hearings to present amendments to the Ordinance and that if allowed to continue at this time the amendment process could serve to not only delay, but possibley defeat the Ordinance. Further amendments we feel can best be considered after the Ordinance itself is passed into law.

CPHA, after years of study, has determined that the pending Zoning Ordinance is far superior to our present zoning law, essential to the orderly growth of Baltimore City, and strongly urges its speedy approval."

The city's largest citizens' organization also requested that the City Council give full consideration to the ordinance immediately on its return from its Christmas recess.

"CPHA stands ready to aid any neighborhood in working out zoning problems," Mr. Hartman added.

SANTA MEETNG

Dates and nuts in plentiful supply

VIRGINIA McLUCKIE, FOOD ECONOMIST

It is not too early to plan and purchase the makings for holiday baked goods and confections. December becomes a very short month with many added activities.

Planning ahead does make tasks easier.

You will probably notice a difference in the amount you have been spending at the market because there is always some special kind of ingredient not normally on your shopping list or on your pantry shelf.

Generally speaking the amounts and costs of special items are in line with today's current prices except where supplies are short. In fruits, the popular items include candied fruit, dark and golden seedless raisins, muscat raisins, dates and figs. Dates are in liberal supply, particularly those from California.

Raisin supplies are about the same as last year. The raisin carry over stock makes up for the decrease of 14 percent in the 1970 grape crop. This year the supply of prunes has an increase of 38 percent which makes them plentiful, especially in the medium sized prunes. It is less expensive to buy candied fruits by the pound, in bulk, than to buy in small size packages. Figure costs per pound if you choose to use the small packages.

You may only have use for small amount of any one kind of candied fruit, but costs per pound will differ with the size packages. Dried apricots are in short supply and expensive. Use kitchen scissors dipped in warm water frequently to do cutting of dried and candied fruits with the least effort.

More nuts are used for the holiday season than any other time of the year. The four big tree nuts are almonds, walnuts, filberts and pecans. This year the almond crop is record large, seven percent over last year. The crop of filberts is up sixteen percent and walnut crops are slightly above last year. The big decrease in production is in pecans.

Crops from improved varieties is down 40 percent and native type crops are down 20 percent. Expect pecan prices to be higher. Prices for other nuts are close to those of last year. Black walnuts so prized for their flavor are not listed in production reports, however they are in the markets in shelled form only in seasonally heavy supply. Peanuts are in heavy supply and economically priced.

As a consumer you have the choice of nuts in the shell, or kernels in whole, half, broken, chopped or ground form. It takes two and one-half to 3 and one-half pounds of shell nuts to yield a pound of kernels. The labor of shelling may in your choice of kernels as is made into a family fun project or you have excess time compared to money.

Compare cost per pound in your choice of kernels as the smaller the unit of purchase the higher will be the cost per pound. Nuts are rich in fat and as the fat becomes rancid the stale taste develops. Keep nuts in an air-tight jar in the refrigerator or freeze the nuts for longer storage. Salted nuts stale faster than unsalted forms. Nuts in the shell will keep several months at room temperature.

Recipe for this week is for Prune Betty.

Prune Betty is made with one-third cup butter or margarine, three cups soft stale bread crumbs, two cups cooked prunes, one apple, one-half cup brown sugar, packed; one-half tasspoon cinnamon, one-half cup cooking liquid from prunes and one tablespoon lemon juice.

Melt butter and pour over bread, tossing bread to mix evenly. Pit and chop prunes. Pare, core and slice the apple. In shallow greased baking dish array sugar and cinnamon apple and prunes, sprinkl range layers of bread, over fruit. Top layer should be bread crumbs.

Combine prune liquid and lemon juice, and sprinkle over all. Bake in moderately hot oven, 375 degrees F 40 to 45 minutes, until apples are tender and top is browned. Serve warm or cold, plain or with cream. Serves 5 or 6.

December 4

The Golden Rule Guild for Mental Health, Inc. is sponsoring a Christmas sale of handmade articles at the Baltimore City Psychiatric Day Center, 2706 N. Charles Street. The sale will be held from December 2 through December 4 from 10:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

Before you shampoo, remove all loose hairs and lint from the brush and comb. Work up a good lather and comb and brush your hair while the shampoo is on it. Helps to keep comb and brush clean.

Bibles listed for Christmas giving

By LOUIS CASSELS

If you accept the promise that Christmas is supposed to have some religious significance, you're wide open to the suggestion that the best possible Christmas gift is a Bible.

The suggestion is especially valid this year, as several excellent new editions of the Bible are available for Christmas giving.

Heading the list are the new English Bible and the new American Bible. The new English Bible is the work of British protestant scholars. The new American Bible was produced by American catholic scholars. Both are fresh translations from the original biblical languages (Hebrew and Greek) into eminently readable contemporary English.

The new English Bible (Oxford and Cambridge Universit, Presses, standard edition $8.95) seems to me somewhat superior in clarity and elegance of language, but I would give high marks also to the new American Bible, (St. Anthony Guild Press or Catholic Book Publishing Co., $8.50). Neither translation has any narrow "denominational" bias, and there is no reason at all why protestants should not read the catholic translation or vice versa.

If you feel like splurging on a gift for someone special, your best bet is the new deluxe edition of the Jerusalem Bible with 32 magnificent color plates by Salvadore Daly (Doubleday $15.95).

The Jerusalem Bible has been available in English since 1966 and has won wide acclaim from both Catholic and Protestant scholars. This large-type edition, printed on a special kind of paper that's reputed to last for 2,000 years, is about as handsome a Bible as you'll ever see, and the Dali paintings are magnificent, a striking departure from his old surrealist style.

At the other extreme in price is good news for modern man, the fantastic little paperback published by the American Bible Society. It is the new Testament in straightly, idiomatic English, illustrated by 200 line drawings. Some 34 million copies have been sold, which is sufficient proof of its appeal for readers of all ages.

This is a good choice for distribution to a long list of people: the price is only 35 cents. That's below the actual cost of printing. The loss is subsidized by the publisher, the nonprofit American Bible Society. You can find it on newsstands and in bookstores, or order it directly from the Society at 1865 Broadway, New York 10023.

For children, there are $4.95); and Bible for Children (Westminster, $4.95). Perhaps the best of the lot is the series of paperback Bible story books with full-color, full-page illustrations, published under the arch books label (Concordia Publishing Co., 39 several super new books of Bible stories, including young readers' book of Bible Stories (Abingdon, $7.95); the Taize Picture Bible (Fortress Press, cents each, set of six for $2.25).

If your shopping list includes a blind person, an elderly person with failing vision, you might consider a "talking Bible." The American Bible Society has recorded its Goods News For Modern Man on records for $6.75, or in cassettes for $29. All orders to the society, for books or recordings, should be accompanied by a 5 per cent fee

Mrs. Vessells at Probation 25 years

Mrs. Frances M. Vessells, supervisor in the Probation Department, Supreme Bench was recently honored for twenty-five years service to the Court.

At a brief ceremony in the Court House, a certificate commemorating the occasion was presented. Signed by the Chief Judge and Chairman of the Probation Committee it commends Mrs. Vessells for meritorious and devoted service to the Court and extends the appreciation of the entire Bench.

Mrs. Vessells joined the Probation Department in 1945 after teaching in the Baltimore Public School System for fifteen years. She was promoted to supervisory status in June, 1957 and has worked in the Family Services Division throughout her career.
