MUSICAL MOMENTS

Ballets Africains impressive in first Baltimore showing

By ADAH K. JENKINS

"Les Ballets Africains de la Republique de Guinee" (French African Dancers from the Republic of Guinea) were acclaimed vigorously by a large audience that filled Ford's Theatre Monday evening for the opening performance of a three-day engagement.

The troupe of 36 portrays vividly the culture and social life of their people as Keita Fodeba has culled it from over 30 communities in Guinea.

With exotic tropical backdrops and effective lighting, yet with a minimum of scenery, they convey much of the mystery, pulsing life and practical philosophy of Africa.

The frightening masks, huge ritual figures and whirling medicine men were an awesome sight. On the other hand, a pathetic story of life, marriage and death had a fundamental simplicity and dignity.

This viewer was impressed by the virility and strength of both men and women, even boldness, in the case of the girls of high art of grace. The male dancers, with the muscular development of athletes, did what is impossible in leaps and other exhibition tactics.

Even in the uninhibited pas de deux of several dances, when the performers made full use of the waist up, there was not the suggestive impression often prevalent in our sophisticated Western dances. All was done with a severe combination of art and the reality of life.

The delicate charm and restraint of the female dancers has let could match that of a 17th century minuet in Central Europe.

Throughout the program one had the same recognition of great roots strength that was felt when witnessing the famous Russian and Israeli Ballet programs.

The consistent repetition, which is essential in all folk music, does not become monotonous. Rather like the seasons in nature, it seems inevitable. One of the most striking dances was the "Flame" ritual, with the dancers bowed low, while the dancers whirled in an hypnotic frenzy, applying their torches to their own bodies! Simultaneously, drums, wind instruments were employed, including some "long" horns. The sound and shocked with hands simultaneously.

The music was played on a delicate tone, with strings stretched across a wooden box. An African type of xylophone, the "belaphone" gave out a sweet tone, being constructed from gourds and wood.

A variety of drums, played with astonishing skill added to the interest of each scene, as they were constructed in many different shapes and elaborately decorated in raffia and metal.

At times the drummers sustained two different rhythms on their instruments while keeping the dancers with their feet and heads.

An engaging flute player performed with equal skill through some last month. Without benefit of tuning fork or instrument the dancers began their music in unison exactly on pitch.

The main voices had a high-pitched, reedy timbre in songs of joy and exaltation, while in sorrow they changed to a much lower tone.

Keita Fodeba choreographer, explained that the harmony used in several of the songs is native to Guinea.

"Les Ballets Africains" brings home strikingly the lesson that not only music and dancing are universal languages, but that life itself, with joy, sorrow, tragedy and humor is universal, whether in Africa or in America.

THE SANCTUARY Choir of Douglas Memorial Community Church, conducted by James Spencer Hammond, minister of music, presented the first Music - Devotion Hour in the 1960-61 Series at Grace Presbyterian church last Sunday afternoon.

The Douglas singers gave an impressive program of notable religious music, including works by Handel, Palestrina, Mozart, Schubert, Will James, John Ireland and Thomas Matthews.

Following the offertory there was a group of spirituals. Soloists were Esther McCrady, soprano, Prindie Hawkins, contralto and William P. Williams, tenor. Juanita Hall Davis accompanied the choir at the organ.

After the benediction by Rev. Marion C. Bascom Sr., pastor of Douglas, there was a fellowship hour in the church hall with Rev. Robert T. Newbold, Jr. and his parishioners as hosts.

THE WOMEN'S Association of the Baltimore Symphony, with 33 local organizations, held a champagne party this week in the London Room of the Marylander to discuss the current season of concerts for young people and tots being given by the orchestra.

Herbert Grossman, assistant conductor of the Symphony, gave a vivid description of the "Lollipop" Series which began last week in Glen Burnie and will be continued Sunday, Nov. 20th at 2:30 p.m. at the Lyric.

Although these are especially geared for youngsters from 5 to 8 years, their appeal sounds fascinating for all ages, including adults. The musicians will circulate in the audience, giving the young listeners an opportunity to handle the various instruments.

Mr. Grossman expressed a firm belief in the psychological value of this procedure, which he stated "will pay off not only in increased audiences for symphonic music in the future, but in listeners who will get genuine pleasure because of actual contact with what makes music when they were children."

Mrs. Alfred Ver Valen, president of the Women's Association, commended the group and the affiliated organizations upon their project which supplies complimentary tickets for symphony concerts to institutions and to public school children who cannot afford to pay.

Mr. Black announced that free lollipops and "symphony" balloons will be distributed to the youngsters after Sunday's concert at the Lyric. Tickets for this event may be obtained at Central Ticket Agency, 206 N. Liberty St.

Hostesses for the party were Mrs. Stanley Mossman and Mrs. Victor Frankil, assisted by Mrs. Ver Valen and Mrs. William Grainger, one of the founders of the Association.

Hazel, Roach, Silver due at Morgan Sunday

Hazel Scott and her famous trio will be featured at a jazz concert Sunday, Nov. 20, at 5 p.m. in the Polytechnic auditorium.

The affair will be sponsored by the Morgan State College Chapter of the Maryland Classified Employees Association for the benefit of its scholarship fund.

In addition to the headliner, the four - hour show will also feature such greats as the Horace Silver Quintet and max Roach and his quinet.

Two students, a freshman, Joe L. Alston, and a sophomore, Henry Johnson were the recipients of awards from the James H. Carter Memorial scholarship fund this year.

From the proceeds Sunday, the Morgan Chapter hope to be able to increase the number of scholarships to three next year.

Mrs. Ella H. Pierce is president of Morgan Chapter.

* * *

THE FABULOUS Hazel Scott was born in Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, West Indies, and appeared as a child prodigy at the age of, three.

When she was eight years old, she entered the Juilliard School of Music in New York and began playing in her mother's orchestra when only fourteen.

She created the musical craze of swinging the classic when she started to tour with her own combo in this country and abroad.

She has appeared as a soloist with such fine orchestras as the New York Philharmonic, the Philadelphia Symphony and the Pittsburgh Symphony.

Correction

In a story published Tuesday, the AFRO incorrectly gave the name of Mrs. Marilyn Bushrod as Mrs. Evelyn Bushrod.

The story dealt with a youngster who had fallen in a hole at Druid Hill Park.

BALTIMORE AFTER DARK

On The Town

WITH THE PUB CRAWLERS

Greetings latch-on for the ride while the Crawlers make around the burg.

The swing into the gay spots this seven showed a definite left - up in goings - on. Maybe it's the rapid approach of Turkey Day with St. Nick close behind.

Whatever the reason, guys and dolls are haning onto those coins.

On the flip side of the picture, though operators are still making additions and improvements to catch the eye of Mr. and Mrs. Nitelife.

Case in point is the Carnival Lounge out Popular Grove way.

As of the past seven, this spot has a food program that promises to snatch its share of the dining and wining set.

The kitchen is under the personal direction of Dick Dixon, retired Navy chief steward.

In his 24 years of sailing the seas, Dick has captured the secret of, some of, the most exotic dishes in the world.

He and Watty, the manager, invite you in for a sample.

While chowing, of course, you are soothed by the organ magic of Cornell Muldrow.

* * *

UP THE ROAD a piece, personable Morris Richmond promises the house will hop in the coming week.

There's good reason. Beginning this weekend, the center stage spotlight will play on the Mell-o-Jacks.

These swinging cats are returning to the Big B after a long stay in the Big Town where they were a smash.

Down Glen Burnie way, Sammy Jay and his "Swinging Affairs" are on cloud nine.

While crooner Hiram Hawkins, a regular here, makes a set in the old Dominion, pretty Delores Linn is standing in.

Backed by the Jack Perkins Combo, she makes with the nice sounds.

* * *

SLIDING TO the Eastside of the burg, Northend End Lounge has two wild shindings set up just before Turkey Day.

Partners Floyd Bartz and Jimmy Carroll are throwing a birthday party or the third party, Irvin Sutton, Wednesday night.

The preceeding night will see the lads and lassies from Social Security throw their usual boss get-together.

Giving both events musical backing is the combo of that whaling young blood, Gary Bartz, Floyd's son.

While still on the morning side of the town stop in at Club Sara, Fayette St. near Bond.

A more gay bunch you'll never see. And they do swing there, too.

* * *

GETTING BACK to the evening side Crawlers gave a listen to Earl Omaro at the Knotty Pine.

Shimmy time is something else here.

At Pennsylvania and Fulton, couldn't resist the lure of the cool cooing of Ruby Glover at Red Fox.

She and the Count Lantz men were in top form. Drop in and dig'em... say hello to Vicky, Irene and Delores while you are about it.

Just around the corner, Maceo has a hit with his businessmen's lunch.

Served in the beauty and quiet of the fabulous Maceo's Lounge, it's the most. Try it.

* * *

SPEAKING OF food, Tom Wilson continues to dish it out.

During his spare moments, Tom, the dean of Pennsylvania Avenue, will let you in on the why and wherefores of the Avenue of Fascination.

You'll find another hospitable old timer at the Vilma. Wendell Wilson, who remembers when, invites you in to set a spell.

While there, sample some of the niceties of food and drink that have made this spot notable.

Chick's Show Bar is still just that.

Here you'll catch some of the better acts on the local scene.

As usual, anchor man is the way out Flink. Mickey Fields and his band is a pretty bad set in itself.

Make it there, man, like it's something else.

* * *

WALLY GOLDMAN'S Wagon Wheel keeps rolling. Times and King Draper's Trio make it so.

Jones Cocktail Lounge's Jitterbugs, and lovely Lil are presiding over the rear lounge.

For a quit chit-chat over one for the road, this is the spot.

A few blocks away, you'll run into Bob and Lou at the Astoria.

Don't forget the Jazz Concert at Poly Sunday. Not only will you be giving a much needed hand to the MCEA Scholarship Fund, but look how you'll come out in the deal.

The international lady of the piano, Hazel Scott, Horace Silver and Max Roach yuintet will combine to serve the sounds.

Meeting it all will be the dapper Bob Marina, D. C. song man. Get your tickets now, it's the only thing jazz lovers are talking about.

That's it for now... go have a ball and we'll dig you on the other side of the next seven!
