Dr. Cardozo, 79, buried Tuesday

"He was a true physician, one who served faithfully many long years.

"Many times he was called from his home when he had not proper rest.

"But his life was a life well - spent. He was useful to his community."

These were the words the Rev. Richard P. Hall used to eulogize Dr. Francis Cardozo, Baltimore physician for half a century.

He died Feb. 21 at Freedmen's Hospital in Washington at the age of 79 years old.

The Rev. Mr. Hall, who is pastor of Mt. Calvary AME Church, Towson, presided at the funeral services for Dr. Cardozo, held at Bethel AME Church, Baltimore, Tuesday.

THREE OTHER ministers also spoke during the 75-minute services.

They were, the Revs. Edward G. Carroll, pastor of Sharp Street Methodist Church; Reginald Daniels, Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church and Robert Newbold, Grace Presbyterian.

The Rev. Mr. Carroll saw Dr. Cardozo as "a man who made his impact upon the community not only as a doctor, a healer, but as a Christian friend."

He said: "He passed along to others the joy and the happiness of life, not only on the tennis court but in his family and in the community."

"All who knew him felt the influence of a person who had come in contact with God and wanted the news known by all."

THE REV. Mr. Daniels recalled another well - known old Baltimorean, George McMechen, veteran lawyer, died last week at the age of 89. He said of the two men, "We are witnessing the passing of some fine citizens of this community, recently, two men, who in their day, gave full service.

"Dr. Cardozo had a sense of humor, and a deep understanding.

"Toward the end of his life, he had extreme moments of loneliness, and we talked together when he needed his help, I could help.

"I am certain there was a man who served God."

THE REV. Mr. Newbold said, "A song of Dr. Cardozo's is ended; but the melody lingers on. It lives in the lives of those he touched.

"Those who knew him, realize the elements of mortality.

"Those he leaves behind can take confidence that he exchanged his old song for a new song."

A TELEGRAM from AME Bishop Frank Madison Reid at Kittrell College, North Carolina, extended sympathy.

Other resolutions came from Brantley Avenue Neighborhood Club which praised Dr. Cardozo as a good neighbor.

And, from members of the Mt. Gilboa AME Church, Catonsville, the Rev. W. G. Bryan, pastor, who said he was "a true and loyal friend, and a very fine doctor."

Soloists were Sister Bennett, Jr., Mrs. Jeanette Holmes and Mrs. Lottie Henderson.

DR. CARDOZO, whose residence was 1028 Brantley Ave., retired in 1953, and went to live with his daughter, Mrs. Edith Cardozo Miller, in Washington.

He returned to Baltimore in 1955, and was married to his second wife the former Mrs. Mary Sharp Smith, a nurse.

Before retiring, he served on the staff of both Provident and Johns Hopkins Hospitals and from 1938-48, he was physician for the Mutual Benefit Society.

A CHARTER member of the Baltimore Branch NAACP, Dr. Cardozo at one time served on the national NAACP board.

During the 1920's he was national tennis champion.

An accomplished musician, Dr. Cardozo played the piano and the violin and, when he was a young man, performed in N.Y.'s Carnegie Hall.

He was a Mason, a member of the Omega Psi Phi fraternity, the American Woodmen, and the Monumental Medical Association.

DR. CARDOZO was born Feb. 14, 1882, in Charleston, S.C., the son of the late Rev. Isaac M. Cardozo, a Methodist minister, and the late Mrs. Elizabeth Williamson Cardozo.

He was a cousin of associate Supreme Court Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo, who died in 1938 without acknowledging his colored relative.

Dr. Cardozo was graduated from Lincoln University in 1903, and Howard University Medical School in 1909. His early schooling was in Charleston.

His first wife was the former Miss Fannie Alexander, niece of the late Rev. William Alexander, founder and pastor of Sharon Baptist Church, and one of the founders of the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers. They were married 44 years before her death in Jan. 1953.

Dr. Cardozo first set up his office at 428 N. Gilmor St. in 1909. He later moved to 1524 David Hill Ave. where he practiced until 1955, when he moved to the Brantley Ave. address.

BURIAL IS in Arbutus memorial Cemetery.

Employees of the Mutual Benefit Society served as pallbearers. Honorary pallbearers were physician associates including Drs. Joseph Mason, Garland Chissell and Forest Battis.

Surviving are the wife, his daughter, a stepdaughter, Mrs. Florine Hunt; a stepson, George Webster; a granddaughter, Miss Betty Cardozo King, a speech therapist in the Washington public schools; a grandson, Lorenzo Houston King, III, a Howard University student;

Also, two sisters, Mrs. R. H. Rutherford and Mrs. Estlanda Hamilton of Los Angeles, Calif.; a nephew, Dr. Henry Maxwell, Philadelphia.

Off The Beaten Path

By ELIABETH M. OLIVER

The Ides of March

March borrows many spring-like days from April but expected are many loud, boisterous days of wind, rain, snow, sleet.

The period from March 9 through March 15 is the ill - fated ides of March which received the black - mark when Shakespeare says a soothsayer warned Julius Caesar "Beware of the Ides of March" and his former friend Brutus, killed him on March 15.

Actually, March 15, the Ides, means the middle of the month. At that time the moon is supposed to be full. No harm there.

MARCH IS a time to fly kites, start out-door plants (after St. Patrick's Day on March 17).

Strangely, every boy in America brings out his marbles, draws a circle on the ground and starts shooting them at the same time in every village and hamlet, North, South, East, West.

SPRING ARRIVES March 21 and marks the Vernal Equinox, the green season. The sign of the Zodiac is Aries, a warring, quick - tempered sign. Those born under it are passable, but easily snappy, fiery and impatient.

DISREGARDING SNOW or blow all winter, and even now, his Dr. Joseph Mason, known about town for his raw vegetable diet through the years.

Although he past the half-century mark in age, Dr. Mason never wears a hat, overcoat or a hat, doesn't own any.

In perfect health, dashing and glowing with vim and vitality, he has no idea of temperature, effects on the body, never gets too cold or too warm.

Fix Your Tax

March brings Income Tax Fever, a disease with symptoms of wailing, gnashing of teeth, cold sweats and trembling.

A rash of "Income Tax Done Here" signs has broken out all over town. On North Ave. alone, within 20 blocks, there are 22 such establishments.

A survey of the prices charged (done last week by me, just for fun) disclosed that prices charged for the mathematical figuring range from $3 to $60.

STUDENTS of the Dunbar Night School commercial division, are sponsoring an Income Tax Clinic, next week, beginning Tuesday, March 7, at 3:30 p.m. Charles and McElderry St. entrance.

Internal Revenue Agents Irving Katz and Forrest L. Higgenbotham will be present to answer questions.

IF YOU have a yearning to spruce-up in spring attire, put on your Sunday-go-to-meeting togs and go out Thursday, March 9 to Bethel AME Church for a real treat.

The Mary Ann Social Hall, the Rev. Marcus G. Wood, pastor of Providence Baptist Church, will show a movie of his trip to Haiti.

The affair is sponsored by the Bethel Commission of Missions with Mrs. Mary Hawkins, president.

DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENT Kelly L. Jackson will return to his old pulpit Sunday at 11 a.m. as he serves as guest pastor at Sharp Street Methodist Church.

SUNDAY, March 5, is the date set for the Clever Kingjays second annual benefit cabaret party.

It's at the Winchester Street Armory from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.

THE BEAUTIFUL basket of flowers which went to Mrs. Daisey Gabrielle Sunday was from the Sigma Omega Kappa Sorority of teenagers with Misses Maria Clark and Barbara Prestwidge doing the presenting.

The orchid was given by the Northwest Child Study teenagers and presented by Misses Cecelia Chatman and Varonica Clark.

Jimmy Gilliam and Albert Burrell Jr. presented the Imperials' $100 check to the NAACP.

New Orleans teachers slated first pay check in 3 months

NEW ORLEANS (NNPA) A compromise plan to pay public school teachers here and release federal funds which have been withheld from the Orleans Parish (County) School Board since September will avert a showdown fight between federal and state authorities in contempt proceedings here Friday.

State and local officials have agreed upon the plan to pay New Orleans teachers who have received no pay checks since Nov. 17 because of the fight over desegregation of two public schools here.

The state treasurer will advance to the Orleans Parish Rebates. Salary checks have already been drawn for the teachers and should be in the hands by the end of the week.

THE SCHOOL board customarily borrows money from local banks to pay teachers' salaries. The Louisiana Legislature tied up the board's credit after four colored girls were admitted to William Frantz and McDonogh No. 19 schools Nov. 14.

Gov. Jimmie Davis and segregationist members of the Legislature sought to force the two schools to close.

The federal courts held the Legislature's action illegal and ordered it to pay the teachers. Three state officials, whose duty it was to sign the checks, have been cited for contempt.

They are Lt. Gov. C. C. Aycock, J. Thomas Jewell, the House Speaker, and Shelby Jackson, state superintendent of education.

They were ordered to show cause on March 8 why they should not be held in contempt of court.

REPORTS WERE circulated in Baton Rouge, the state capital, last week that Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy had sought to persuade Louisiana leaders to retreat from their defiance of the courts on the school issue.

The reports apparently resulted from a conference earlier in the week between Mr. Kennedy and Jack P. F. Gremillion, Louisiana's attorney general.

Since taking office and familiarizing himself with the New Orleans school situation, Mr. Kennedy is known to have desired to solve the problem without court proceedings.

M. HEPBURN MANY, U.S. attorney in New Orleans, had hoped to avoid contempt proceedings, but the vote of the Louisiana House of Representatives on Feb. 16 left him no choice.

The Louisiana House passed a resolution refusing to provide funds for the payment of teachers' salaries in New Orleans by the duly - elected Orleans Parish School Board.

Instead, the House voted to provide funds to a school board, created by the Legislature, for payment of the salaries which were due Feb. 17.

Arrest 188 in Carolina

2 KKK heads better than 1?

ATLANTA — Which Ku Klux Klan is the real Ku Klux Klan? State officials in Atlanta is asking after a split on the leadership issue has caused two separate organizations.

Calvin Craig, Atlanta, resigned as Georgia grand dragon of the U.S. Klans, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc., and applied for a charter for a new organization, United Klans, Knights of the Ku Klux Klans of America Inc.

The old organization, meanwhile, began looking around for his successor. Heightening the intrigue is a copy of the "Kloran," the KKK discipline which is held in copyright by the widow of the former head Klansman, the late Elton J. Edwards.

Driver-training bill passes House

ANNAPOLIS — A bill to provide a driver - education program in high schools throughout the State was approved by the House of Delegates Wednesday.

The bill would raise the fee of motor vehicle learners' cards from $1 to $5, and direct the extra $4 to finance the program.

If the bill wins final General Assembly approval, it will be placed in effect next year, rather than this year, to allow the expense funds to build up.
