BARMAIDS PARTY

On The Town

WITH THE PUB CRAWLERS

The local campaign to get colored salesman in the beverage industry, as far as campaigns go, is still young. However, it has already chalked up several gains and more are in the making.

Latest reports have it that three liquor distributors have taken on new salesmen. A beer firm has also added a colored pencil and book man to its staff, reliable sources reported.

Stated by a proverbial handful of crusaders, the campaign soon mushroomed to include several persons and organizations.

Attacking the problem from different angles, and working independently, they are all working toward a common goal — "fair employment representation for a segment of the industry's products."

Crawlers are convinced that congrats are in order for this noble effort.

ALONG WITH the rapid approach of spring, social organizations and clubs are jumping with plans of gay happenings oftis week.

For instance, there's the Latin American Dance Festival at Wilson's Garden Room, Sunday, 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. Sponsored by the Ducketts Social Club, the affair will feature refreshments, dancing and music by the Los Tremendos.

Then there's the business meeting and social hour, Sunday, at the Winchester Armory, where the Pyramids will honor business associates.

It is here too, that this smart social club will stage the Jazz Concert, the 26th, which bids fair to be a swinging deal.

Around the clubs; too, both patrons and operators are "making like spring is here."

LUCKY NUMBER — Cornell Muldrow holding forth while Watty's is spring promotion plans jell.

ADAMS COCKTAIL LOUNGE — Al Brown and his Tune Toppers still dragging 'em in. Naturally those big sins at low cost are grabbing a lot of play.

COMEDY CLUB — Howard Dixon, "man with ideas, has come up with a timely gimmick. Capitalizing on the hottest subject of the day, Africa, making way for the Spring Festival of entertainment, Frank Reddish and Sammy Jay vow it will be bigger and better than its precedessor.

CHICK'S — Here the old adage that "chicken (in this case, dancers) will soon come home to roost." For an example, there's the Queen Exotique, Delores Proctor; Tony Elling, and Kitty Dean, backed by songbird, Shirley Fields with Flink and Mickey in the backdrop.

VILMA — Big man Wendell Wilson is offering a sure fire formula for choice entertainment — good food, choice drinks and charming atmosphere.

ALHAMBRA — Dean Tom Wilson's longstanding policy of light on entertainment, but heavy on delectable dishes, is much in evidence here.

KNOTTY PINE — When the urge to merge with swinging music and continuous stomping strikes, you naturally stops here. Nate Polski, friendly host, takes pride in restating that this is the original house of the dance.

BLUE ROOM — Benny Cohen, veteran of the gaylife circuit, springs forth once again. He has added his inimitable touch to the spot which is under new management. Welcome back Benny. Have fun.

O'Neil heads Actors Guild

NEW YORK (ANP) — Fred O'Neil, distinguished actor and executive of Actor's Equity, has been elected president of The Negro Actors' Guild. Founded 23 years ago by the late Bill Robinson, the Guild is the only welfare organization of its kind in the country. The Guild numbers among its membership some of the most important artists in the world of the theatre.

Veteran actor Leigh Whipper is the retiring president.

OTHER members elected included first vice president, Irvin C. Miller, second vice president Percy Verwayen, third vice president, Dewey Weinglass, Andy Kirk, Bessie Williams, Evelyn Davis, Anita Bush, Charles W. Joyce, Fannie E. Robinson, Idelia Kohke, Marian Anderson, Duke Ellington and Louis Armstrong.

Also Valdo Freeman; recording secretary Bessie Williams; assistant recording secretary, Fay Walcott; and chaplain Dr. John H. Johnson.

The Guild will hold its annual Artist Ball, Friday, April 7 at the Riviera Terrace.

Film series to start at library

The Enoch Pratt Free Library's spring film series will open today (Friday) at 8 p.m., in the central auditorium, 400 Cathedral St. They are free.

Motion pictures ranging from the slapstick comedies of the silent era, to "the pageantry of Chinese spectacles" are to be shown.

Sphinx Speaks

Winnie Gray and Douglas Smith took time out to go to the race track. Brought nothing back, but had a ball.

Adah Smith and Haywood Armstead dropped in to say hello.

Wedding bells for Ruby Starvis and Luther Johnson will ring March 11. Reception follows in the Egyptian Room.

Rounding out the Old Timers' basketball game, on tap Sunday, March 12, at the Winchester Armory, will be a game between the Social Association of Firefighters and Postal Employees. The players will be named next week.

Tickets are going pretty fast. Sen. John Joe, Fourth District, will be on hand to toss out ball for the featured battle.

Squeeze Box and the Termites will be on hand to pump the music. The Sphinx Glee Club, under the personal direction of C.P.T., will be on hand. Yes, this is Easter, so the assistance of Mrs. Edna W. Russell, elementary specialist.

Strengths and weaknesses in the program were discussed in terms of pupils in the Cherry Hill Junior High School community.

It was mentioned that the number of pupils in attendance was increasing, economic level is medium to low, the community constantly changes, the standards of learning are poor, and the place of the home in the life of the child varies usually to the detriment of the child in ed at the YMCA.

The Sphinx Club still has a hook in the nose of Alexander (Derby) Brown and he just can't leave. T. J. Carter and company dropped their first edition of the extra buy, and this should create a good deal of chatter.

The Junior Board is rounding out its organization this Thursday. Hope they can take it.

Helen Fowlkes, one of our right arms, bowled a spectacular 140 on Monday past. NNLBA will hold its national conference in Baltimore, March 12, instead of the 5th, as first reported.

The Post Office Motor Vehicle Employees, Local 471, threw a swinging cocktail party Sunday past. If you weren't here, you should have been.

William E. Bonds and Joseph E. Hunter are co-chairmen. Robert E. Smith is president and Joseph Hull, recording secretary.

The Thursday night frolic here is getting bigger and bigger. Of course, we miss this. All your old friends are here.

FLASH — Biddy Woods, our traveling board member, phoned from Miami, Tuesday night (1:30 a.m., already). Spoke to the gang and bought the house a drink via telephone. (His credit is still good, you see).

Said he will be in Baltimore Friday or Saturday, to spend some time. Said he has lots to tell us. Ditto for us.

Hill Billy, of the Red Rooster and Bob Torrence, the Japan - trained, U. of Md. artist, were among regulars dropping in over the weekend. Samples of Bob's masterpieces are on display in the Egyptian Room.

Also saying hello were Earley Kersey, the philosopher and Donald (California) Wilson, everybody's barber.

Ditto for the friendly undertaker, Elroy Wilson.

Ernie Villa, our countryman from Thailand (Iawaii), dropped in while visiting with Robert Cooper. During his wise man Dr. S. Clinton, the physician and David Scott, pharmacist.

Eggy Hawkins, "the brain of Edgewood," peeked in. Doc Weingand hobbled over to say hi to the gang. He's coming along. That guy has a lot of heart.

Annual Mardi Gras slated for April 17-24. Get ready, it will be bigger and better than ever.

Would like to see some of the old crowd, even if they do owe money.

Of course, the Sphinx speaks again next week.

Morgan, Md. U. to offer free teacher-training plan

By MAX JOHNSON

ANNAPOLIS — If you are a high school graduate and plan to be a teacher, you will be eligible for free tuition the coming September at Morgan State College and at the University of Maryland, including the branch in Princess Anne.

Gov. J. Millard Tawes announced this free tuition plan this week, which is the same as now granted to teacher-training students in the State's five teachers colleges.

Students who enroll under this grant are pledged to teach for at least two years in Maryland public schools. They must also be full-time students.

• • •

GOV. TAWES has estimated that this program will attract these numbers of students at these schools:

Morgan State College — 828 students; estimated cost, $104,984; University of Maryland—1,630 students, estimated cost, $301,550; Maryland State College (Princess Anne) — 300 students, estimated cost, $33,000.

In addition, estimated new enrollment at the State's five teachers colleges for the coming September term was given as:

Frostburg, 383 students; Salisbury, 1,066; Bowie, 390; Coppin, 400; and Towson State Teachers College, 1,665 students.

The new tuition - free program at Morgan, the University of Maryland and at Maryland State College is estimated to attract a total of 2,758 students, and cost the State $439,534.

Gov. Tawes has asked the Department of Budget and Procurement to work out the financial details, and will include provisions for this plan in his supplementary budget to the General Assembly before the end of the current session.

• • •

IN ANNOUNCING the new tuition - free program, Gov. Tawes stated:

"I have been concerned about the persistent shortage of qualified teachers in Maryland since the early days of my Administration, and I have given much time and thought to the question of how we can solve this problem:

"I believe this proposal will do much to encourage young men and young women to enter the teaching profession, and thus will be an effective step in assuring us an ever-increasing supply of qualified teachers."

Gov. Tawes used the occasion to strike back at critics who are opposing an Administration - backed bill to bring Frostburg State Teachers College under control of the University of Maryland.

The Governor said the proposed university center in Frostburg would raise the general level of education in the Western Maryland area, mainly by increasing the opportunities of youth there to go to college.

• • •

CRITICS OF this proposal including Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, state superintendent of schools, are contending such a move is not in the best interests of the teachers college.

However, the proposal appears to have the support of the General Assembly delegations of Allegany and Garrett Counties, and there are expressions of support around the State House in Annapolis that it will not become a reality.

Gov. Tawes has gathered much support with this contention:

"Such a center (establishing a college program at Frostburg) would stimulate the economic growth of that area — it being a well established fact that industry tends to locate where ample educational facilities are available.

"This appears to be sitting well with many Marylanders — in that this area of the state is suffering an economic depression through lack of jobs for its citizens.

Glee Club at concert by youths

Dr. McGhee to Speak on Sunday

Dr. Nancy Bullock McGhee, head of the English department at Hampton Institute will be presented as the Women's Day speaker at the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church on Sunday at 11 a.m.

Dr. McGhee is a native of North Carolina. She did her undergraduate study at Howard University and Shaw University and her graduate study at Columbia University and the University of Chicago.

Her doctorate studies were completed under grants by the General Education Board of the Rockefeller Foundation, the Julius Rosenwald Fund, and the Department of Grants at the University of Chicago.

Further study was done at the University College of the University of London and Cambridge University, Cambridge, England.

Discussion centers on math in Cherry Hill

An area discussion on how to lessen the gap between the elementary and the junior high school was held recently at school No. 129 with sixth and seventh grade teachers of the Cherry Hill area.

Mrs. Carrie D. Stott, Chairman of the mathematics department of School No. 129, led the discussion with the assistance of Mrs. Edna W. Russell, elementary specialist.

Strengths and weaknesses in the program were discussed in terms of pupils in the Cherry Hill Junior High School community.

It was mentioned that the number of pupils in attendance was increasing, economic level is medium to low, the community constantly changes, the standards of learning are poor, and the place of the home in the life of the child varies usually to the detriment of the child in ed at the YMCA.

Morgan students sing 'happy birthday to me'

"This year I will reach my full maturity legally, and will be able to cast my ballot with the rest of the grown up folks," said more than 100 Morgan State College students at the second annual "21" Party held in their honor in the Student Union Lounge on campus last week.

The party was sponsored by the Institute for Political Education at the college. Dr. Dunbar G. James Fleming is director of the institute and is assisted by Mr. Dwynal B. Pettengill.

Guests at the party were: Big Jim Parker of the Baltimore Colts, Midget Frankie Dee, and advertising executive from New York, and Miss Ruby Glover, entertainer from the Red Fox Night Club.

Miss Glover sang several selections and was accompanied by student Lonnie Smith on piano.

The guests were introduced by Miss Joan Lipscomb, chairman of the institute scholars.

The party was complete with a high three-tier birthday cake, punch and last but not least, everyone sang "Happy Birthday" to each other.

Three prep for run in March

BY ANNA CHAMBERS

Maurice Brice, Samuel Jones and Walter Byrd of the Douglass Varsity cross country track team will run in a track meet against other clubs in the South Atlantic Association on March 11 at the Fifth Regiment Armory.

The 1951 graduating class of Douglass recently held a reunion and $100 was presented to the school for scholarship purposes.

Students are auditioning at Douglass for an operetta to be given this spring.

New Morgan buildings will bear names of 5 faculty members

Three proposed new buildings for Morgan State College will bear the names of five renowned staff members, four of whom are deceased.

The new administration building to be known as Carter-Wilson - Grant Hall, is named for the late James H. Carter, for 44 years, business manager and secretary and assistant to the president; for Dr. Edward N. Wilson, who is college registrar; and the late George C. Grant Sr., for 35 years, dean of the college.

The addition to Spencer Hall will be the Charles Clinton Key Hall in honor of the longtime, (26 years) professor of biology who died in 1951.

The Pezavia O'Connell Hall, a men's dormitory, will memorialize the late Dr. O'Connell, for 3 years Princess Anne Academy Principal and the college's professor of history for 13 years.

The Board of Public Works on Feb. 13, approved the names proposed by the college's trustees.

Miss Fegley talks about Brotherhood

Miss Beth Fegley, director of the local Fellowship House, was Brotherhood Week program speaker at School 173 for the fifth and sixth grade classes.

Remarks were made by the principal, Mrs. Alfreda Pinkney.

Thomas Person was master of ceremonies.

From Out Of The Past

Ed. Note — This is the first in a series of articles on the history of colored citizens in the United States. These articles are based on historical facts.

In the history of wars of the United States, the colored soldier has distinguished himself as a true fighting man.

Colored soldiers, in general, have been much maligned, and so it is greatly to their credit that in times of war, they have set aside their grievances to fight for a country that has not been all together fair with them.

But fight they have and always with resultant high praise from their leaders.

Such was the case in the Spanish American War of 1898.

BUT EVEN before this was in the Cuban Insurrection, beginning Oct. 10, 1868 and lasting ten years, brown skinned Cubans fought with the rebels against the domination of Spain.

An official estimate states that about two - fifths of them were so called colored people.

Prominent among them was Antonio Maceo of whom it was said, "He was as lofty on the march as either Sheridan or Stonewall Jackson."

The Hon. Amos J. Cummings, one of the five congressmen invited by the New York Journal to visit Cuba and report on what was the state of things there, speaking of Maceo's loyalty to the Cuban cause said, "No one ever questioned his patriotism. His devotion to Cuban freedom was like the devotion of a father to his family. All his energies physical and intellectual, were given freely to his country."

This death was greatly mourned by a shocked, civilized world. Maceo regarded him as the mightiest warrior of the revolution.

After prime movers in that bitter struggle included the dashing and stubborn Flor Crombet and the crafty, brilliant Quintin Bandera.

Bandera, whose name means "fifteen days," got the name for capturing fifteen Spanish ensigns. With other members of Maceo's staff, he was sent to the prison at Cuerta. While there, he met and fell in love with the daughter of a Spanish soldier and with her help, he escaped in a boat to Gibraltar. He became a British subject and married the girl.

IN THE Spanish - American War, which involved Spain and the United States, it is a little publicized fact that the first regiment ordered to the front lines was the all colored 24th Regiment.

In describing this crack outfit, an Atlanta Evening Journal correspondent said: "Every man of them is a giant. They fought as well, according to general Sumner, as the white regiments. They seem to be absolutely without fear, and certainly no troops advanced more promptly when the order was given than they."

In places where colored troops were quartered, they were noted for their good conduct, and their strict attention to duty. Off - times the colored troops were favored over the white because of the way they conducted themselves while in garrison.

On the battlefield, they were reported equally as competent as fighters.

SPEAKING OF their heroics, a New York Sun correspondent was heard to remark. "While the proposition of colored men wounded has been large, by their courage and valor they have really carried off the palm for heroism."

From the ranks of Teddy Roosevelt's Rough Riders, came the praises from a wounded soldier . . . "Without any disregard to any other regiment, I want to say that the whitest men on this fight have been the black ones." And from Teddy Roosevelt himself comes the words that he had never expected to have, and could not ask for, better men beside him in a hard fight.

An Associated Press correspondent recalled still another episode dramatizing the courage of the colored soldier.

He related that he was standing near two captains and saw them shot down. They were leading a charge of Rough Riders when they ran into an ambush. He admits that if it hadn't been for the colored cavalry, the Rough Riders would have been exterminated.

The endurance of the colored soldiers during the Spanish American War is attested to, when a yellow fever hospital was needed to care for those stricken with the disease.

THE 24th Regiment was ordered up from their trenches by General Miles to do the job in the still of night they set their positions and at sunrise the following morning, the hospital was ready to operate.

The record clearly shows the colored soldier in the Spanish - American War to be a good fighter, and a patriotic one.
