At cards, Morphelia Winston took first prize; Thelma Butler, a guest, second; and Beatrice Brown, third. That unmentionable (the booby) went to Elaine Taylor.

EVERYBODY Loves a Mystery.

This was the unique and novel theme which brought out the "curious" in full attendance to The Pals second mystery party. Gaily and expectantly the buses trip into the Winchester Street Armory Clubroom (the only fact stated in the invitation, confirmed by a nameless phone-caller to say that the affair was for real!) to be greeted by skeletons, ghosts, goblins, bats, owls, daggers, and tombstones, which leered at them from wall and lights.

Many spent the evening trying to discovered who name they had been tagged. They danced, sipped the sippables, and even turned detective in a big "Treasure Hunt."

The only item, not a mystery was the delicious dinner and hors d'oeuvres served.

Enjoying the affairs were the hostesses — Martha Allen, Eloulse Brown, Bettye Bundora, Mary Ellis, Margaret Land, Frances Lockwood, Gwendolyn Lynch, Beatrice Meyers, Cordelia Oliver, Alma Parker, Ruby Taylor, Helen Thomas, Annie Thompson, Esther Wiles, Ruth Wilmore, their husbands, and eighty-odd guests, who delightedly cried, "When is the next one?"

THE MARYLAND LEAGUE of Women's Clubs will cite three as symbols of "Togetherness in A New Era" at its first awards luncheon in Baltimore on March 25. Honorees, left to right, will be Dr. Carl Murphy, Dr. Lillie Jackson and Dr. Furman Templeton.

Morgan women told they must give of selves to aid others

By LULA JONES GARRETT

Every college woman has a responsibility, as well as a duty to help those who cannot help themselves, Mrs. Vel Phillips told Morgan State College Women, here, Wednesday.

Speaking at the All College Assembly, Mrs. Phillips, member of the City Council of Milwaukee, Wisc. and a national Democratic committee - woman, urged the group to learn, through actual experience, how the other half of the world lives.

POINTING OUT that through volunteer work she obtained her first knowledge of people while a student at Howard University, she said that it was there that she determined to live and give if she could, to the community around her.

Urging her listeners to practice democratic ethics, Mrs. Phillips said:

"One cannot become a democratic citizen by learning about Democracy as an abstract set of ideals, but one learns only by living democratically. Human relations covers an area as wide as the world and as small as your family."

SPEAKING OF an instance in which a petition was circulated to prevent her and her husband, Dale Phillips, attorney, from moving into a building, Mrs. Phillips said that at first she experienced an almost uncontrollable desire to strike back at the petition signers.

But, she added, bitterness and vindictiveness do far greater harm to the person harboring them, than to the individual at which they are directed. She added:

"LIVING democratically, is, in a sense, an art and like any art, improves with creative thought and actual practice.

"We must think both large and small about democracy. Just as we stress the smallest unit of human living, the family, we must think also about the world community. For the welfare of each of us is bound up with the welfare of all of us; whether we are a student in a small college in Maryland, a native of an underprivileged country, or a person behin the iron curtain, our fates are intertwined.

"EDUCATED people who understand the interdependence of all humanity have a deep responsibility to explain this to other citizens who still erroneously believe that one nation, or one group of persons can live in isolation from the rest of the world.

"My experience has been primarily, that of feeling the impact of being a member of a minority. However, increasingly, I realize that every person or any person can, at some time be a member of a minority. As women, we are a minority in a society dominated by men.

"Any one of us may represent a minority attitude on a controversial topic. Certainly, all through life, any one of us can find himself outvoted on some issue.

"The important thing is to learn to understand the position of other minorities by projecting, sympathetically, our own minority experiences".

THE ASSEMBLY, held in Murphy Auditorium, was a part of the Women's Week activities at Morgan.

Mrs. Phillips was one of the speakers on the program under the listing, "Women in Politics," jointly sponsored by the Institute for Political education, headed by Dr. G. James Fleming on Wednesday.

Other speakers included Miss Bertha Adkins, member of the Republican National Committee, and Mrs. Marjorie Lawson, Washington attorney.

THE WEEK'S activities, directed by Dr. Thelma Bando, dean of women at Morgan, was under the theme, "Education and Intellectual Virtues".

The closing session this evening (Friday) will be the annual "Women's, Dinner," in Memorial Refectory, at which Dr. Helen E. Clarke, dean of Women at the University of Maryland, will be speaker.

The dinner will be preceded by a reception honoring Mrs. J. Millard Tawes, wife of Maryland's Governor, and Dr. Clarke.

THE WOMEN'S Week Committee chairman is Mrs. Mary B. Short, president of the Women's Dormitory Council. Co-chairman is Miss Pamella J. Jones, vice-president of the Council. Committee members are, Misses Juanita Dougherty, Sue Poole, Betty Swann, Billie Ann Davis, Martha Boone.

Walter Regan is director of the assembly committee.

Serving as campus hostesses are Mrs. Martin D. Jenkins, wife of the Morgan president, Mrs. Clarence Parham, Mrs. J. T. Gunn and Miss Esther McCready.

Other Women's Week participants are Mrs. Victorine Adams, Charm Center Shop owner, Dr. Theresa Brown, assistant professor of home economics; the Rev. Howard Cornish, director of the Morgan Christian Center, Dr. G. James Fleming, director of the Institute for Political Education; Mrs. Marie Fraser, member of the Faculty-Trustee Wives Club; Mrs. Barbara Green, director of activities for Young Adults, Madison Avenue Branch YWCA.

Also, Mrs. Frances Berry Hill, assistant professor of music; Mrs. Elizabeth Marshall, Miss Donna Moore, beauty consultants and Dr. Young who is presently interning at University Hospital, Baltimore.

THESE FEMININE GUESTS added charm to the session of the Pyramids Club, Sunday afternoon. Left to right are Mesdames Vivian Jackson, Gloria Smith, Alice Wallace, Ethel Thornton and Juanita McLeod, members of the Deby Social Club.

AT AFRO OFFICE Mrs. Vel Phillips, winsome Wisconsin Democratic Committeewoman, learns how words in this newspaper are composed on one of nine modern Teletypesetter perforators. Explaining the process to Mrs. Phillips, center, and Mrs. Martin Jenkins, right, is Celester Thompson, supervisor of the department. Teletype operator at work is Robert L. Williams. He is one of 13 such workers. Mrs. Phillips was in Baltimore to give talks at Morgan.

Report from Europe

BY OLLIE STEWART

PARIS — It had to happen, and France was the most likely place for it to come to pass! Women have pushed their way into just about everything else, so it was only a matter of time before they got around to being jockeys!

As of March 5, horse players in France are willing to risk two bucks on a horse with a female jockey in the saddle. This, plus the usual risks and hazards of betting on a horse, should really turn a lot of hair gray!

I DON'T KNOW how soon, if ever, it will hit the States, but it is certain to be a big shot in the arm to French racing. Since the French Racing Commission decided last December that the girls have a chance at some of the big purses, you can't hear anything else in the racing circles of Paris.

There are, however, a few special regulations for the gals. They are limited to races one mile and a quarter or less, and cannot weigh more than 116 pounds with all their gear on.

They can use the whip—but no make-up. They cannot wear nylon pants like the men (they are too transparent), but must stick to linen. Hair must be tied up, either tucked beneath the cap, or jammed into a net.

AT LAST reports, about a dozen French girls had been incensed, and were training like mad. They had also picked up a nickname—the Amazons!

The next item—and it's also pertaining to sports, but it is really like Paris to lice announced recently that the sale of drinks in bottles has been banned in all sports stadiums.

To protect the spectators," was the reason given for anything else in the racing circles of Paris.
