UNDER THE STARS AND STRIPES

Lieut. Allan Harris, who has been in the aviation corps of the army, has been honorably discharged and has resumed his position at the DuPont Co. in Wilmington.

The following letter has been received by Mrs. G. Ellsworth Leary, from her brother, Private James B. Parsons, Co. B, 18 M. G. Bn., 6th Division, A. E. F. Private Parsons is a graduate of Washington College, class 1917, and following his graduation was a teacher of Science at Wicomico High School, Salisbury, Md., until he was called to Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C., in May. He went across in July. The letter is as follows:

Just received another letter of Oct. 29 and papers from you tonight and am in a Red Cross hut writing you. Have had no opportunity to write for over a month and guess since the war has ended you are anxious to hear from me to know that I am still alive. I saw a fellow from Salisbury yesterday and he said his mother had written him that I had been killed in action, but I think she is slightly mistaken.

In fact, I am very much alive and all that is wrong with me is that I need a bath and shave.

I think that rumor has been in Salisbury about me being killed, but I trust it has not gotten home.

Well, I could write you a book of what I have been doing the past month. You know by some of my previous letters that I was at the front. Well, I put in five weeks on the Alsace front in trench warfare.

Then we came out and went through a couple of weeks of stiff drill and about the last of October stepped off the train about midnight one night and started for the big front, where the Huns were putting in all they had.

Well we hiked and at times were pretty close to the Huns, but they were going some and when we hit up nearly to Sedan we were ordered back two days before the armistice was signed and hiked back and landed on a front just north of Verdun, after 19 days of biking. Some days we made 21 hours out of 24 and were lucky to feed once a day. But what did we care? Things were going our way and we were moving so fast our kitchen and supplies could not follow us.

Well, after a few days near Verdun, we started on a fifteen day hike and today is our sixth day on it. We are heading south and I have a hunch that this is our first move towards the U. S. A. We even hear that we will board the ship by the middle of December and I hope to be home by the first of the year, if things turn out as we anticipate. But orders may change; but any way I will be home this winter and what is a great satisfaction is the fact that I am sure of getting there some time.

I saw Arthur Jones for the first time over here a few days ago and have seen him several times since and am going to give him my county papers after I read them.

He is looking fine, so if you see any of his people you can tell them.

We get billets all the way along this hike and tonight are very comfortably situated in a barn. My bunkie and I smuggled a couple of extra blankets along on the gun cart and manage to sleep very well.

There is a good Red Cross here and real American girls serve cocoa and cakes and they are very rare to look at after seeing nothing but barbed wire ruined villages and dead Germans for several weeks.

While at Verdun we could see all day streams of released prisoners returning from Germany—Russians, Frenchmen and British—and they were a queer looking bunch, many of them wearing Boche clothes and some would even stop at salvage dumps and put on American uniforms. In the "big push" we also saw many women, children and old men who were returning to their towns after being held by the Huns for four years. It was a muddy drive—rained most of the time and we were surely a wild and dirty looking bunch.

The night of November 11 all the doughboys fired their rifles, threw grenades and fired rockets, had a regular 4th of July celebration to finish the war.

I received a letter from ———, which was very much appreciated and which I will surely answer as soon as possible, but, after hiking about 20 miles per day, I am usually ready to go to bed about 5.30 or 6 o'clock, but tonight I am dissipating. I fear it will be about 8 o'clock before I retire.

I owe about fifteen letters, but this is the only one I am writing tonight, as I get up at 2 a. m. tomorrow morning to go on guard until 6, then hike, but I should worry, we are moving towards the States and when I do get home I am going to stay right in Maryland the balance of my life, for there is no place like home and I think the two and a half million boys of the A. E. F. will all stick around home when they get there.

This is surely a hiking division (the 6th) and I think if they had a bridge across the Atlantic that they would have us hike home.

Must close now. If I do land in the U. S. A. any time soon will send you a telegram as soon as I land.

Good Year On Peninsula

Reports from all parts of this peninsula show that the year 1918 was the most prosperous in history.

Capital and labor have both shared in prosperity. Unparalleled demands have raised the prices of materials to top notch prices and labor has received the highest wages in history. Farmers have had a successful year and while they have been handicapped for labor appear to have prospered as a class, more acreage having been planted in 1918 than in any previous year.

With manufacturers, in spite of the signing of the armistice and the resultant cancellation of many war orders, the conditions have remained very good.

Most plants retained sufficient contracts on their books to insure running at full capacity for months in the future.

More money is on deposit in the banks of the Peninsula than ever before and there appears to be a fair demand for loans at legal rates.

Oystermen on the Peninsula reported that they had the most successful year in their line that they have ever had, which is attributed largely to the early and continued cold weather of last winter, which made that oyster season a short one, while last fall and the present winter to date have been open and the supply of oysters is larger than ever before reported, and fancy prices are being realized.

As to conditions regarding failures in the business world for the year 1918 the report says:

"The total number of failures on the Delmarvia Peninsula for the year 1918 was 37, as compared with 49 in 1917, 58 in 1916, 83 in 1915, 62 in 1914, and 32 in 1913. The total liabilities of the failures for 1918 amounted to $315,510.45, as compared with $650,830.56 for 1917, $485,708.33 for 1916, $1,178,532.86 for 1915. The total assets for the failures for 1918 amounted to $126,838.97, as compared with $319,619.47 for 1917, $357,795.60 for 1916 and $668,396.95 for 1915."

The Tie That Binds.—Chief Justice of the Supreme Court Edward Douglass White will be elected an honorary member of the Eastern Shore Society of Baltimore. Chief Justice White's mother was Miss Catherine Sidney Ringgold, daughter of Tench Ringgold, in his day a prominent man on the Eastern Shore. Her husband, Edward Douglass White, Sr., was the seventh governor of Louisiana. Having the blood of the Eastern Shoreman is a tie that binds, and the Eastern Shore Society will be pleased to have the distinguished Chief Justice as a member.

Joy And Sorrow Meet.—Joy and sorrow met on the threshold of the Whyland home in Salisbury Thursday morning, when the eldest son, Harry Whyland, returned well and happy from a several months' absence spent in military training at Camp Humphrey. The young man brought home an honorable discharge from the military service and happy anticipation of a joyful reunion with his family. In the same hour came a telegram announcing the death of the young man's father, L. W. Whyland, who had been almost instantly killed by being struck by an auto.
