Foch and Napoleon

Napoleon was a prolific war maxim maker. His maxims number more than a hundred. Many of them are as true today as when they were made.

"In war," said Napoleon, "there is never more than one favorable moment. The great art is to seize it and use it well."

Foch seized the "favorable moment," and in a month not only saved the situation, but turned the tables on the enemy. He "concentrated his troops and acted with energy," as Napoleon laid down.

Common sense—the application of wisdom to circumstances—is Foch's maxim, as it was Napoleon's. Napoleon wrote: "Plans may be modified ad infinitum, according to circumstances, the genius of the general, the character of the troops and the features of the country."

Napoleon insisted upon the study of past campaigns. "The science of strategy," he said, "is only to be acquired by experience and by studying the campaigns of all the great captains."

Foch has been a life-long student of military history. In the spring he was acting up to Napoleon's dictum—"the measure which is not profoundly meditated in all its details produces no result." When Foch was ready he "dared at the right moment." For 20 years past Foch has been "profoundly meditating" the details of the strategy which has given him such signal success.

U. S. Had Second Largest Army

On the day that the armistice was signed the American Army on the western front was second in strength only to that of France itself. Figures made public Saturday by General March showed that on November 11 the United States was represented on the western front by 1,950,100 men. France, on Nov. 1, the last date for which official figures were available, had 2,559,000. The British and the Portuguese attached to the British Army totaled 1,718,000, while the Belgium and Italian forces on the western front aggregated about 200,000.

These totals are all based upon what is termed the "ration strength." This includes every soldier who has to be fed, both combatants and the necessary medical and supply organizations.

General March again gave comparative demobilization totals for the United States and British armies. Up to Jan. 24 the United States had actually discharged 57,366 officers and 858,117 men. The British on January 11 had discharged 12,759 officers and 611,950 men. The total ordered for discharge in this country now is 1,300,900.

Regarding Kent County Roads

At a meeting of the Kent County Pomona Grange held at Fairlee, Md., January 18, 1919, a thorough discussion of the road question, as it pertains to Kent County, resulted in the appointment of a committee composed of the undersigned to secure the active co-operation of the County Commissioners, Road Engineer, Newspapers, and all citizens to secure the following:

First.—The taking over by the state of the road between Still Pond and Betterton, and until this is accomplished the keeping of said road in traveling shape by the county.

Second.—The completion of the State Road to Rock Hall calling attention to the serious conditions existing in that section of the county as regards traveling facilities.

Third.—The building of the State Road from Galena to Massey. Said road having been authorized and funds provided for it.

Want Dog Law Enforced

The undersigned committee, in compliance with instructions given them by the Kent County Pomona Grange, in session at Fairlee January 18, 1919, beg leave to present to the County Commissioners and the public the following facts:

1st—A very good dog law was enacted at the last session of the legislature.

2nd—This law as enforced will in another year be a dead letter.

We therefore respectfully recommend that the County Commissioners—1st, publish the penalty for violating the law; 2nd, instruct the sheriff and constables of the county to arrest all violators of the law; 3rd, request all citizens to report the names of all violators to the law.

We would recommend also that, if in compliance with existing laws, all sheriffs and constables be paid a bonus for killing all dogs straying without licenses.

A Kent County Boy Makes Good

The following is taken from a Wilmington paper:

"One of the largest private building operations that has been started in this city for a long time is being planned by William H. Bramble, of No. 6 West Ninth St. Mr. Bramble recently acquired all the land between Harrison and Franklin and Twenty-second and Twenty-Third Sts. On this plot Mr. Bramble will build thirty-two houses. Each house will contain nine rooms and two baths and hot water heat. Each lot will be 27x80 feet and there will be room for a garage. Plans for the operation are now being prepared by Brown and Whitside, architects. The operation will represent an outlay of about $250,000."

Mr. William H. Bramble is a son of Mr. James Bramble of Chestertown. He was born and raised near Tolchester, this county.

Street Letter Boxes In Place

The twelve street letter boxes have been put in place at locations heretofore published in this paper and are now ready for the receipt of letters. The schedule for collections is as follows:

Daily, at 6.00 a. m. and 12.15 p. m.
Sunday's, at 1.30 p. m.
Holidays, at 6.00 a. m. and 12.15 p. m.

The schedule appears on the face of each box, and patrons are advised to acquaint themselves with the hours of collection.

It must be born in mind that the hours of collection represent the earliest time at which mail can be collected, and patrons should be thoroughly familiar with the hours of collection in order that their mail may be deposited in the boxes in time to reach the postoffice for the outgoing mails.

There is a heavy penalty attached to the tampering with these letter boxes which the postoffice will rigidly enforce against all offenders.

Patrons are warned not to place any letters in the boxes without the required stamps. No money will be accepted, and all letters found in the boxes will be brought to the postoffice and held for the necessary postage. This rule must be rigidly observed by the patrons. The best way to observe this rule is to buy books of two cent or three cent stamps at the postoffice, so that you will always have the necesary stamps on hand.

All compiaints relative to improper collections should be made to the postmaster.

The first collection made on Wednesday morning at six o'clock resulted in more than 100 letters being brought to the postoffice by the carriers. The first patrons to make use of the new boxes were:

At Ringgold's corner—A. E. Ringgold.

At Calvert and College Ave.—Elizabeth Stricklin.

At corner Washington Ave. and Kent Circle—Walter T. Pippin.

At Mrs. Crow's corner on Washington Ave.—Mrs. D. B. McMenamin.

At corner High and Kent Sts.—P. O. S. of A.

At corner High and Cross Sts.—W. P. Newnam.

At corner Front and Mapel Ave.—Mrs. John N. Roberts.

At corner Queen and Maple Ave.—Clifton L. Jarrell.

No letters were taken from the remaining boxes, probably because of the fact that it was not generally known that the service would begin on Wednesday morning.

UNION REVIVALS A BIG SUCCESS

Services Which Closed On Sunday Evening Quickened Religious Life Of Whole Community

The union revival meetings, held by the Methodist Episcopal and the Methodist Protestant Churches of Chestertown during the past three weeks, closed on Sunday evening in the M. E. Church. The union revivals have been quite a success. While no great ingathering of converts has taken place during the meetings, the religious spirit of the whole community has been quickened to such an extent as has not been done for many years. A feature of the meetings was the great interest taken by the church members of the two churches as a whole, who were tireless in their efforts to get the people of the town, and not in the church, interested, and to get them to attend the services. Another feature of the meetings was the aid rendered by the other county preachers, who often traveled many miles to aid in the work.

The singing of the choir of Chestertown ladies and gentlemen, led and instructed by Prof. Balmond, was inspiring throughout the services and did much to make the meetings a success. Chestertown has many good singers and Prof. Balmond got good results from their efforts. Due credit should also be given to the faithful organists, Miss Clara Usilton and Miss Mabel Toulson, whose music was always inspiring.

Prof. Balmond himself did good throughout the meetings. His voice was always clear and full of melody, and he was a big asset to the meetings.

The preaching of the local pastors, Dr. J. L. Ward and Dr. T. F. Beauchamp, was of a high order, as was that of the pastors who assisted them, and many people, perhaps wayward and on the path to wrong-doing, saw the error of their ways and were led to better lives.

The attendance throughout the meetings was good, as the persistent interest of the church members was imparted to the whole community and nearly all seemed to take an interest in the meetings.

The meetings closed with a splendid sermon by Rev. Mr. Donovan, the pastor of St. James M. P. Church, on Sunday evening.
