BALTIMORE AFTER DARK

On the TOWN with the Pub Crawler

Chuck Jackson fans were given the shakes Monday p.m. when the rock and roll belter lost his voice in the middle of the Royal show.

The Chucker was rendered helpless when his throat closed up on him.

He was back in orbit Tuesday after seeing the doc James Brown, another big to-beat star, stood in while Chuck was disabled.

He is part of the big package now playing the Royal including Bill Doggett, the Miller Sisters, Flip Wilson, and the Miracles.

And Steve Morris, Royal's assistant manager rates a tip of the lid for his kindness to the "hutins."

He took the whole show over to the "Forest Apartement" to entertain the inmates Sunday.

A WEEK from today, the "Boll Weevil" man, Brook Benton will make his first visit to the Royal, Steve tells us.

As he does with all young lovers in June, Cupid sent his arrow through the hearts of Cora Boykin and Rudolph Cook.

She is the pert sweetheart with the Five B's, and he's one of Baltimore's finest.

They will wed 7 p.m. tomorrow (Saturday), at her home, 3231 Brighton St.

Her uncle, the Rev. Willis Barnes will perform the ceremony. She is the daughter of Mrs. Ruth Boykin, and the late Howard Boykin.

The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James Cook.

They will unleash a reception before taking a New York honeymoon. Their home will be at 1301 Druid Hill Ave., Apt. 1.

Congrats, Lena.

THREE GUYS, Nat Hayes, of the Lounge, the late Bill Rogers, of the wheels at the Bridge, the late Frankie Dixon, and We'ldon Hall Lawrence of Have a good thing going with their Doggiehouse act.

It's called the Merry-go-Round and alternates between the three spots during the week. It boils down to where patrons of the houses involved get together and have a barrel of fun which assures the sponsors a real beeg nite at least once a week. It works out A-Ok!

The winners of the Casino's twist contest (picked after the Crawler went to bed for this seven) will get a look at the fabulous Peppermint Lounge in the Big City and the Casino will pick up the tab.

Should be a swinging session at this spot on the weekend. What with Joe Burrell and the Miller's Sister band teaming with the Tune Toppers they most likely will jump for a while.

Finally found who's behind the emphasis on the food program at Castle D'or — Elz e Street. You probably remember Elzie as the longtime POSTER worker.

He's now operating in a new area and heading up the kitchen at D'or is part of it. 'Twas quite a shinding he threw for the Bill Doggett party, too!

Stop in Kleeco for a wonderful time.

Carnival Lounge's Morris Richmond has a legitimate beef.

"It's down right disgusting for the few of us who try to operate a decent place to be typed with the guys who let anything go."

Bob Cummings is a riot in "Tunnel of Love" at the Painters Mill tent out Reisterstown Rd. way. Beginning July 3, Tom Bosley, who did the original role on Broadway, will star in "Fiorello," life story of New York's former colorful mayor.

Mrs. Jenkins' pupils in annual recitals

By ADAH K. JENKINS

Students of Mrs. Adah K. Jenkins appeared in their annual recital series at Coppin State Teachers College on June 2 and 8.

Most of the students played two selections in contrasting styles. A musical dramatic reading was given by Mabel Matthews, pianist and Herbie Matthews, reader.

Howard Johnson, who will graduate in the music education department of Morgan State College this fall, played a movement from Mozart's Piano Concerto, Piano Sonata by Mozart with Mrs. Jenkins at the piano keyboard.

Chester Coleman, concerto Paul Mills Adrienne and a movement and a member of the Youth Community, in a duet with her daughter Linda and a movement by Bach. Other soloists were: Bill Hale, who was accompanied by Mrs. Jenkins; Bernice Wilson, Mrs. Wanda Dickerson, Mrs. Ruth Bryant, Mrs. Ruth Bryant, Mrs. Ruth Bryant
