Sammy Davis coming; new record hot

Sammy Davis Jr., noted for his singing, dancing, comedy and mimicry, will present two performances on the stage of the Stanton Theatre on Saturday, Dec. 8, at 8:30 and 11:30 p.m.

Baltimore is one of only five cities in which the entertainer and his company will appear during a tour under the management of the Will Mastin Trio.

On stage with Davis will be Pat Henry and Sy Oliver with his orchestra.

Davis has demonstrated talent in nearly every phase of popular show business, including work on the stage in musical comedy and drama, on television and in motion pictures. Among the films in which he has had important roles are "Anna Lucasta," "Porgy and Bess" and "Oceans 11." During the past eight years he has been recognized as a vocalist and he has a string of records to his credit, including his recent hit, "What Kind of Fool Am I?"

Best known of the stage shows in which Davis has played is the musical comedy, "Mr. Wonderful," which opened on Broadway in 1956.

D. Eisenhower were also seen on the closed circuit screen.

Some of the artists performed in various cities throughout the nation, and their acts were blended with the live performance at Carnegie Hall.

In addition to those mentioned, others taking part in the program included actors Sidney Poitier, Fredric March and Viveca Lindfors, opera singer Richard Tucker and comic Bob Newhart.

Original tickets to be honored for Ice Capades Saturday

Officials of the 23rd GO Edition of the Ice Capades have announced that the performances originally scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 1 and 10 a.m., Saturday, Dec. 8 have been postponed until 5:30 p.m. on the same days.

Persons holding tickets for the postponed 10 a.m. performances may use them instead for the 5:30 p.m. performances on those days, exchange them for another date or request a refund.

* * *

ICE CAPADES debuted at the $15 million Civic Center Tuesday when more than 5,000 patrons were treated to a glittering display of figure skating, dancing, comedy and musical extravaganzas on ice.

Precisioned drills, formations and a salute to "Friendship 7," a replica of the space capsule Astronaut John Glenn rode in this country's first space flight to outer space were other highlights of the festive opening.

Ice Capades will run until Dec. 9.

Song Festival has turnaway crowd

More than 1700 persons turned out recently for the annual Thanksgiving Gospel Song Festival held at the Harlem Theatre.

Another 400 persons were turned away for lack of space.

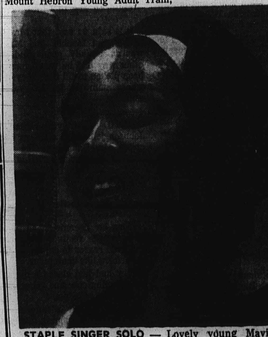
The gospel song program is sponsored by radio WEBB each year to provide a spiritual uplift for the gospel community and to showcase good local gospel singing talent.

Among the singing groups appearing were: The Amanda Specials, the Everygreen Baptist Church Gospel Chords, Drayton Gospel Singers, and members of the Mount Hebron Young Adult and Junior Choirs.

Also, The Elite Gospel Singers, Vashti Gospel Singers; soloist Miss Bessie Nichols; organist, the Rev. Harold J. Williams, pastor, Mt. Calvary Holy Church, and his son, Harold Jr.

The Charles Singers, the Revivalists, the Ivory Gospel Singers, and from Montgomery County, the Variety Choralers and Royal Harmonizers.

Hosts for the program were Wiley Daniel, radio spiritual voice of Highway to Heaven, and Edmond S. Dorsey, conductor of the Glory Train.



STAPLE SINGER SOLO — Lovely young Mavis Staples possesses the rich contralto voice soloed on the Staple Singers' new Christmas album, "The 25th Day of December," just released by Riverside. Supporting Mavis in the family group are her father, Roebuck, sister Yvonne and brother Pervis.

Badgers strengthen non-discriminatory policy among frats

MADISON, Wis. —The University of Wisconsin last week took further steps to wipe out racial and religious discrimination by campus fraternities and sororities.

Members of the faculty, in a unanimously adopted resolution, served notice that the 1960 order supersedes any discriminatory policy set up by national officers, alumni, advisors or others from off campus.

MOMENTS MUSICAL

Organist Lawson featured

By ADAH K. JENKINS

Organ compositions that displayed the "King of instruments" as well as the musicianship of the performer were heard at the hands of Verle Larson during the second annual Douglas Memorial Community Church art series.

The elegant brilliance of Mozart's "Fantasie in F minor" afforded the organist an impressive display of keyboard and pedal technique.

The soloist, with James Hammond, minister of music at Douglas, and the Rev. Marion Bascom, pastor, received at an informal tea following the concert.

THOMAS H. KERR JR., pianist and the National Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Howard Mitchell, opened the Howard University Cultural Series in a concert given at Cramton Auditorium, on the Howard University campus.

This marks the first concerto performance by one of our pianists with the capital players. Mr. Kerr, who is associate professor of piano at the Howard College of Fine Arts, is widely recognized as a teacher, composer and pianist. For the Saturday concert he played the first movement of the Rachmaninoff "Concerto in D minor."

The artist, who is the son of Dr. and Mrs. T. Henderson Kerr, has given numerous organ and piano recitals in his native Baltimore. His own compositions have won for him a Rosenwald Fellowship, as well as first prizes from the composers and authors of America and the Summy-Birchard publications.

Loretta Dorsey and Jeannette Walters were soprano soloists with the recent concert presented by the Baltimore Bach Society.

William (Billy) Myers, tenor, was presented in recital last Thursday evening at the Montrose School for Girls. The soloist, who is establishing for himself an enviable reputation in his field, is a graduate of Peabody and also an alumnus of Douglass High School.

ATTRACTING national attention was the world premiere of "Hamlet," a three-act opera by the contemporary composer, Sergius Kagen. It was given by the Peabody Conservatory Art Theatre.

The text used is Shakespeare's with some shortening and the elimination of three minor characters. There ends the resemblance to the conventional drama; as the music is strictly contemporary, atonal and 12-tone.

Under the direction of Laszlo Halasz, the Peabody orchestra and the singers negotiated the intricate score with skill and style. Noted among the 41-piece instrumentalists was Karl Porter, bassoonist.

The staging in the hands of Ming Cho Lee was striking, with completely black curtains and the cast performing on tables placed at various heights. The brilliant red and gold of the costumes stood out against the somber background.

Near capacity audiences were present for the two performances.

CALENDAR: Sunday, Dec. 2nd at 21 E. Mt. Vernon Place from 3 to 5 p.m. and from 8 to 9:30 p.m., Dr. William Newman, in lectures about basic piano playing and teaching problems and a recital.

Sunday, Dec. 9 at 4 p.m. at the Baltimore Museum of Art the Juilliard String Quartet, with Vincent Persichetti, American composer-pianist. He will be introduced by Randolph S. Rothschild, president of the Chamber Music Society of Baltimore, sponsoring organization.

Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 11 and 12 at the Lyric at 8:30 p.m. the Baltimore Symphony with Mihaly Virzlay, cellist.

Sunday, Dec. 9 at 6 p.m. in the sanctuary of Douglas Memorial Community Church a concert with the Etude Octet (mixed choral) and James Hammond, organist.

Sunday, Dec. 16 at 7:30 p.m. at Pennsylvania AME Zion, the Town Choir.

Local radio to air Miss Price

Soprano Leontyne Price will star with tenor Carlo Bergonzi, baritone Cornell MacNeil, and bass Giorgio Tozzi in the Metropolitan Opera's first 1962 season presentation of "ERNANI," a seldom heard, early Verdi four-act opera of love, hate and revenge, tomorrow Saturday) evening.

The entire season of Metropolitan Opera will be heard on local raidio.

FOR THE first time in the 23 years of Saturday opera broadcasts, there will be a night broadcast.

This has been set to allow listeners to hear the year's final traditional collegiate football games in the afternoon and still hear the opera.

On subsequent Saturdays during the 20-week season, the operas will be given during their usual 2 p.m., Saturday time.

AT THE HARLEM — Jane Fonda and Jim Hutton are the newlyweds who start off their honeymoon with fervor but soon finds themselves involved in a series of misunderstandings in "Period of Adjustment," now at the Harlem Theatre.

First Run Films

Williams story at the Harlem

Tony Franciosa, Jane Fonda and Jim Hutton form the laugh triumverate of "Period of Adjustment," now at the Harlem Theatre. Metro-Goldwyn - Mayer's screen version of Tennessee Williams' big stage hit and his first comedy.

This story of the trial and tribulations of a pair of newlyweds whose disillusionment with married life begins even before the honeymoon is over has all the raciness of Tennessee Williams' popular works, but this time the famou playwright has mixed his tongue-in-check barbs with touches of tenderness and sympathy, all of which add up to a delightful whole.

'Candidate' held over at the Met

"The Manchurian Candidate" has finally been produced as a screenplay and is now at the Met Theatre.

Shortly after Richard Condon's highly controversial novel was published, many of Hollywood's top actors, including Frank Sinatra, sought it as a vehicle to star themselves.

The big drawback was how to adapt it to the screen. Finally, George Axelrod, hit play and screen writer, got together with five - time TV Emmy Award nominee and film director John Frankenheimer and bought the property for co-production.

Two years later, when the script finally suited them, they took it to Frank Sinatra. He finished reading it at three o'clock in the morning and, typically, called Axelrod at once. "Your script's a gas," he told the sleepy writer. "Let's do it."

Delightful comedy at Harlem Theatre

All the wonderfully romantic tales concerning princesses have long excited the imagination.

They have been the subject of fairy tales, poems and plays, and have been enjoyed and cherished by children and adults alike throughout the years. In William Wyler's Paramount comedy, "Roman Holiday," which is now at the Regent Theatre, a delightful tale of just such a princess is wondrously and captivatingly unfolded.

Starring Gregory Peck, one of filmdom's most popular leading men, and Audrey Hepburn, so magnificent in "Breakfast at Tiffany's" and winner of the Academy Award for her role in "Roman Holiday," the motion picture utilizes this most time - proven premise of story telling — that of a hopeless love between royalty and a commoner.

Excitement on screen at Royal

Anthony Quinn, Jackie Gleason, Mickey Rooney and Julia Harris happily combine their brilliant talents in one of the year's most absorbing dramas, "Requiem for a Heavyweight," now at the Royal.

It is the moving and compassionate story of a simple man suddenly divorced from his way of life, faced with problems beyond his ability to solve and desperately seeking to retain his own innate decency in an unfamiliar world. Unable to work at the only trade he knows — boxing —he suddenly discovers that even there, amongst his "friends," he is no longer wanted.

The second features is "The Devil's Messenger."
