M. P. CONFERENCE ENDS

Conference Adjourned Monday Night At Midnight

The biggest program ever initiated in the Maryland Annual Conference of the M. P. Church was launched at the second day of the Conference, which was held at Lowe Memorial Church, Baltimore. The program consisted of raising the sum of $1,000,000 during the month of May for the general church work and for the aid of the educational and other institutions of the denomination. The program was heartily concurred in by all the clerical and lay delegates and an enthusiastic and spirited drive will mark the campaign.

Realizing the importance of the campaign at this time and in order that the Methodist Protestants may have "something big" on hand during these days of reconstruction and readjustment, it was decided that all other efforts to raise money for the various benevolences of the church during the year be subordinated to this one campaign. The Conference established a precedent in going so far as to set aside the usual visitations of its president, authorizing him to devote his entire time, at least for the next two months, to the raising of this amount and to the plans for the drive. It is proposed to raise the sum of $250,000, the amount apportioned to the Maryland Conference, in a 10-day whirlwind campaign during the month of May.

The whole program was outlined in an address by Rev. Dr. T. H. Lewis, president of Western Maryland College, in which he deprecated the fact that so far the Methodist Protestant denomination was the only one that up to the present time had not determined upon some big constructive program in which its members might engage to show their loyalty to their church and to their faith. Dr. Lewis declared that in the past the denomination to which he had the honor of being identified, has been used to doing business along small and unpretentious lines, and that despite the fact that the Methodist Protestants are capable of doing big things, they have for the most part sought the "alley routes", being timid about coming out in the main thoroughfares and doing bigger things along with the other big religious denominations.

Dr. Lewis insisted that one of the greatest setbacks the denomination could receive at this time would be to go on record as having no "big business" on hand and that to fail in this program would mean the loss of the denomination's greatest opportunity for advancement. He declared the project to be the most gigantic ever undertaken by the denomination and said it was absolutely necessary at this time in order that the 35,000 members and the fully 50,000 constituents of the church is moving along with the other churches in raising large sums for the benefit of their general church work for home and foreign missions and to increase the efficiency of their educational institutions.

Rev. Dr. J. M .Gill, of the West Baltimore Church, also delivered a stirring address along the same lines. The following ministers were appointed a commission to apportion the $25,000 among the 19 districts of the Maryland Conference: Rev. Dr. J. M. Gill, of the West Baltimore Church; Rev. Dr. Geo. W. Haddaway, of Starr Church, Baltimore; and Rev. Dr. Frank T. Benson, editor of the Methodist Protestant. Scores of teams of minute men will be sent over the conference districts to stimulate enthusiasm in the drive.

Appointments to pastorates, including the assignment of newly ordained ministers, retirements and interchanges between churches, occupied the closing hours of the Conference.

One of the most impressive ceremonies of the week was held yesterday morning at the conference church, when 12 young men, who had passed rigid tests by the examining boards after completing their theological studies, were ordained as fully accredited ministers of the M. P. Church. The class was the largest ordained at a local conference in many years. A thirteenth candidate, G. E. McDorman, was prevented by illness from attending, and will be ordained in a few days. The new ministers are J. W. Townsend, Raymond W. White, Karl H. Warehein, E. Lester Bullard, J. R. McKeawn, Guy Leister, J. Lease Green J. W. Baxley, J .T. Moore, C. H. Dudson, J. H. Lynch and A. F. T. Rann.

The suestion of union of the Methodist churches will not down. Year after year the matter is revived and there is always more or less pulpit talk along these lines.

The report of the conference steward showed a total for general interests of $29,217, an increase of $16,064; a total for local interests of $388,338, an increase of $49,431, and a total for all purposes of $465,197, an increase of $74,435.
