City, Edmondson elevens favored as schoolboy campaign begins

City College and Edmondson High School loom as the two most likely division champions for 1965, as the Maryland Scholastic Association football season gets under way today (Friday).

Actually, this afternoon's schedule, which marks the opening of the campaign for only six teams, all in Division "B," Dunbar meets Meadow at Kirk Field, Forest Park visits Cardinal Gibbons and Carver plays host to Gilman.

A full schedule is on tap next weekend, commencing with the Douglass-Poly tangle at Kirk Field on Thursday and culminating in the Carver-Edmondson face-off on Saturday.

• • •

AS THE AFRO views the oncoming race, City figures slightly stronger than Poly, who is her perennial rival for "A" Division honors. Between them, the Collegians and Engineers have held sway in football since 1961.

Calvert Hall, boasting a line that has two years' experience of working together and a backfield that is shifty around quarterback Larry Albright, could be the upsetter in "A."

• • •

NOT TO BE overlooked in this section, however, is Douglass. The Ducks, with a line as big as anybody in the conference, may have to overcome an early handicap until their backfield jells. If they work out their problems quickly, coach Roy Cragway may find himself in the thick of things with the contenders.

It won't take Douglass long to learn where they're headed. They opened against Poly last Thursday, as previously stated.

As seen from this corner, Patterson, Mt. St. Joe, Loyola and Curley will make up the second division in the "A" loop standings.

OVER ON the "B" side, with quarterback Bill Canty manning the controls at Edmondson, the Redskins appear solid favorites to repeat.

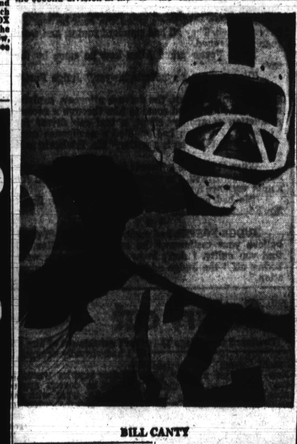
Carver coach Charlie Robinson admits he would much prefer that the football season be dispensed with this year. He is that pessimistic about the Cubs' chances.

If Carver has no more potential than her tutor visualizes—which is seriously doubted in many quarters—then Edmondson should win in a walk. Especially in view of the fact Robinson's charge are considered the chief contention.

• • •

A TOUGH McDonogh eleven may make it tough for Carver to finish second, as predicted here. But after the first three, there appears little to choose.

Dumbar seems to be at her lowest ebb on the gridiron and unless the Poets can come up with another of their numerous surprises, they may battle Forest Park, Mervo, Gilman, Southern and Gibbons to see-which escapes the cellar—LACY.



BILL CANTY

SWAPPED — Baltimore Bullets sophomore Wally Jones, top, missing from the team's Fort Monroe base and other subposts in Philadelphia for non-support, was traded by the Bullets to the 76ers, Wednesday for veteran center Johnny Kerr. Jones, reportedly unheard from since Sept. 7, is expected to prefer playing in his hometown, where he was extremely popular as a collegian at Villanova.

4 college cage bills to Civic

College basketball doubleheaders, featuring top-flight national and local teams, will return to the Civic Center this season with more of everything, according to Ben Roth, president of Championship Sports, which sponsors the twin bill series.

"We're offering more games—four twin bills instead of three—more teams, more popular - priced seats, and more special programs for alumni and college basketball fans alike," Roth announced.

"In our initial season last year, we learned that local fans are intensely loyal to local teams, so on each twin bill this year we've booked at least one city or state quintet."

The series opens on Dec. 9, with Toledo meeting Temple and Navy tangling with Oregon State.

NO 2-PLATOON STUFF:

Bears to field balanced, versatile team for debut

What appears to be a well-balanced, highly versatile starting lineup is in the wrapping stage at Morgan State College as coach Earl Banks prepares to lead his Golden Bear eleven to Hampton Institute for the 1965 football opener tomorrow (Saturday).

The wily, rotund mentor, launching his 6th year at the helm of the Morgan eleven, is delegating four seniors, four juniors and three sophomores to comprise the opening lineup against the Pirates.

Such an assortment portends to assure the Golden Bear aggregation a blend of experience and dash.

• • •

SENIORS IN the Banks-built starting unit are end Ev Fullwood, tackle Tom Carroll, fullback Ken Duke and halfback Clarence Scott, shifted to the running side after two successful years at fullback.

Juniors are at both guard berths, with Willie Lanier, long touted as one of Morgan's finest linemen, on one side and James Phillips on the other. Gerald Boyd, another junior, is at the end opposite Fullwood, and Clarence Thomas, still another, mans the center post.

One of the three sophomores, Gilbert Moore, has been entrusted with the quarterback responsibility. The other two second - year men are Harvey Palmore, a tackle, and Earl Mayo, the right halfback.

• • •

BOTH PALMORE and Mayo are Washingtonians, the latter a product of Eastern High's championship eleven.

Fullwood and Boyd are native Baltimoreans, Everett a graduate of Dunbar and Gerald hailing from Douglass.

Although the starting lineup as detailed by Banks is freshman free, it is entirely likely that at least four young first - year players will see much of the action.

• • •

EARL AND his assistants, Jesse Thomas, Brutus Wilson and Nat Taylor, have been greatly impressed by Larry Thompson, John Fuqua, John Howard and James Bruce.

"They're going to get a lot of work, I'm sure of that," Banks told the AFRO on the eve of his departure for the Tidewater game.

THOMPSON is from Frederick, Md., weighs 190 pounds and is described by Banks as "a fine blocker" at the right halfback position. Fuqua, a Detroit youngster, has shown prowess on both offense and defense at halfback and fullback. He also weighs 190.

Howard, a 205 - pounder from Burlington, N. J., has been catching the eye with his running from the left halfback slot. And Bruce, a prospective linebacker at 210, hails from Oyster Bay, L. I.

• • •

"WE HAVE no intention of going whole hog for the two-platoon system," declared Banks. "There are about six of our boys who will play only defense, but the other five will go both ways.

"Included among these 'specialists' are a pair of youngsters who were out with the Bears early in the 1964 season, but got lost in the shuffle, one way or another."

• • •

THE GOLDEN BEAR mentor had reference to Edward Hayes, a native of Florida who is lapped as "definite safety" on defense by Earl, and Samuel Glasscho.

"Glasscho," asserts defensive backfield coach Thomas, "looks like a real find for us. I think he's going to do a bangup job as either the left halfback or right halfback defender." — LACY.

HE BELTS' EM ALL:

Lenny Lyles as unpopular with mates as with foes

When Lenny Lyles works on his pass defense he turns on full power. If the receiver he's trying to handcuff is making the big moves and threatening to leave the 6-2, 202-pound Lyles in his wake, Lenny is likely to shake him up a time or two to indicate that defense is a serious business with him.

It's so serious that onlookers at practice sessions often get the impression that the former Louisville speedster is trying to "do in" his teammates.

The same opinion is sometimes shared by the Colts' opponents and, unfortunately, the league's officials, who've been quick to drop the penalty flag when Lenny has become overly aggressive in his handling of enemy receivers. But no one has succeeded in dimming his enthusiasm.

• • •

"SURE, I play those ends and flankers close," said Lyles. "It's frequently possible to intimidate some would be pass-catchers by feinting them as they come across the middle — but not Raymond Berry, the guy I have to defend against in our drills.

"He's all for the ball at any price. We go all out in practice against each other—even after the regular drills have ended when we put our headgear back on and go at it."

"HE'S A worker all right," interjected Baltimore defensive coach Charlie Winner. "Why is he called for pass interference more than normal? Well, he just goes hard all the time and he's not reluctant to rap those receivers.

"We've been trying to get him to keep looking back at the passer. Sometimes being nailed for interference is a matter of head position.

"Despite any penalties, however, we hope that Lenny keeps hitting."

"BATTLING BERRY sure has helped me," added Lyles, respectfully. "Among other things Raymond told me to never give up on a play — just keep chasing and belting those receivers.

"I follow this advise throughout practice. On one occasion, when Berry beat me to the ball and had it all but wrapped up, I raked him with both hands and managed to pry the ball loose. Raymond's reacton was predictable.

"He said, 'Nice searching, Lenny, keep playing it that way.'"

SO THE one-time kickoff return specialist continues to play right halfback this way.

And as a "goodie" he's had considerable success in tracking down the "baddies" who've broken loose in the Colts' secondary.

Tan Irish guard cited as lineman of the week

CHICAGO, (UPI) — Notre Dame's Dick Arrington, a starter for the Fighting Irish football team for the third straight season, proved his versatility against California last week.

For his outstanding performance, he was named United Press International's Midwest lineman of the week.

Arrington's most spectacular play last week was performed, literally, with one hand. It came when the Irish were within range of the California goal line and Arrington had just left the field.

HE WAS ordered back into action, and ran onto the field with the chin strap on his helmet unattached.

While the play was called and while lining up, he still was attempting to hook the chin strap. When quarterback Bill Zloch took the ball and rolled out, Arrington led the way, still working on the strap.

He blocked out one man and continued to lead the interval touchdown run, and when the play was over, he finally managed to attach the strap.

• • •

"HIS PLAY was outstanding," Irish coach Ara Parseghian said. "His straight ahead power blocking was very good. He played one of the finest games of his Notre Dame career. His execution was of the highest efficiency."

That's high praise from a coach whose team lost only once in 10 games last year. Arrington was a key cog in that machine too.
