Music critics meet in Flint

By ADAH K. JENKINS

The 12th annual Music Critics Association Workshop and meeting at Flint, Mich., took place at the Pick - Durant Hotel.

Critics attended from newspapers in Canada and the United States, including publications in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Delaware, Maryland, North Carolina, Wisconsin, Washington, D.C. and West Virginia.

The conference sponsors and participating organizations included the University of Michigan, The "Citizen Patriot" (daily) of Jackson, Mich., The "Lint Journal," the Mott Foundation, the Board of Education, College and Cultural Development, Performing Arts Association and Community Music Association, all located in Flint; The AC Spark Plug Division and Buick Motor Division, both of General Motors Corporation.

Under the leadership of William Gundy, president of MCA and Gordon Gapper, secretary, there was intensive consideration not only of problems relative to music criticism in many aspects, but much thought was devoted to the cultural and educational expansion on that is sweeping the country.

At each session there were consultants from editorial staffs, university, college and conservatory facilities, as well as composers, conductors and performing musicians.

The recent passage, with presidential blessing, of the 20 million dollar Arts and Humanities Bill, gave rise to a survey of many aspects of the federal, state and municipal program.

Roger L. Stevens, chairman of the National Council on the Arts, at a dinner meeting gave a highly enlightening description of the proposed Humanities and Arts Foundations and the mechanics thru which assistance will be given the performing, visual and creative arts.

MCA members were challenged to add to their concerns an interest, thru their columns in improving audience attendance at musical events and in building more community support of the arts.

They were urged to use their influence with organizations that sponsor concerts in favor of booking more solo performers whose talents have been neglected greatly in favor of choral and instrumental ensembles.

During a session with Georgy Sanford Sender, chairman of the doctoral program in piano at the University of Michigan and Thor Johnson, director of Interlochen Arts Academy (an institution for talented high school students), we were enjoined to encourage the development of gifted students for artist performing careers rather than employing their talents only in teaching.

During a discussion of the educational aims of MCA, Paul Hume, music editor of the "Washington Post," gave detailed report on the critic training program now in its second year at the University of Southern California.

WITH A four - year Rockefeller grant, the carefully selected students (out of 125 applicants) pursue an intensive yet practical course of study, with a year of apprenticeship (on salary) with a newspaper.

At a subsequent workshop, the demanding qualifications of a music critic in the rapidly changing trends of our present culture, were considered with Walter S. Collins, chairman of the music department at Oakland University, John V. Field, professor of journalism at the University of Michigan and Raymond Gerkowski, conductor of the Flint Symphony Orchestra.

The amazing story of the Flint College and Cultural Development program begun in 1936, was related at a dinner meeting. In an effort to "transform the drab, dingy factory town" an informal club of friends and neighbors agreed to an individual contribution of $25,000 "to get the program off the ground."

With 10 million as a beginning and a later contribution of 6 million, the public library, museum, planetarium and college were built.

Of 6 m lion, the public library, museum, planetarium and college were built.

One and a half millions have been placed in a trust fund for the maintenance of the program, begun by the industrialists of the auto emhire in Flint.

The project also included a symphony orchestra and chorus, both of which were heard in a public concert at Central High School.

* * *

AT A luncheon held in the gorgeous Grey Renaissance Room at the Museum we were afforded the opportunity of hearing about the Mott program which is operated in cooperation with the Flint Board of Education.

From Miss Bettye Keene, a music specialist supervisor in the public schools, we were informed of the extensive music program, which now has 900 elementary school children studying violin for a three - year period.

Later, the same youngsters will study wind instruments, thus having the opportunity to develop potenial before reaching high school, when they can specialize wherever their talents lie.

Charles Stewart Mott, the 85 - year - old industrialist and philanthropist directs the Mott foundation.

The 50 - voice Male Chorus of AC Spark Plug Division of General Motors, gave an entertaining concert in the best tradition of glee club singing, under the direction of Everett Ewing, a graduate of Juilliard. The chorus will give its 20th annual concert this week.

A fascinating glimpse at music in the large industrial plant was given by Al Sunberg, director of musical events at RAC. There are three choral groups of 50 persons each and weekly hour and a half rehearsals, with no deduction in pay if they fail during plant shifts.

The MCA meeting adjourned Sunday afternoon, with the agreement that the 1966 workshop will convene in a city to be selected by the executive committee.

(A review of the two concerts given at the convention will follow next week).

Tydings to face newsmen on show

Recently returned from a tour of the combat areas in Vietnam, U. S. Senator Joseph D. Tydings will answer questions posed by a panel of newsmen on Maryland News Conference on Sunday at 5 p.m. on WBAL - TV 11.

All of us are aware of the growth we are experiencing in the Auxiliary Growth, however, does not always represent progress. We in the Auxiliary cannot sit back and wait for progress to come us, we must create an atmosphere for nurturing progress and with this challenge in mind, the first Provident Hospital Auxiliary Workshop was held Saturday, Nov. 13 at the Annex.

Its' main objectives were to: Give the members of the Auxiliary an opportunity to become better acquainted with their organization with mutual objectives and with each other; also to provide a good working atmosphere and the opportunity for an exchange of ideals.

These were words from the president, Mrs. Martha Holmes.

The program started at 10 a.m. with coffee and registration, then a guiding tour of the hospital by Charles Tildon, director, Provident Hospital Development Program; greetings, Mrs. Martha Holmes, Mrs. Joanna Smith, Catonsville Twig; remarks, Henry Whythe, administrator; conference workshop; luncheon, greeting by Mr. Tildon; lecture, "Prescription For Effective Speech," by Wiley Daniels, program director, Radio Station WEBB;

Report of conference, summary, Mrs. Beatrive Avery, vice president.

Mrs. Willa Bland was chairman of the workshop and did a fine job as mistress of ceremony. Members who attended the workshop from the Twig were: Mrs. Elsia Williams, Mrs. Fannie Hayes, Mrs. Winfred Coe, Mrs. Joann Smith, Mrs. Gertrude Smith, Miss Mae Thomas and Yours Truly.

CONGRATULATIONS to charming Mrs. Carlene Gundy, wife of Leslie Gundy bar., (contractor) of Old Frederick Road, who has been elected president of The Montebello State Hospital Auxiliary. She also served as correspondent and recording secretary and vice president of the auxiliary.

Mrs. Gundy is the only colored member on the executive board, and has been on the board for six years. She also has been chairman of their annual bazaar for four years.

A very busy young lady she is.

She is in charge of the colored Patience Beauty Salon and is seeking volunteers in this department. If you are interested, you may reach Mrs. Gundy at BL 7-2860.

Congratulations are also extended to Grover McCrea Jr., of Cecil Avenue who has recently been promoted from sales manager to vice president of The Ever Lasting Products, (Seal - O - Matic) Waterless Cookware.

Mr. McCrea is a former employee of the Westinghouse Corporation where he was employed as an accountant. He is a graduate of Loyola College. Mr. McCrea and his lovely wife, Myrian have two children, Dyrall, 7, and cute little Denesie, 10 months.

DOWN Turner Station way, the Camp Fire Girls with some of their leaders assembled on the Avon Beach Road to rake and clean away the weeds on the bare lot in preparation for their Camp Fire which was held Saturday on Avon Beach Rd.

Area 15 Community No. 1 had a turn out of about 140 including all Girl Scouts of the Turner Station Community along with families and many friends.

This Camp Fire brought inspiration to the entire community and also brought new volunteers for Girl Scouting.

CONGRATULATIONS also go out to Harthrown Smith, president of the Golden Age Club. He started with seven but now the number has grown to 25. The following committees have been appointed: program, Mrs. Hattie Smith, chairman; Herbert Sane, Mrs. Scolley Webb, Mrs. Lester Foreman; refreshment committee, Mrs. Catherine Williams, chairman; Mrs. Blanche Ennis, Mrs. Charles Squirrell, Herbert Mitchell, Mrs. Scolley Webb; hospitality committee, Ernest Johnson, chairman; George Hopewell, Harry Turner; sick committee, Mrs. Julia Williams and Mrs. C. E. Johnson.

Send cheer notes to Mrs. Luscendia Johnson, a patient at St. Agnes Hospital; to Mrs. Berdia F. Smith, at her home on Winters Lane.

Thought For Today: Cheerfulness is the best promotion of health, and is as friendly to the mind as to the body.

NOV. 28

St. Katherine PE Church, Division and Pressman Sts., will hold their annual Harvest Home dinner from 4 to 8 p.m. at Mount Calvary Episcopal Church, Eutaw Place and Madison Ave.
