700 to benefit by new wage coverage

Approximately 700 employees of nursing homes in the city stand to benefit through higher wages, as a result of City Council passage Monday of the revised minimum wag law now covering such establishments.

This estimate comes from Joseph A. Bush, director, Minimum Wage Commission, who told the AFRO there are 47 such homes in this city.

New coverage of these establishments means their employees must be paid a minimum wage of $1 an hour.

This will become effective when Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin signs the ordinance. Though not scheduled, this should come within ten days, a spokesman in his office said.

THE AVERAGE prevailing wage of employees in city nursing homes, Mr. Bush revealed earlier, is between 55 and 65 cents an hour.

However, there are 1,100 welfare patients in these city homes, for whom the Welfare Department pays $210 a month each for their care.

Some of these homes, Mr. Bush revealed, have a few other than such patients.

He told the AFRO there were no indications officials of these nursing homes wil not compy with the new law.

The new ordinance also covers theatre employees, but only, as with other businesses, where there are seven or more workers.

vanced 20 percent during the same period. • • •

HARDEST hit are the people least able to absorb or compensate for the rising prices. Among these are the pensioners, those living on small fixed incomes, and of course, people of low income.

Included among the latter are persons on public assistance and the unemployed who draw compensation. The formula for public assistance, or welfare, pay was drawn at a time when the true spending value of the dollar was higher than it is today.

In addition, under the anti-poverty program, thousands of persons are being trained and re-trained for jobs that will often pay only the $1.25 an hour minimum wage.

The fast pace of rising living expenses threatens to nullify these efforts at rising above poverty, even before such training is completed.

The true spending value of the dollars trainees will receive will be far below the established value of the minimum.

Unless the formula is changed, the purpose of the entire program could face defeat by relegating these same people again to the poverty class.

IN VOICING his concern about the situation, an official in the anti-poverty program stated, "It is clear that the whole anti - poverty effort must be related to a meaningful minimum wage — certainly not existing ones.

"I am speaking of a minimum that ranges around $1.75 to $2 an hour. Only such a minimum will raise these people above the poverty standards against which they and we are fighting," he went on.

Others familiar with the true picture have voiced the opinion that the rule - of - thumb $300 for a family of four designation as a poverty guideline needs to be revised upward to a more realistic figure.

They agree the guideline must be linked to changes in the cost of living and accordingly, must be raised or lowered.

"A failure to adjust a designated poverty level to cost of living and other factors," said one, "could reduce people already at poverty level to a state of sub - poverty. If this should occur I dread to think of the possible consequences." • • •

BASED ON a recent survey, the value of a dollar has dropped an average 14 cents since 1955.

This means it takes roughly $9 a week more income to maintain the same standard on which a family lived 10 years ago.

In many geographical areas, as well as with some areas of spending, these figures are too low.

It is perfectly clear that, despite frequent assurances from Washington, that our economy is sound and inflation is being held in check, the fact is the constantly rising cost of living is gradually eating away at the little security or hopes of millions of low income citizens.

Ave. who ended her marriage to Samuel B. Mitchell of 3104 Windsor Ave.

The Mitchells were married on Jan. 16, 1957 and ended the union on June 23, 1961.

Mrs. Mitchell said that her husband came home at 3 a.m. and told her to prepare some food for him. She said that he had earlier refused to eat the supper she had made, so she refused to cook at that time in the morning.

Whereupon, according to the testimony, Mr. Mitchell picked up a lamp and struck her with it. She, too, went to the hospital, where six stitches were required to close the wound. She plaintively added that it also required that her head be partially shaved.

Mrs. Mitchell said that when she finally was able to get away and take their infant son with her, Mr. Mitchell came to her mother's home, threatened them and took the child away. The husband still has the child.

A DIVORCE went to Mrs. Idella Williams, who testified that she and Ernest Williams of Blackstone, Va. voluntarily separated on June 1, 1942.

They were married on Nov. 1, 1936. Mrs. Williams gave her address as 704 N. Eden St.

FRANK JOHNSON, to whom a divorce was also granted, said that he and Mrs. Hattie Johnson voluntarily ended their marriage in January, 1945. They were married on June 3, 1935.
