Camps on wheels for summer Girl Scout activity

NEWARK

Camps and girls are on wheels this summer as the Girl Scout Council of Greater Essex County takes to the road to bring an expanded "Camp for the City" to Newark girls from seven to 12 years of age.

Two station wagons with Neighborhood Youth Corps girls and camp directors will bring camping to girls at Scudder Homes, Montgomery Presbyterian Church in Belleville, Franklin D. Roosevelt Homes, Clinton Hill Rehabilitation Center, Felix Fuld Homes, and St. Paul's Methodist Church.

UNTIL JULY 22 the camp on wheels' 'will be located at Scudder and at the Montgomery Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Nell Mayo, Director of Field Services for the Girl Scout Council, said. From July 26 to August 3, the two station wagons will be parked at Franklin D. Roosevelt and Clinton Hill Rehabilitation Center, and from August 9 to August 19 they will be at Felix Fuld and St. Paul's Methodist Church.

THE PROGRAMS offered will be games, crafts, nature exploration, songs, hikes, dramatics, dancing, and camping skills.

The program is given from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays, and is substantially the same as the one offered to girls who attend the free day camps sponsored by the Girl Scouts at Columbus, Walsh, Hayes, Kretchmer, and Stella Wright housing projects, Mrs. Mayo said.

Each housing project site accommodates 60 girls, and they have almost all been filled. The girls at the permanent sites will take to buses, subways, and the tubes in a program of exploration made possible through a $3,625 grant from the Turrell Fund.

TRIPS TO the Statue of Liberty, Bronx Zoo, American Museum of Natural History, Hayden Planetarium and the United Nations will enable the young campers to see many parts of New York. In addition, they will travel to the Watching Reservation, Newark Museum, New Jersey Fire Museum, and South Mountain Reservation where the summer will be climaxed with a field day.

Campers at the housing project will receive free milk at lunch time and will go to city swimming pools several times a week, Mrs. Mayo said.

ATA juniors win in Kentucky

By DICK HOBSON

The ATA Juniors after eight years of concentrated appeals received entry blanks for the Kentucky Junior Invitational Tournament.

To accomplish this entry, the tournament officials had to move the tournament from the courts of the elite Louisville Boat Club to the Seneca Park Courts. The Kentucky officials were shocked at the personnel of the junior team that reported with a Japanese, a Caucasian girl and four Negroes.

TEAM WINS

The team placed players in the finals of the Girls under 14 singles events when Tam O'Shaughnessy, Fullerton, Calif., defeated teammate, Tina Watanabe, Los Angeles, Calif. to reach the finals where she (O'Shaughnessy) met and defeated Kathalene Kraft, Tulsa, Oklahoma 2-6, 6-0, 6-3 for the under 14 championships. Tam had to come from behind to win.

UNDER 14 DOUBLES

Tina and Tam reached the finals in the 14 doubles when they came from behind to beat Gia Brascbi, Puerto Rico and Cynthia Thomas, Los Angeles, Calif. 3-6, 6-4, 6-1 to reach the finals where they played Carol Coates, Claremont, Calif. and Kathalene Kraft, Tulsa Oklahoma 6-2, 6-3.

GIRLS 18 DOUBLES

Bonnie Logan upset in girls 18 singles. Bonnie, seeded No. 3 las' to Mary Lowden, Fort Worth, Texas 6-1, 6-2 in the biggest upset of the tournament. Bonnie, a former member of the junior team, played doubles with Christine Wallace to reach the semi-finals of the 18 doubles by defeating Sue Evans, Louisville, Ky. and Dorothy Metzroth, Louisville, Ky., 6-3, 6-2 but lost to Mary Lowden, Fort Worth, Texas and Ginger Pfeifer, Springfield, Ohio 7-5, 6-3.

John Lucas was slaughtered by Barr Bayston, Oceanside, Calif. 6-0, 6-0 in a first round match. Even though Barr was not seeded and lost in the second round, he taught Lucas a lesson that it is quite vital to have a good service to play in the USLTA tournaments.

POLICEMEN SUED

A suit demanding $1,830,000 in damages has been filed by the NAACP on behalf of Benjamin F. McIver against six members of the police department. He charged officers beat him on the lawn in front of his home.

Sailors hold first scrimmage

After two full weeks of preseason workouts, head coach Billy Cox gave his football prospects a real opportunity to display their talent Thursday evening when the Sailors held their first full contact scrimmage.

Cox started with 102 players on July 5th including 24 returning veterans from the team that posted a 9-2 mark and won the North American League championship last season. He's trimmed down to 80 players, working out nightly at Fairlawn field in Anacostia.

Police shots injure wife, 3 kids, in Cleveland riot

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Police shot and wounded a young colored woman and three children recently in pre-dawn racial strife that spread fire to areas adjoining the city's battle-scarred east side. A National Guard officer was hit by a ricochetting bullet.

National Guard troops and police, hard-pressed to control hit-run bands of youths who staged scores of firebomb attacks Wednesday night and early Thursday, braced for a possible fourth consecutive night of violence.

THE PRESIDENT of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) blamed part of the rioting on harsh treatment by Cleveland's "predominantly white" police force.

"Pranksters may have got ten this thing going, but there is a great deal of ill will involved . . . the question of the police force, which is predominantly white, and which has been rather rough in the treatment of persons in this area, has made the situation worse," said the Rev. Donald G. Jacobs.

For the first time since Monday night when the rioting began, violence spilled into the Northeast and South sections of the city, areas which also are predominantly colored. A 10-mile square area was dotted with fires.

THE SHOOTING occurred just before dawn near the University Party Center, a rooler rink-dance hall which had been set ablaze by a roving band of youths, when an automobile tried to break through a roadblock, police said.

Police said they opened fire when the driver, Henry Townes, 22, failed to heed orders to stop and drove directly at a patrolman.

Police riddled the car, hitting Mrs. Diana Townes, 16, her son, Emanuel, 7 months, her stepson, Christopher, 4 and her brother, Ernest Williams, 12. Townes, who was not hurt, was arrested.

MRS. TOWNES and her stepson were reported in serious condition following surgery, the boy with a wound of the head. Mrs. Townes and the other children were grazed by bullets and flying glass.

Capt. James Pletcher of Lake Milton, Ohio, commander of H Co. of the 102nd Armored Cavalry Regiment, was hit in the leg by a glancing bullet He was not injured seriously.

According to witnesses, the Townes couple became frightened when fire engulfed the roller rink and decided to take the children to the home of a relative.

Capt. Pletcher said his men, part of a 2,000-man contingent sent into the city, deployed his troops at the roadblock with police in support of firemen who battled vainly to save the roller rink. Damage was estimated at $100,000.

MRS. KENNER reported about eight white youths gathered on a private roadway leading into their home at about 9:15 Wednesday night. They shouted threats, used profanity and racial epithets, he said.

Police came at Mrs. Kenner's request but stated they could not provide protection because of insufficient police, he said. Within the ten minutes it took police to arrive the hecklers dispersed.

Mrs. Kenner feels this is one of several incidents designed to force colored people from the area. During her three years' residence there she has received several offers to buy her home from real estate dealers and private individuals. She has declined to sell.

VICE PRESIDENT of the Cheshbrook Civic Assn., Mrs. Kenner said a cross has been burned at the First Baptist Church of Chestbrook which she attends.

Neighbors reported that the home of Ira Montague, 1450 Kirby Rd., has been fired on six times.

that it indicated there was "some form of organization" behind them. He said false fire and police alarms forced many additional guardsmen to spread out, weakening law enforcement in the area.

Police arrested nine adults and six juveniles, considerably fewer than the two previous nights when 136 persons were arrested. Five of the adults were arrested in a stolen car, two were charged with carrying concealed weapons and two were booked for looting.

An unlighted fire bomb was found on the porch of Jack Russell, a white City Councilman who is in Europe. It apparently was aimed at a supermarket next door, which had been set ablaze.

IN A 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. Thursday, firemen said they answered 108 alarms — more than 50 during the night. Eight were false alarms

Dozens of fires were set by crudely fashioned Molotov cocktails, bottles filled with gasoline and ignited by a rag wick, hurled by youths who evaded police and National Guard Patrols by using autos with headlights turned off. Many businesses and some private homes were set ablaze.

Arsonists tried to set fire to two elementary schools. The Howe and Charles E. Chesnutt Schools —as well as a YMCA on Addison Street in the Hough Section. They failed in each case.

Guidance office to help ex-GIs

NEW YORK —Ex - servicemen now receive government financial support while taking job skills training at approved private vocational schools to qualify them for good paying jobs, it was announced this week by the newly formed Vocational Training Guidance Service, 50 West 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Organized to give free guidance in the selection of appropriate private vocational schools, the service offers to provide information about what courses are available and under what conditions.

It urges all ex - GI's, who want to acquire the necessary skills to find employment and secure in good paying jobs, to acquaint themselves with all the facts and to enroll early.

AFTERMATH OF A RIOT —Gunshot victim, Wallace Kelly, 32, is helped into Mt. Sinai emergency room by his sister, Mrs. Henrietta Barhan. Kelly was shot in the chin by a sniper in the riot torn Hough area of Cleveland, Ohio, this week. (UPI Telephoto)

Ecumenical gifts fill gap left by church tory fund withdrawal over social action

By LOUIS CASSELS
WASHINGTON

The deepest schism in American religious life today is between those who favor and those who deplore "social action."

Social action is a catchall term for the growing involvement of churches in activities aimed not at the salvation of individual souls but at remedying social evils such as war, poverty and racial injustice.

Some denominations are more heavily engaged than others in social action. But it is a subject of controversy in virtually every religious body. And it is capable of arousing passions as intense as those stirred in previous generations by disputes over theology and doctrine.

Recent events in the Episcopal Diocese of Washington, D.C., provide a good example of the tensions developing over social action.

THE SUFFRAGIN (ASSISTANT) Bishop of the diocese, the Rt. Rev. Paul Moore, Jr., has been conspicuously identified with the civil rights movement. He is national chairman of the Delta Ministry, which aids Mississippians. He also has given public support to the "Free D.C. Movement."

Bishop Moore outraged some conservative Episcopalians a few weeks ago by enforcing a boycott of Washington merchants who refused to support home rule.

A group of business executives organized an effort to have Bishop Moore "disciplined."

This maneuver was quietly but firmly squelched by his superior, Bishop William F. Creighton, a soft-spoken man of great determination whose commitment to the cause of social justice is less publicized but no less fervent than that of Bishop Moore.

THE NEXT MOVE CAME from the vestry of All Souls' Memorial Church, a wealthy parish which has a substantial number of retired military officers on its rolls.

The vestry of All Souls' voted to cut its annual contribution to the diocese in half — from $11,880 to $6,000 — as a protest against Bishop Moore's activities and other social action programs of the diocese, the national Episcopal Church and the National Council of Churches.

In a resolution sent to all other parishes of the diocese, the All Souls' vestrymen said

"Our laymen, believing in separation of church and state, do not want our contributions to the Lord's work used to propagandize controversial state subjects such as so-called "fair employment," sale or rental of private property, and termination of our nuclear defense experiments while other nations proceed with such development.

"NOR DO WE APPROVE use of church funds or personnel to foster public demonstrations or marches that tend to breed disrespect for law and order and the property rights of others."

Instead of supporting such things, the resolution said, the church should devote it money and manpower to "increased efforts on fundamental spiritual concerns that affect the destiny of the souls of its members and non-believers."

Last week, Bishop Creighton and Bishop Moore replied in a letter to all clergymen of the diocese.

"We do not need to belabor the reason for the church's involvement in social matters," they said. "Ever since Moses demanded better labor conditions for the Israelites in Egypt, the people of God have known that justice is a concern of the Almight, and therefore our concern.

"THE PROPHETS AND Jesus himself in his confrontation with the powers that be in Jerusalem, the apostles and the church down through the ages, have shown that one cannot carry out the commandment to love one's neighbor without struggling to improve the conditions under which he lives."

So far, no other parish has followed All Souls' lead. On the contrary, the vestries of four major parishes have passed resolutions condemning the attempt to change diocesan policies by financial pressure.

And two parishes have invited others to join in expanding their usual contributions to the diocese to make up for the All Souls' cut.

A diocesan spokesman said there also has been a sudden and sharp increase in individual contributions made directly to the diocese, with some checks coming from non-Episcopalians.

ONE OF THE MOST highly valued contributions came from the Rev. Gino Baroni of the Archbishop's Committee on Community Relations, Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Washington.

"I never thought I'd be making a contribution to an Episcopal mission fund," wrote Fr. Baroni. "Nevertheless, I wish to show my support for the program and the policies of the Episcopal diocese, because they affect us and promote the common good of the entire community."

More N.C. undertakers drop ambulance service

DUNN, N. C. (UPI) —Another community was added to the growing list of towns which may be without ambulance service by the fall.

Four funeral homes in Dunn two of them colored — have informed the Dunn City Council they will stop ambulance service Oct. 15.

At the same time, in a letter, the funeral directors asked for a meeting with the council. The reason for such a meeting was not specified in the letter.

The Council has not yet responded to the letter, and, no date has been set for a meeting between the two groups.

Signed by William Pearsell, manager of the Cromartie Funeral Home; Charles Skinner, of the Skinner-Drew Funeral Home; Walter Dafford, of the Dafford Funeral Home; and B. O. Peyton, of the Peyton Funeral Home.

During the past two months a crisis in ambulance service has developed in some parts of North Carolina, as funeral directors claim they are losing too much money from the service to continue it.

Directors in Forsyth, Randolph, Ware and Guilford counties have so far announced their intention to stop services either completely or in large part.

McLEAN CITIZENS MEET OVER ACTS OF TERRORISM

WASHINGTON

Racial incidents in McLean, Va. have stirred the citizens of the community who met Thursday night to discuss ways to combat terrorism.

The latest incident was an anti - colored demonstration by white youths near the home of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Kenner. He is supervisor of the No. 2 Boys club, 6300 Linway Terrace, McLean.

Mr. Kenner is a Metropolitan Police Boys Club official in the District. His wife, Beatrice, owns a flower shop at 5501 Georgia Ave., NW, also in D.C.

Officials deny project center to civic group

RICHMOND

The Gilpin Court Civic League has received a formal refusal of its request to hold meetings in the Gilpin Court Community Center, Miss Janice Evum, chairman, reported last week.

The league, however, is now making a second written request based on new information, she said.

Both Miss Exum's group and the Creighton Court Civic Group, Curtis Holt Sr., president, have sought to meet in the RHA - owned community centers in their respective projects.

They contend that since the centers were apparently built for the community, and built with tax money, the communities should be entitled to use them.

JESSE A. REYNOLDS, Department of Recreation and Parks director, told Miss Exum in a letter that "Since your group is a non-recreation organization, it would not be eligible to use a recreation building under our jurisdiction as a meeting place."

Frederic A. Fay, Richmond Redevelopment and Housing Authority (RRHA) director, in another letter to Miss Exum had left it up to Reynolds.

The new request will inquire into an apparent contradiction in policy and practice about who can use the centers:

Police hold man on murder charge

HAMPTON, Va. (UPI)— Hampton police were holding 40-year-old Robert D. Malcom of Newport News on a charge of murder.

Malcom was charged with the death of Robert L. Brown, III, 22, of Newport News.

Authorities said Brown died this week in a Newport News hospital after he was shot in a fight at Buckroe Beach.

RENT HIKED, RESIDENTS CHARGED FOR REPAIRS

WASHINGTON
By BERNARD GARNETT

The Senate District Committee has gotten into the fight started by the tenants at 4929 Foote St., NE, who have banned together to fight practices by their landlord, Maurice H. Rosenbloom.

Mrs. Doretha M. Dade, chairman of the 4929 Foote St. Residents Club, was called to testify, Thursday, before the committee, on practices against which the residents are rebelling.

Senators Joseph D. Tydings (D-Md) and Robert F. Kennedy (D-NY) are co-sponsoring a landlord-tenant bill designed to correct unjust actions by landlords on the part of housing developers.

MRS. DADE said that since Rosenbloom took possession of the unit in Deanwood, Feb. 1965, he has not kept up the apartment building and has instituted many retaliatory measures against the residents club.

The apartment built some time in the 1940's, is in what the then sprawling Far Northeast section of the city, today resembles an old-era slum in the way it is maintained. About half the hallway mail boxes have no locks.

There is no walk in front of the building and recently, there were no rodent control pellations for which Rosenbloom was called to task.

MRS. DADE said difficulty at 4949 Foote St., NE started shortly after February, 1965, when Rosenbloom took possession of the unit and found the tenants — particularly herself — were unwilling to accept his manner of dealing with them.

The residents complained whose apartment is elaborately equipped with modern furniture, wall - to - wall carpeting in the living room and dinette, air conditioning and an Oriental design stereo console, had some complaints.

Last year, the tiolet plumbing became faulty in Mrs. Dade's top floor unit, often leaking on the neighbor below. The roof leaked on her television set once, damaging it.

She said Rosenbloom received both complaints and said he "would get to it "soon," but, she added, never came.

Mrs. Dade said the roof was finally repaired, last year, under pressure from the housing division. Her brother repaired the plumbing.

MOST OF THE residents had the same or similar complaints. They asked the landlord for janitorial and maintenance service and finally teamed up to do the work themselves.

Mrs. Dade complained that as of this date, there still is no janitor to whom they could go in emergencies. But trash removal and some other services which the housing division pushed have taken place.

All this, according to Mrs. Dade, was repulsive to Rosenbloom, who raised the rents. But the big move was not until May, 1966, when the club was formed and Mrs. Dade was elected to head the group.

THE CLUB'S FIRST act was to petition for needed repairs in their units. Mrs. Dade said every tenant signed the petition, and the letter was sent via registered mail.

The letter was dated May 25. Mrs. Dade said the landlord mailed them a notice—dated the 23rd but postmarked May 25 — of a $3 hike in all rents and a price list on repairs, to be taken out of rent payments.

The way it would work, the cost of property damage, which he said really "are the responsibility of the tenants," would be taken from the rent payments, and the tenants would be notified of a "rent balance" of that amount.

Rosenbloom warned, "tenants having rent balances as much as $1 (after being given a time limit not specified in the notice) will be sued and evicted."

ONE TENANT, Raymond Bullock, went to court Wednesday morning for a rent balance of $10.50, $7.50 for fence damage and $3 for the rear bike he lost the case and was required to pay.

Mrs. Dade said she is now required to pay $12 extra per month, because of her air conditioner. Further, the same eviction notice which goes into effect July 29.

Rosenbloom also declared that apartments will be inspected, monthly, for roaches and other pests. Tenants with this problem will be ordered to clean their units within a certain time.

THE NOTICE warns, "If not followed through (the clean up order) then, orders to move will be given.

Charging that all this is part of a retaliatory measure, Mrs. Dade noted the number of court actions in the past month.

She has also discovered, she claims, that other tenants are warned against Residents Club participation.

Besides the action against Bullock, five other court actions are pending against 4929 Foote St., tenants, all filed in July
