Priest, open housing advocate dismissed fromasst. pastoracy

By ALBERT WASHINGTON

DETROIT — Because he used his pulpit to advocate open housing and to oppose the Vietnam war, a 46-year-old white Roman Catholic priest has been dismissed as assistant pastor of a church in northeast Detroit.

The Rev. Maurice W. Geary, former assistant pastor of St. David Roman Catholic Church, 8141 E. Outer Drive, was given his final pay and release papers last week by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Archibald M. Stitt, his pastor.

* * *

FATHER GEARY was fired after he celebrated mass. He was then told he could eat and sleep in the parish, but nothing more.

Father Geary said that problems between himself and his pastor had been growing since he was assigned to the church in 1966.

He said the two main problems were: his use of the church to discuss "the moral issues of the day," and his public opposition to the Vietnam war.

A spokesman for the Archdiocese of Detroit said: "There was a breakdown in the working relationship which necessitated asking Father Geary to help out in another position until Archbishop John F. Dearden returns from Rome."

THE BREAK came when 10 dissident parishioners started to walk out during Father Geary's sermon on race relations. A quiet and mild-toned man, the priest is reported to have asked the men, "Why are you leaving? Why not tell us?"

One of the 10, said to be associated with "Breakthrough," a right-wing group that has been working to get Father Geary fired, came to the front of the congregation and said, "We object to your sermon."

Father Geary has been an outspoken promoter of open occupancy in St. David, a predominantly Italian parish, since his arrival there.

An officer of the Detroit Draft Counseling Center Committee, Father Geary has worked with the committee's programs at St. Joseph Episcopal Church and at Central Methodist Church. The center's purpose is to explain alternatives to military service for draftees.

He participated in an anti-Vietnam vigil in Washington, D.C. from Jan. 31 to Feb. 2, and served on the executive committee of the Detroit Area Clergy and Laymen Concerned about Vietnam.

In March, a Detroit policeman led a petition drive to oust Father Geary at a St. David Parent-Teacher meeting, but reports are that the angry parents eventually apologized to the priest.

Petersburg births

PETERSBURG, Va. — The following births were reported last week from Petersburg Hospital: Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dean, a girl and Mr. and Mrs. Ned Fields, twin boys.

SEEKING ANSWER — Dr. Jonas E. Richmond, of the University of California, a research grantee of the American Heart Association, who is trying to find out why cells of the same kind stick together. His study could help transplanted organs "take" better.

Researcher questions why like cells stick

BERKELEY, Calif. — The University of California researcher placed a collection of individual liver and eye cells isolated from a chick embryo into a test tube.

Soon, liver cells were gravitating to other liver cells to start formation of a mini-liver; eye cells joined with eye cells. Put the eye and liver cells remained indifferent to each other.

Dr. Jonas E. Richmond, past established investigator of the phenomenon of cell recognition, whereby cells of the same kind are able to "know" and stick to each other.

He is seeking an explanation for this selective stickiness in the hope that one day it may help lead to more successful organ transplantation.

Dr. Richmond, a research professor in bioengineering and biophysics, has been building a strong case for the theory that this binding bias or cell identity is governed by the structure of one or several of the many complex carbohydrates that help to make up the membrane or envelope surrounding the cell.

But which one(s)?

This is what Dr. Richmond is trying to find out right now. To get answers he is using various chemicals (enzymes) to trim the cell membrane of certain carbohydrates (those attached to proteins) and studying how the cell's recognition properties are affected.

Ultimately, he would like to be able to pinpoint the specific molecule — and subsequently, the exact site on the molecule —that acts as the hook by which the cells take and bind to each other.

Va. Klan head gets $50 fine in lottery case

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Marshall B. Kornegay of Raleigh, N.C., grand dragon of the Virginia Ku Klux Klan, and three other men were fined $50 each Friday after pleading guilty to participating in an illegal lottery.

They were also given 60-day suspended sentences in Henrico County Court.

Two Henrico police officers testified that each of the four defendants took part in the lottery. They testified that Kornegay sold chances on a new automobile for $1 each during a July 4 Klan rally.

The defendants all pleaded guilty and the trial was over in 15 minutes. They were accompanied to court by Attorney Lester V. Chalmers of Raleigh. The attorney did not question the two police officers who were the state's only witnesses.

Votes against housing project

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Durham's local Zoning Commission has recommended against a proposed housing project in a colored neighborhood.

The commission voted to recommend to City Council that the area be rezoned for single family residential units only.

The proposed housing project caused demonstrations in the city this summer. Spokesmen said the Bacon Street project would enlarge the city's ghetto.

If the council accepts the commission's recommendation, the public housing plan will be shelved.

Practical nurses attend Pa. meet

State nurses attending included Mrs. Wedesman, Anderson, S.C.; Mrs. Fayer and Mrs. Murray of Charleston; Mrs. Nickpeary of Sumter.

Also Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Douglas, and Mrs. Jackson of Columbia; Mrs. Rice, Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Preston, Sumter; Mrs. Talley Sims and Mrs. Wright of Spartanburg; Mrs. Riley, and Mrs. Heard of Greenville.

Churches' Council names Dr. Spivey

ATLANTA, Ga. — Dr. Charles S. Spivey, Jr., Dean of Payne Theological Seminary, Wilberforce, Ohio, since June, 1957, will resign that office to become executive director of the Department of Social Justice for the National Council of Churches. He was elected to the post recently.

Dean Spivey will move to New York in June, 1968, although his term of office will begin Jan. 1.

The new director previously pastored in Pittsburgh, Pa., Columbia, South Carolina, and also taught at Allen University.

He was graduated from Wilberforce with an A.B. degree; Payne Theological Seminary with a B.D.; Yale Divinity School, B.D.; and additional study at Oberlin Graduate School of Theology and Western Seminary and the University of Pittsburgh.

The 20-year-old corporal died of head and body wounds sustained when a Viet Cong mortar shell exploded Army officials said.

According to his wife, Mrs. Theresa France, 200 block Fremont Ave., he had been slightly wounded earlier by another mortar explosion.

He told his wife he had been wounded while cradling a dying friend in his arms, the grieving young widow told the AFRO.

The young soldier also wrote that his name had been submitted for a Silver Star, but his wife knew none of the details of the action leading to the recommendation.
