Advertising For Church Members

Advertising as one solution of the rural church problem in the Episcopal Diocese of Easton is a probability as a result of an unusual experiment being carried out in Southern Ohio by Miss Elizabeth Matthews, of Glendale, that state. Miss Matthews is testing her theory by inserting advertisements in several Ohio newspapers for "5,000 lost Episcopalians."

That is the estimated number of communicants of the Episcopal Church living in the Diocese of Southern Ohio who have drifted away from the Church in the past decade. The number of "lost" Church members in the Diocese of Easton is notably as large. Most of them live in or near towns and villages where an Episcopal service is unknown. Until the organization a few months ago of the Church League for the Isolated, the Episcopal Church like others made no efforts to keep in communication with these rural communicants.

Now the League has chapters in nearly all of the eighty-seven Dioceses of the Episcopal Church and its work is expected to be helped greatly by the Episcopal Nation-wide Campaign being waged to mobilize the resources and communicants of the Church to meet the reconstruction problems which organized religion is facing.

How to reach these "lost" communicants of the Diocese of Southern Ohio was the problem Miss Matthews faced when the League was established in Ohio a few weeks ago. Other dioceses had obtained a line on a few "lost" communicants by depending upon rural clergymen and archdeacons. But Miss Matthews looked askance at such haphazard methods. "I am going to advertise for them—5,000 "lost" Episcopalians, she announced.

Other Episcopal Dioceses are watching Miss Matthews' experiment with an idea of following her example if the scheme proves a success.

Having found out who the "lost" Episcopalians are in the different Dioceses, the Church League for the Isolated proposes to keep them interested in the Church. Sunday School leaflets and magazines and prayer books will be sent to the children and church periodicals and the occasional ministrations of a priest provided for the adults.

"How can we serve you," is the motto of the Church League for the Isolated and it is the keynote of the League's advertisements. The fact that 50,000 other Episcopalians in Ohio stand ready to help their isolated fellow-churchmen is also emphasized.
