THE CROW

Is Said To Be The Enemy Of Farmer And Sportsman

Conserve the grain,
Protect the game,
Remove the "caws."

The above slogan is sweeping over the state like wildfire this year, and if old Jim Crow could add a knowledge of the alphabet to his other human-like attributes, he'd hang his head in black despair as he reads of the campaigns to eradicate him.

Being scavengers, crows carry the germs of the dreaded hoof and mouth disease, hog cholera, glanders, etc., which are lurking in countless numbers in every decaying bit of carrion. Farmers look on the visits of the crow to their farm yards with dread and apprehension. Crows undoubtedly destroy a large amount of song and game birds before they are through nesting, and also destroy their eggs and young.

Crows do not confine their hunting to small areas; they scour the country for miles around their haunts. They search tirelessly the forests, the brush and the marsh, for the eggs and the young useful insectivorous and game birds.

Crows show an almost uncanny intelligence in their ability to ferret out the nests and memorize their locations. The wily black demons will drop into meadows and fields near where numerous quail are nesting and industriously start an a bug hunt. Let a mother quail leave her nest, however, for a warm dust bath or a cool drink of spring water and the black shadow of that crow will darken the little nest and the ravenous maws of the ugly crow babes will be filled with the contents of fresh quail eggs, young quail in the embryo state and even young quail themselves.

The sustenance of the young of insectivorous birds is composed almost wholly of insects, and they require such an enormous amount that the parent birds are forced to spend practically the entire day insect hunting, leaving their young unprotected. The crows walk through the underbrush and hedge rows and devastate birds' homes. The loss to agricultural interests in this wholesale destruction of useful bird life is appalling to one who knows the insect destroying capabilities of the song birds.

A national crow shoot has been inaugurated in the United States this year and the campaign material issued says: "It is estimated that every year insects cause a loss of millions of dollars to the farmers, truck raisers and fruit growers. The farmers are the producers and whatever loss they sustain affects every consumer in the country. Song birds are the natural enemies of all insect life, song birds alone can keep in check the ravages of insects. Crows destroy birds, birds destroy insects, insects destroy crops —therefore, kill the crows and save the crops."

April, May and June are the proper months of the year to make an organized attempt to eradicate the pests. The crows' nests are usually repaired or built anew the latter part of March and four to seven eggs are laid early in April. The period of incubation covers from 17 to 18 days and the young remain in the nest about three weeks after hatching. Sportsmen and farmers should co-operate at this time and destroy as many crows' nests and shoot as many parent birds as possible.

Stuffed owls placed on the conspicuous limb of a dead tree are excellent decoys. A wounded crow staked out in the open will also attract great numbers of crows. A large piece of meat or the carcas of a dead animal placed in an opening serves as excellent bait and one well-placed shot will often kill several crows at once.

The E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., Wilmington, Del., are offering desirable trophies to persons killing crows in the United States. The contest is opened until December 1, 1919. The DuPont Co. encourages and enlists the aid of an army of shooters, and invites every owner of a gun to enter this contest.

The State Game and Fish Department urges farmers and sportsmen's organizations throughout the state to co-operate and make a combined campaign against the crow hosts. Deputy Game Wardens are also instructed to assist in reducing the ranks of this enemy of the game. They have been allowed to increase to such an alarming extent that they are a decided menace to agricultural and sporting interests. The destruction within the next year of thousands of crows will mean the increase of hundreds of thousands of song and game birds.
