Creative Arts present soul religious concert

By ADAH K. JENKINS

Original lyrics and music by Mrs. Phyllis Quickley were presented in a religious soul concert at Christ United Methodist Church, under the sponsorship of the Creative Arts Guild.

Soloists were Esther Dutton and Liz Figero, accompanied by Hugh Carey and the Freddy Thaxton Trio.

A former teacher for 16 years in the Baltimore Schools, Mrs. Quickley was inspired to continue her study of piano, which she began as a child, after hearing Earl Garner on television.

After her success in playing at school assemblies, Mrs. Quickley began arranging and composing soul songs, with the encouragement of John Burch.

Her specialty is composing music for selected Psalms, using rock, soul and folk styles. She has performed at Morgan State College, where she has written for the Music Theatre, under the direction of Joseph Eubanks.

Mrs. Quickley, has also recorded some of her works in addition to appearing on the North Star TV Show and at Sheraton Inn, Belvedere Hotel and in local churches.

Edgar H. Stanley is chairman of the Creative Arts Guild and the Rev. Irvin Lockman, pastor of Christ Church.

Seventy piano pupils from the classes of Mrs. Florence Carter, J. Spencer Hammond and your reviewer won membership in the National Fraternity of Student Musicians through the annual auditions. These were sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teachers of which their teachers are members.

Auditions were held in Gregory Baptist Church at the Parish House of Douglas Memorial Community Church. Students played for pledge, local district, state, national and international honors, conferred according to the number of standard classic, romantic and modern pieces performed.

The awards are certificates and embossed gold or bronze pins, which entitles the winner to a year's membership in the National Fraternity of Student Musicians.

From coast to coast over 60,000 piano pupils of the nation participated in this annual event which was held in 600 music centers.

Begun at Hardin-Simmons University in Texas in 1929, the national headquarters are in Austin, Tex. The founder is Dr. Ira Allison.

The local chairman, Miss Beth Hudnall is well known music educator and former officer of the Baltimore Music Teachers Association.

BILLY ECKSTINE will appear on the tenth segment of the Public Broadcasting Service series "Just Jazz." The ten-part series will feature a different jazz artist each week. Mr. Eckstine will guest on the Wednesday, July 28 and Thursday, July 29 programs.

Soul music film coming to library

Soul music, today and yesterday, will be the focus of a free movie program set for 7 p.m. this Wednesday, at the Broadway branch of the Enoch Pratt Free Library, Broadway and Orleans St.

Opening the evening's show will be "Aretha Franklin, Soul Singer," a 25-minute portrait on film of the popular young vocalist. She is seen in rehearsal, at intimate talk sessions with her friends and advisors, on stage before enthusiastic audiences, and at home relaxing.

What emerges is not only a moving study of a vibrant temporary view of black culture.

Sharing the bill will be "The Legend of Jimmy Blue Eyes," a modern-day version of the legend of Faust. The story is that of a handsome, debonair jazz trumpeter in New Orleans of the 1920's, whose one dream is to hit the perfect note.

The library screening is open free of charge to music and jazz fans of all ages.

PRESENTATION—Made last week in front of an 1800 Pennsylvania Ave. department store, the object of recent protest, was a presentation of a check for $25 by Howard Rawlings of the University of Maryland Black Student Union, to Baloti to support the Black Panthers. The Panthers and various other leading organizations and citizens staged a successful protest to obtain aid for needy citizens in the area who they note for many years have made it possible for Avenue merchants to acquire substantial profits. Deriving a livelihood from the black community and failing to give their needy persons aid is unfair exchange, the protesters claimed.

By the way...

by Joe Black

During my tenure in the army during World War II, I remember some G.I.'s sitting around talking about their experiences on the battlefield. Some of the vets would tell of the grief and pain they experienced when a buddy was killed in action; but then they would add: "But I said a silent prayer of thanks that it wasn't me." Soldiers can be excused for taking this attitude; because, in battle, they have very little control over their destinies.

I doubt if anyone openly courts death; but today there are many individuals who think that they are "cool"; when, in reality, they are carrying on a flirtation with the "grim reaper." Who are these foolish ones? They are the drug abusers of today, the "trippers," "sniffers," and "mainliners." Are you numbered among the sick individuals who are seeking dreams-come-true through the use of narcotics? Before you reply, let me ask you a few questions.

Do you start your day with a pep pill? And about mid-morning take another pill to calm your nerves?

Because the new fashions have excited you, do you gulp a diet capsule before lunch? Take another diet pill before dinner? Then two other tablets to assure you a good night's sleep?

You may be asking, "what's the big deal?" Well, if you are not getting this medication legitimately, with a doctor's prescription, then you are your own "pusher"—and you may be hooked on "ups" and "downs."

So, before the bell tolls to let us know that narcotics have taken another life, may I suggest that you visit your doctor?

Bullets set 8 games at College Park

The Baltimore Bullets announced this week a schedule of eight regular season NBA games, featuring eight different opponents, to be played at the University of Maryland's Cole Field House.

This will be the second straight year that the Bullets have played a portion of their home schedule in College Park. Last year four regularly scheduled games were played there.

The eight game package will be kicked off on Saturday, Oct. 23 against the Cleveland Cavaliers. This game will mark the professional debut in this area of former DeMatha High great, Austin Carr.

The ex-Notre Dame sharpshooter was the first player selected in the NBA draft last spring and is expected to be a shot in the arm, both on the foor and at the gate, for the Cavaliers.

Among the other attractions at Cole Field House will be games against the defending champion Milwaukee Bucks, with Lew Alcindor and Oscar Robertson, and the New York Knicks, the team the Bullets defeated in the sensational seven game Eastern Conference championship series last season.

In announcing the eight games, Bullets' Executive Vice-President Jerry Sachs, said that last year's ticket prices, $6 and $4, would remain the same.

The Bullets will announce plans for sale of tickets for the eight game package later this month. The complete College Park schedule:

Sat. Oct. 23 — Cleveland; Sat. Nov. 27 — Boston; Sun. Jan. 9 — Phoenix (afternoon); Sat. Jan. 22 — Portland; Sun. Jan. 30 — Milwaukee (afternoon); Sun. Feb. 13 — Los Angeles (afternoon); Sun. Feb. 27 — New York afternoon) and Sun. Mar. 12 — Detroit (afternoon).

It's going to rain some more, for 32 days yet

A legend over 1,000 years old declares if it rains on July 15, St. Swithin's feast day, it will rain for 40 days thereafter. Baltimore had rain July 15. Since then some drops have fallen somewhere in town each day.

St. Swithin died in 863 and was cannonized in the 900's. Statistics also show if 'tis faire on July 15, 'twill then be faire for 40 days mare.'' This weekend? 'Twill be alternate sunshine and rain, yet.

Youth, 13, guilty of assault

A 13-year-old youth of the 2800 block of W. Cold Spring Lane, with a history of juvenile offenses, was found guilty of assaulting a 9-year-old playmate when he thought she had struck his infant brother.

The young man was declared delinquent under the decision of Judge V. Theodore Hayes in Juvenile Court Friday.

The testimony given by the teenager indicated he did strike the girl after returning home from play, after his younger sister told him her girlfriend had hit his young brother.

The 13-year-old youth has previously appeared before the juvenile court for other offenses, including assault of an officer, disorderly conduct, removing a wallet from another's person containing $180 and attempted unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

The youngster is now under detention for the latter offense at the Maryland Training Center for Boys.

His sentence under Master Hayes' conviction of assault is suspended pending results from extensive psychiatric examination which he will soon undergo.

Back in 1954 RCA did most of its business in North America. And Mr. Roderick A. Harmon, fresh out of high school, went to work in the mail room of our international division at Clark, New Jersey.
Today RCA is a multi-national corporation marketing some 12,000 products and services throughout the world. And Rod Harmon is a key member of RCA's worldwide marketing management team.

Rod travels the world to supervise exhibits of color TV cameras and other RCA television studio equipment at conventions of TV executives in London and Montreux and Sydney and Mexico City and points beyond.
He publishes brochures and catalogs on mobile shortwave radio gear in most major (and some not-so-major) languages. And writes letters about other RCA broadcast and communications products to prospective customers from Tasmania to Japan, from Botswana to Iceland, from Cape Horn to the Texas border.
He advertises all these products in trade and professional journals that blanket every inhabited continent. And he helps some 125 overseas branch offices and franchised distributors of RCA Communications Systems with their local and regional advertising and sales promotion programs.
Rod's job requires a sure command of nearly every known medium of mass communications. And the ability to communicate effectively with people of many different nationalities and races and lifestyles—in their terms, not his; in terms of their needs and wants, not somebody else's.
Rod Harmon's got what it takes to do his job outstandingly well.
How does he feel about it? "It's the big league. It's like competing in the Olympics every day of the year.
"In international business you're up against the very best, from all over the world. When we make a sale, we know RCA products are better than the best from any other manufacturer, anywhere.
"That's a good feeling to have about your company."
