The Retailer's Invitation

This is my home, here where you come to buy-My business home, you are my guest and I Your cordial host. Let not alone the trade Possess your thoughts. In you I hope I've made A lasting friend, and that if you recall This little visit and our deal at all,

It may be only to the means we found To meet and mingle on a common ground. This is my house, thrown open to my guest, While I with joy comply with their requests, Daily I hold reception, eight to six,

Striving to please the ones with whom I mix, Hoping to fill each several, varying need, With courtesy, devoid of sordid greed. The thought of "getting" I would put away And concentrate on "giving" all the day. This is the house my business built for you,

To visit in, and if my house can do A service for my valued list of friends It will have served my fondly-wished-for ends. Forget that you are "patron" or that I Am called a "dealer." As the days go by Let neighborly relationship prevail, And this, my home, and yours, can never fail.

Is What the World Seeks

PRICES of some things have been temporarily reduced; prices of other commodities remain about as they have been for months past. So long as people leave the farms to flock to the already overcrowded cities, creating an acute shortage of housing facilities, prices for building materials are likely to remain about on the present level.

IF DEMAND continues to exceed supply, you will be able to build as cheaply now as you can later in the year. Whatever your problem may be it will pay you to come in and talk over your plans, to get estimates. Remember that our architectural service is at your disposal entirely free of charge. And we can at least get acquainted.

PRODUCTION is about the only thing that will bring prices of anything down to a permanent lower level. If you can foresee increased production in all industrial lines, you might wait: but if you can't see larger supplies for the future, don't take a chance. Come in today.
