Fauntleroy hails vote decision

PETERSBURG — Now that the Supreme Court has outlawed the white leadership's annexation plan that would have diluted the black vote, the city should now get along with the work of setting up ward systems that would give blacks the political voice they are due, says Hermanze E. Fauntleroy Jr., the city's lone black councilman

"I would hope at this point the city will now go about the business of setting up proper voting districts and proceed with the election of council members as soon as possible," he said this week.

Fauntleroy has been a leader in the fight to preserve black rights in the community and has battled hard again' the dilution of black voting power which came about from the city's annexation of a large white population

The Monday decision is regarded as a vindication of his position and a personal victory.
