MR. QUILLE 80

Good news about a senior citizen: Joseph Columbus Quille, the grand old man of night life marked his 80th birthday Monday, March 5, at his Carlisle Ave. home.

He has retired from night life because his former night spot burned down. Known as "Little Joe," "Daddy Joe" and fondly addressed as "Ole Joe Quille," Mr. Quille was a night life figure since the mid 30's when he opened and managed "Little Willie's Inn" at Druid Hill Ave. and Whitelock St.

Up until two years ago he managed "Little Joe's Inn" on Presstman St., along with Mrs. Dorothy Neal and other night life figures.

He is a lifetime member of St. Peter Claver's Church where he once served on the altar.

HIS FAMILY

His son is Sgt. William C. Quille of the United States Army who served in Korea. Sgt. Quille works for Frenders Delivery and also serves as captain at the Northwestern Detective Agency.

His daughter is Mrs. Victorine Q. Adams, the longtime Baltimore civic worker and former school teacher who is now serving her second term in the Baltimore City Council from the 4th District.

She is the wife of William "Little Willie," Adams, the businessman and golfer.

BLUE RIBBON TEA

There were over 1,000 persons at the 29th Annual Blue Ribbon Tea of the Eastside Community Committee, Inc., Sunday, at Dunbar Comunity High School.

The tea, sponsored by the Women's City-Wide Committee for Delinquency Prevention raised a reported $3,673.69 in their annual endeavor to send children to camps and aid them in organizing educational and recreational programs.

"Small in stature but a giant of a man," were the words used by Mrs. Mabel Watts, chairman of the tea, to describe their guest speaker, Congressman Parren J. Mitchell.

Other program participants were: John W. Douglass, (2nd-D); Dr. Russell A. Nelson,; president emeritus of John Hopkins Hospital; Raymond Carpenter, Dunbar principal; Harry Davis, John Hopkins Hospital and Clarence Burns, senator from the second district.

Music for the affair was provided by the Holliman Student Orchestra, directed by James H. Holliman. Musical selections were also performed by members of the Dunbar choir. The singers were: Clarence Simmons, Joyce Pelzer, King Andre Teasdell, Lois Jordan, Paulette Briscoe and Vanessa Hill. They were directed by Grogan Joyner.

OFFICERS

Officers of the Women's City-Wide Committee are: Mrs. Obiedell Alston, president; Mrs. Mabel Watts, chairman of tea; Mrs. Marie Smallwood, assistant chairman; Miss Hester Milligan, secretary; and Mrs. Nancy Jackson, treasurer.

Officers of the Eastside Community Committee are: Melvin Roy, presi- Oscar Arter and Gardie Williamson, dent; Mrs. Martha E. Underwood, vice-presidents; Jesse Simpson, treasurer, and Mrs. Sarah Baldwin, secretary.

MISS CHANDLER NAMED

Miss Lola Chandler has been appointed social worker for the Family Planning Project 722 of the Baltimore City Health Department. In this new post Miss Chandler will broaden the range of services available through the project, especially for adolescents.

Miss Chandler graduated from Morgan College in 1970 and earned her Master of Social Work at the University of Pennsylvania in 1972. She worked as a social worker at Baltimore City Hospital and briefly in the Baltimore Department of Social Services Children's Division before coming to the Family Planning unit.

MISS LEE SINGS

Miss Lillian Yvonne Lee, student at Walbrook Senior High School, appeared recently in a Musical concert involving the talents of more than 250 young men and women from the Baltimore-Washington Metropolitan area at Constitution Hall in Washington.

Miss Lee was the only black in the chorus. The concert was sponsored by the Department of Music at the University of Maryland. In the summer of 1973, Miss Lee will accompany the All-American Youth Honor Musicians Chorus on their Russian tour.

Miss Lee is the daughter of Lawrence R. Lee of Hilton St.

DR. WILLIAMS SPEAKS

"A philosophical approach to the problem" will be the topic of the keynote address of Dr. Beryl Williams, dean of the Center for Continuing Education of Morgan State College, at a conference on continuing education for women on March 17.

The all-day, statewide conference will be held in Doyle Hall at the College of Notre Dame of Maryland and is the fourth in a series of conferences about women in higher education. Several women faculty members, students, and community residents are expected to take part in the program which will explore the many varied opportunities for women to continue their education in Md.

Dr. Williams has been heading the pioneer program for continuing education for women at Morgan for the cation for women at Morgan for the past five years and has many years of experience with evening and extension programs and adult education.

A native of Bangor, Maine, she is a graduate of the University of Maine, from which institution she also holds a master's degree in mathematics. Her graduate work has been done, as well, at Fisk University, Michigan State, the University of Chicago, and the Johns Hopkins University. She taught in both denominational and state schools in Louisiana, Fla., S.C., N.C., and Md. before joining the staff at Morgan.

Active in the field of adult education, both as a professional and a volunteer, for more than 20 years, Dr. Williams has participated in national seminars and training sessions for the Adult Education Association and has served as president of the Maryland Chapter of that organization. She has served as officer and on advisory boards for the YWCA, University Without Walls, the National Association of Black Educators, the U. S. Association of Evening Students, the Metropolitan Senior Citizens, and many others.

OTHER SPEAKERS

In addition to Dr. Williams, speakers for the conference will include Dr. B. A. Barringer, president of Catonsville Community College, who will talk on the topic "A New Era for Women;" Joan Stark, assistant dean and lecturer in education at Goucher College, and Susan Potts, assistant dean for community services at Howard Community College.

Among the discussion leaders is Mrs. Margaret Laufer, a grandmother who returned to school, at Catonsville Community College, at 67 and will graduate in December. Mrs. Carol Bjimline, who is associate director of counseling at Montgomery College, where she also conducts a program on "The Emerging Woman," will lead a panel discussion, as will Jan Groebel, a student at Goucher College.

Workshop topics will include alternatives to traditional education, including credit for life work, University Without Walls, college-level examination programs, and non-credit courses; and the special needs of women as counselors see them. Among the provocative sessions is one entitled "Things As They Really Are: Two Views." One view will be represented by a panel of women students, the other by a panel of men.

Also featured will be slide presentation, called "Only a Short Time Ago," which has been produced by personnel of Dundalk Community College.

Day care is available for children over two years of age. Registration deadline has been set for March 15, and additional registrants will be permitted at the door only if space permits.

THE LEAGUETTES

The Leaguettes, a Baltimore Urban League women's auxiliary, recently marked its sixth year as an innovative service organization.

Organized in February, 1967, the group aims to aid in the implementation of Urban League goals.

Among their many achievements has been the establishment of a transportation and education fund which provides money for job seekers unable to afford the price of public transportation in order to attend scheduled job interviews.

The fund also provides money for needy high school students to pay class dues, graduation fees and college application fees.

One of the Leaguettes more remarkable feats has been the establishment of the Forward Thrust Scholarship which is awarded to a female with a "C" average. This person must be a high school graduate desiring to attend college but unable to meet all of the financial obligations.

In addition to these vital functions the young ladies serve as hostesses for the Baltimore Urban League's Annual Meeting and render volunteer services to the United Fund and other organizations in the community.

The group schedules fund-raising activities throughout the year for the support of its goals.

The Leaguettes officers are:

Miss Bonita Dancy, President; Miss Carleen McPaerson, secretary; Miss Thomosine Tyson, treasurer; Mrs. Jean Powell, business manager; Miss Maggie C. Lane, associate director of the League's Education and Youth Incentives department serves as advisor.

MILITARY BALL

The Maryland National Guard will sponsor the third annual Military Ball at 8 p.m. tomorrow Saturday, at the Fifth Regiment Armory.

Major General Edwin Warfield III Adjutant General of Maryland, and Mrs. Warfield have invited active and retired members of the Army and Air National Guard as well as city and state officials. The National Guard's 229th Army Band will provide the music.

The Military Ball was organized to take the place of the traditional visit by officers of the Guard to the Governor's Mansion on New Year's Day.

DESIGNERS SHOW

Levenson and Klein will host its 2nd "Designers and Decorators Show" at its Route 40 West Store, Route 40 West Rolling Rd., tomorrow, Saturday, and Sunday.

The public is invited to meet nationally recognized experts in the fields of furniture, appliances and home furnishings, to see the latest in decorating trends, and to get expert advise on personal decorating problems from the nation's leading authorities.

The show is open to the public. Free refreshments will be served, and there is no admission charge. Saturday hours are 1 to 9 P.M., and Sunday, from 1 to 6 P.M.

WOMEN'S DAY SERVICE

Ms. Mary Carter-Smith, poet, actress, teacher, librarian and world-traveller, will be the keynote speaker at the 28th Women's Day Service at the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church this Sunday, March 11.

The theme is "Christian Women Alert In the Seventies." Mrs. Rosita Uncles is chairman of the Women's Day activities; the Rev. Reginald J. Daniels, pastor.

MATINEE CABARET

The Pallettes Charity and Social Club, Inc. will be at the Cherry Hill Union Hall, 111 Cherry Hill Rd., on March 18 from 5 to 10 p.m. for its matinee cabaret. Music will come from the Dual Tones.

HARLEM PARK CLUB

The Harlem Park Community Civic Club will hold a cabaret and buffet dinner on Friday, March 23 at the Retail Employees Hall, 305 West Monument St. From 10 p.m. to 2 a.m., featuring the Novations and Finney, vice-president; Ida Finney, Band, with guest speaker to present the club's charter.

For ticket information visit or call the Allen's Food Market at 1700 Harlem Ave., 523-5329. All proceeds will go for the benefit of the Harlem Park Community.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

The Maryland League of Women's Clubs will hold its annual luncheon, Saturday, March 24, at the Sheraton-Baltimore Inn, Broadway and Orleans St. Guest speaker will be Dr. Harriet P. Dyader, assistant dean, University of Maryland, School of Social Work and Community Planning.

For reservations contact Mrs. Marion J. Jackson, luncheon chairman or Mrs. Sandra East, League president.

BENEFIT FASHION SHOW

The Baltimore Chapter of The National Association of Fashion and Accessories Designers is sponsoring a fashion show for creative local designers on April 15, at the Holiday Inn — Downtown.

Members of the group are Mesdames Ann Smith, president; Olivia Business manager; Doretha Freeman, financial secretary; Dorothy Shepard, recording secretary; Alice Gardner, treasurer; and May Osborne, sergeant-at-arms. For tickets call: Mrs. Ida Finney at 433-4285.

BENEFIT BANQUET

Dr. Samuel D. Proctor will be the guest speaker at the Annual Benefit Banquet for the Baptist Home for the Aged. The affair will be held at Le Fontaine Bleu on March 29. For tickets call 685-5993, 542-5105 or 566-4667. Mrs. Walter Paige (Irene) is chairman for the affair.

Mrs. Edith Hare wins Brotherhood Award

By BEVERLY B. HAVARD

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. Havard, a noted freelance writer attended the affair and submitted this article to the AFRO.)

Mrs. Edith Hare, Kenilworth Ave., has received the WBAL Brotherhood Award for her dedication and involvement with young people.

She is an elementary teacher at School No. 2, Pratt St. and Central Ave., and her husband Warren is a science teacher at the Maryland Training School for Boys, Loch Raven.

Mrs. Hare received her award Jan. 30 in a ceremony at Winston Elementary School, hosted by the Kenilworth Park Neighborhood Association, with friends, professional associates and well-wishers on hand.

* * *

Invocation was by the Rev. George Crawley, St. Paul Baptist Church; solos were by Mrs. Vivian Giles and Matthew Robinson, a counselor at Coppin State College.

Keynote speaker was Mrs. Mary Claybourne, radio and TV personality, who told several humorous stories illustrating Mrs. Hare's courage and ability.

Other speakers were Walter White, president, Kenilworth Association; Mrs. Joyce Wheeler; James Bradley, Sr.; Mrs. Annie Brown and Irving Epstein.

Speech themes were community, parental, youth and professional involvement.

* * *

A floral tribute was presented by Mrs. Elizabeth Hartman, and Dean Hunter, WBAL radio DJ, gave Mrs. Hare the framed award.

In her acceptance speech, Mrs. Hare praised her husband, "Who permitted me to indulge in my many activities."

The couple has two children, both students at Park School: Darin, 11, and Dana, 5.

IF YOU ASK ME

By BETTYE MOSS

More on Antigua: Ever since our return last Sunday evening from the West Indies vacation where we survived the horrifying boat explosion and fire, folks have been asking about Antigua.

The accompanying map shows its relationship to the U.S. and Baltimore.

Said to be one of the most attractive resorts in the Caribbean, Antigua is a small island, just 16-miles wide.

It is 293 air miles from San Juan, 1,338 from Miami, 1,862 from Baltimore and 320 from the larger and more familiar island of Barbados.

* * *

Located at the northeastern curve of the West Indies chain, Antigua is one of the 11 islands which comprise the British Leeward islands.

In recent years, it has developed as a popular tourist spot because of its pleasant year-round climate (average 78 degrees), salt breezes, low humidity and white sand beaches. Perfectly beautiful!

Discovered by Columbus in 1493, Antigua was under British rule until 1967, when it gained independence and now has associated statehood with Great Britain.

Its 70,000 residents, who look like you and me, but talk beautiful English and an English patois.

* * *

Unit of currency is British West Indies. When we arrived on Feb. 19, our U.S. dollar could be exchanged for $1.87 in their money. When we left a week later, we got only $1.60 for our U.S. $1.

Cars on the small streets drive on the left just like in other English-oriented countries.

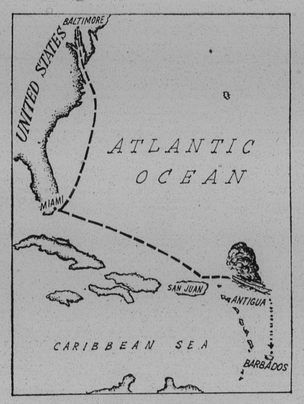
Capital of the island is St. John's, which is where we stayed at the beautiful Jolly Beach Hotel.

For us black Americans it was good to see black people operating at airline counters, behind hotel desks and in police stations and other public offices.

Chief of criminal investigation for the island is Thomas Jarvis, a tall, handsome black man.

We met Mr. Jarvis when we went to the police headquarters to report our losses (cameras, cash).

MRS. MOSS



EXPLOSION SCENE in Antigua, British West Indies, where Baltimoreans escaped with their lives/ See more about Antigua in accompanying column, If YOU Ask Me.

We were among the four Baltimore couples who were aboard the Tony Garton's Warrior Geraint, the $250,000 motor yacht which exploded and burned in the Atlantis near Maid Island).

* * *

Cuff note: This police station wasn't like it would have been in the U.S. The officers were friendly and sympathetic. All of the employees who took our reports were black and most courteous. (Offered us chairs and didn't have their hats on either!)

While we were there, some other survivors of the boat came in. There was no bowing and scraping because they were white Americans. They received the same kind of courteous treatment, no more, no less.

* * *

Observation: Antiguans do not seem to be hung up on skin color. Their own colors range from black to white and they don't seem to be disturbed about it. No one stares if the couple is mixed.

Our cabbie who transported us to the police station was James A. Lewis, a former policeman.

More cuff notes: During World War 2, Antigua was a prime U.S. base. Today, it is a part of the Caribbean missile-tracking stations. And, Uncle Sam maintains a U.S. Naval facility there.

Thank God we have our men in blue there. When the explosion ripped our boat, Uncle Sam's men, with their speedy boats (equipped with radios and life jackets), were to our rescue promptly.

* * *

Among the Navy men who helped in our rescue was Master Chief Petty Officer Haywood D. Moore of Creedmore, N.C. He has been on Antigua duty for six months.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Moore. They can bask in that their son is looking mighty good in his Navy uniform and appears to be enjoying his tour in the balmy Caribbean island.

Local newspaper is the Antigua Wiar, published twice weekly.

Mrs. Matilda Bryant is the reporter who wrote the page one story about the boat explosion entitled, "Warrior Geraint Sunk."

* * *

Popular eating place on the island is Maurice's Bar and Restaurant operated by Muriace Martin. The broiled lobster and lobster thermidor are fit for a king.

Biggest attraction in the island during our visit was the cricket match between the Australians and Leeward Island teams from Nevis, St. Kitts, Montserrat and Barbados.

* * *

Back home news: California visitors in our midst this week are Bill Loggins and his daughter, Sara Delores, visiting the Tee Logginses of McKean Ave.

Cuff note: A Baltimorean, Bill Loggins, now lives in Compton, Calif. He's looking forward to seeing old friends at the Lords' and Ladies' annual gala this weekend.

* * *

Another boat explosion: Some 80 Baltimoreans on a religious trip to the Middle East escaped when an explosion blew a hole in the stern of the cruise ship, Sounion, last Saturday, near Beirut Harbor. No one was injured although many lost personal belongings.

It was erroneously reported that members of Metropolitan Methodist Church, also on a religious tour, were on this boat.

Not so. They were touring on the S.S. Regina, which arrived in Beirut two days before. They arrived home safe and sound on Tuesday evening.

In that group from Metropolitan were the minister, the Rev. Ernest P. Cark and Mrs. Clark; Mrs. Mae Fortune, Mrs. Theodosia Burnett, Mrs. Lillie Mack, Mrs. Ruby Thomas.

Others on the trip were, Dr. William Bishop from Washington, D.C. and Mrs. Thelma White, Mrs. Lillian Cornish, Mrs. Lilla Barnum, Mrs. Eleanor Mann, Mrs. Mary Johnson and Warren Stanley, all of Baltimore.

Doing nicely at University Hospital where she had surgery is Mrs. Bernice Francis Watson, of the U. of Md.'s preventive medicine staff. She's the wife of the community school administrator, Eddie Watson.

Thinking of you cards to Mrs. Pearl Bonner, 2334 W. Lexington St. Two Saturdays ago (Feb. 24), she buried her only sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Rose, 60, of Ellicott Drive.

Her death made two in the family in five months. Mrs. Rose's husband, Alex, died in September.

Many knew Mrs. Rose when she worked as cake decorator at Hutzler's bakery. It was she who originated the Lord Baltimore cake. Remember?

Mrs. Rose and Mrs. Bonner have a brother, Sgt. Oscar Hawthorne of Tacoma, Washington, who flew here for the funeral.

* * *

More good news: Happy birthday hellos by March 14 to Mrs. Irene Jackson, 225 N. Spring Ct., Baltimore, Md. 21231. She will be 81 years young.

Many know her children, Mrs. Audrey Giddins, Mrs. Dorothy Rich, Mrs. Mary E. Upsher and Robert Jackson. There are also 4 grands and 6 great grands.

More good news: Morgan State's Dr. Ruth Brett Quarles is in from Winston, N.C. reports her mom, Mrs. Julia R. Brett is much improved.

* * *

Get well quick cards to Provident Hospital for Mrs. Iglehart Keels (Roberta). She had surgery on that leg which has been giving her trouble for some time.

And, thinking of you cards to Mrs. Alma Gray, the Douglass High librarian. She is in Atlanta to bury her mother, Mrs. Verna Long.
