—Mayor Washington elected in D.C.

apparent winner had actually gotten 53 per cent).

Alexander, too, finally, conceded that he had lost. "As of now, it appears that I am approximately 3,000 votes behind. It would seem to me because of this fact and it is a fact that Walter Washington has won," Alexander confessed on Wednesday.

A hesitancy in declaring out, until a day or two after the primary was due to failure of the computer system rented by the D.C. Board of Elections at a cost of $120,000.

In addition to a general breakdown of the computer, it also tossed out an unreadable approximately 22,000 ballots which were still being handcounted as late as Thursday.

* * *

Sterling Tucker, who was unopposed for chairman of the new City Council, recognized the widespread public disgust with the vote count process. He promised Thursday that the new Council will hold hearings to uncover what really went wrong.

Washington himself refused to hold a personal investigation of the computer foul up, although he was publicly requested to do so. But he had his own problems to worry about now that he is the, officially elected mayor.

A slim possibility exists that Alexander might still call for a recount of the vote. That, and the whole issue of the relations with Alexander, looms large.

Since Alexander, did, in fact, carry nearly half the city's vote despite his natural disadvantage of running against an incumbent, some have asked Washington to include the opponent in his administration

In addition, the mayor faces the difficult decisions relating to the naming of a new police chief, and also to the selection of a city administrator, a new post created by home rule

Congress has also dictated that Washington must figure out by next month how to raise $14 million, and additional revenue to pay for salary increases for D.C. firemen, police, and teachers. Some combination of tax increase appears certain.

* * *

In general, the primary election in the District did not render many surprises. Naturally, the hope of some were by the result, include the fact that only around 85,000 voters went to the polls.

This was less than half the registered number of Democrats in the city, and way below the 150,000 predicted voters.

Then there was Tedson J. Meyers, the only democratic incumbent seeking a ward seat on the new council, who surprisingly lost to a 30-year-old lawyer, David A. Clarke.

Clarke is a long time civil rights worker who was endorsed by Congressman Andrew Young, Democrat, Georgia. Both Meyers and Clarke are white.

* * *

In the at-large City Council race, Marion Barry captured nearly 25 per cent of the vote, the largest margin of victory of any council candidate. His lead put to rest some opinions that his characteristic appeal has declined.

For a little while it was also extremely close running for Doug Moore and Dell Lewis, who sought the second at-large council seat. But near the end, Moore took front position with 19.5 per cent of the vote.

In the eighth ward, two whites won nomination as democratic candidates, Clarke in Ward one, and finally Shackleton, a long-time activist in the city in Ward Three.

* * *

Other winners were, John Wilson in Ward two, vice chairman of the D.C. Democratic Central Committee; Aaronton Dixon in Ward Four, a professor at Washington Technical Institute; Nadine Winter in Ward Six; Willie Hardy, the last AFRO-Woman of the Year in Ward Seven, and the Rev. James Coates, former School Board member in Ward Eight.

In Ward Five, William Spaulding, with the National Security Agency, held a slim lead over Leaford Williams, a transportation department administrator.

But that remained the one race at press time where election board officials declined to name a winner.

At last count, (still unfinished), Spaulding had 17.3 per cent of Williams' percentage of 17.9.

cussed with MTA to provide a solution. It has been suggested by MTA that order for more buses to be school hours be changed in provided to transport students to their newly assigned schools.

Much time is needed in order to secure such means, by both MTA and School Board officials.

The security situation was discussed at this time.

The board had requested more funds so that additional security officers could be assigned at various schools.

At this point of the meeting, many members began shouting to express their views.

They stated that they were not present to hear anything other than what was going to be done about the transferring of their children.

President of the School Board, Dr. John Walton, had to ask repeatedly for order.

Many minutes elasped before the crowd became quiet once again, so that the meeting could continue.

* * *

Previous to the meeting, names were taken of those persons wishing to speak before the board and the audience.

President of the Baltimore Teachers Union, Godfrey Moore said, "The School Board has been using parents, children and members of the community as pawns in a game called politics."

Gerald Smith, an attorney expressed his views, "These black and white parents are not concerned with the Patterson issue, they are concerned with quality education and that is why they are here tonight."

Mrs. Betty Deacon spoke, representing the Southeast Desegregation Coalition, urging the board to appoint a task force to work with the community to handle the existing problems of the school situation.

At this time, police officers entered the auditorium. Dr. Walton was instructed to ask all persons present in the school to leave immediately due to the bomb threat.

It was not known who had made the threat, however the crowd promptly disbanded from the auditorium.

The scheduled agenda for the meeting was not completed and Superintendent Dr. Roland N. Patterson told the AFRO that it would resume at the next scheduled meeting on Sept. 19.

garage of the Sutton Place.

Edward (Eddie) Lee Tucker, who failed to appear for trial on charges of conspiracy to distribute heroin on Monday in Federal Court, was named in the Del. Scott indictment.

Police are still investigating the Scott case. However, Sherman Dobson was tried for the shooting of Del. Scott but was acquitted.

The administrators of the Scott estate have found only about $705 and are certain they have identified all of his assets.

lieve certain ministers refused to endorse you because of the prosecution of Sherman W. Dobson, son of Rev. Harold Dobson." Mr. Allen explained, "The literature distributed in churches did not carry me. The minister on Liberty Heights (Rev. Wendell Phillips) put out a ballot that did not carry me."

* * *

However, Mr. Allen said a lot of ministers did support him from their pulpits.

The literature was distributed in churches throughout the city last Sunday designating Sept. 8 as "Freedom Sunday" and under the authority of Rev. Vernon Dobson.

Excerpts from the brochure state, "We are supporting Lalit Gadhia, House of Delegates and the city wide candidates, Bertram Dorsey for sheriff, Paul Chester, clerk Court of Common Pleas; William Allen, clerk Criminal Court and Elmer Harris, clerk Circuit Court.

The brochure also carried a picture of the Rev. Mr. Wendell Phillips, the Rev. Mr. Harold Dobson and Congressman Parren J. Mitchell. As Mr. Allen said, "The two pieces of literature speak for themselves."

Mr. Allen will reamin in the State's Attorney's office until Dec. 21.

"I haven't firmed up any plans. I don't know what I am going to do; said Mr. Allen.

WHY WAIT FOR YOUR INTEREST?

Many Maryland banks have a 90 day 5½% Passbook Savings Plan. But—unlike them—Maryland National Bank lets you start earning 5½% THE DAY YOU DEPOSIT YOUR MONEY. Others make you wait for their quarter to start (10? 20? 30? days) before you start earning your 5½%. Not Maryland National.

Opening an account is easy. Just deposit $1000 or more for 90 days. You earn 5½% from day of deposit to day of withdrawal. Interest is compounded daily, and gives you an effective annual yield of 5.73%.

After 90 days, you can withdraw principal—and interest, or do nothing and your account will be renewed automatically.

Federal law requires a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal.
