HILL FIELD HOUSE DEDICATED

Many activities planned for Morgan homecoming

The gala Homecoming celebrations at Morgan State College are planned for this weekend.

Dedication of the new Talmadge L. Hill Field House kicked off the activities this morning (Friday).

Featured speaker was Joe Black, Morgan graduate and vice-president of the Greyhound Corporation.

Tonight (Friday) at 8, th

Tonight (Friday) at 8, the cert featuring Bohannon and the Commodores will be held in the new Field House under auspices of the Morgan State College Student Government Association.

On Saturday, the campus will be opened for touring. Morgan boasts several new buildings which point to the institutional goal of continued growth.

At 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, visitors will have an opportunity to see the formidable football Bears in action against the Hornets of Delaware State.

The annual "Halftime Show," complete with floats, band performances and awards will be held for your continuing entertainment.

From 4:30 to 6:00 p.m., more campus tours will be held along with a feature film on the great Earl Banks, former Morgan football coach and now athletic director.

In addition, there will be an on-campus inter-fraternity sing, and an alumni "get together" held in the McKeldin College Center.

At 6:30 p.m., the Varsity "M" Club of Morgan State College will sponsor a banquet and dance at the downtown Holiday Inn.

The 1974 Morgan State College Homecoming Activities will be culminated at 10 p.m. with a SGA cabaret in the McKeldin College Center, and an alumni cabaret in the Baltimore Civic Center.

Ali, Foreman's training tells much of bout plans

By Bob Stewart

NSELE, Zaire (UPI) — The way world champion George Foreman and "peoples champion" Muhammad Ali train on the big bag reflects their respective battle plans for next Tuesday's title match here.

Ali had disdained the big bag a long time, but when the fight was postponed, Muhammad altered his training regimen.

Now he moves and circles around the bag as it swings freely on its chain. On Wednesday, after five rounds of shadow boxing and dancing around the ring at full speed, he took on the punching bag for two more rounds. When he finished, there was a perfect circle of sweat on the floor.

In contrast, Foreman, after working the pit-pat rounds with Henry Clark and one with lightweight Terry Lee, headed for the bag.

Dick Sadler, his trainer, was there, hanging on to it. George slugged, slammed, pounded. He stood almost stock still, throwing lefts and rights that boomed into the bag as Sadler clutched it, grunting to keep it stationary.

Not Ali, nor any man, could take such punishment . . . but no man, least of all Ali, could offer such a target.

But then Ali, despite his recorded 31 knockouts, has never been a truly awesome puncher. His work on the bag indicates he hopes to generate more power while still in motion.

So the fight could become one of speed and guile against crunching power.

The training session also supplied another contrast in the men's styles.

Ali is greeted with a roar from about 500 Zairmans when he arrives. He has proclaimed himself an African, and they have accepted him totally.

When Foreman enters, his face a mask, not a trace of a smile peeking from beneath the mustache, the Zairians welcome him most politely with a round of applause.

When Ali finished his work, he leaped to the ring apron and called a news conference, which is now merely variations on the theme he has used for a dozen years.

But it is new to Zairians, and they love it. Muhammad, delighted as more and more of the press corps continue to arrive, has a greeting for them.

"Enjoy yourself in my country. We Africans are glad to have you all here," he says. When the translation is finised, the Zairians break into wild yells of agreement and sustained applause.

The crowd interrupts him time and again for lines like "welcome to the birth place of civilization", and "you won't find no savages, no lions no tigers."

But when Foreman finised, he put on his robe and just walked out, remembering at the last moment to wave to the Zairians, but forgetting, or not wishing, to smile.

The Zairians clapped hands, polite to the end.

Nick Charles to be honored

BALTIMORE — Nick Charles, television sportscaster, will be honored as the "Outstanding Sports Reporter of the Year" at the Twenty-fourth annual Sports Headliner Banquet to be held at Marty's West on Monday, Dec 2.

The banquet, which begins at 6:30 p.m., is sponsored by the Sports Boosters of Maryland, a non-profit organization of individuals dedicated to the advancement and enjoyment of sports.

Mr. Charles is sports director for WJZ-TV.

Colts go after struggling Miami in test-of-progress game Sunday

That early week 16-point spread the oddsmakers were giving Miami over Baltimore either means they think the Dolphins finally have put things together or they weren't terribly impressed by the Colts' first victory last Sunday.

Only lowly Houston, facing the hard-hitting Cincinnati Bengals, had higher odds against them. They were expected to come up 17 points short.

Baltimore, the team that made Pittsburgh look unstoppable in an opening game drubbing, scored its first win against Joe Namath and the Jets — and thus the oddsmakers apparently fear the Colts may not be for real yet.

Sunday, the story will be told.

Miami, off to a rough start this season, isn't in a mood to lose any games it can win. Coach Don Shula definitely does not want to lose to his old team.

Lydell Mitchell's record-setting performance against the Jets and a more representative showing by Bert Jones at quarterback, proved the brightest spots in Sunday's victory.

It also had to be encouraging to coach Joe Thomas to see his team going after quarterbacks, tackling runners and standing up to offensive linemen.

If Baltimore plays in Miami the way it did in the last two games, win or lose, the fans are apt to greet them more warmly when they return to Memorial Stadium on Nov. 3 to tangle with the Cincinnati.

Michael Darryl Kane, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael R. Kane (Diana), spent several weeks at the Valley Forge Military Academy camp in Wayne, Pa. where he received a meritorious award in track and marksmanship. A ninth grader, Michael attends Gilman School in Baltimore.

Falcons and Eagles to clash in playoff

BALTIMORE — The "Terrible Terp Trio" of (Al) Neville, (Dan) Bungori, and (Ken) Scott will be looking for help from their teammates when they tangle with the Frederick Falcons at Utz Twardowicz Stadium in Patterson Park Saturday night. The 8 p.m. game will decide the final playoff spot in the Eastern Division of the Interstate Football League.

The Eagles, the Falcons, and the Hanover Rhinos have all been chasing the Carroll County Chargers in the Eastern Division, and so in the last week of the season it comes down to head to head combat with two of the teams advancing to the playoffs.

The Eagles can simplify the entire process by beating the Falcons.

Al Neville is the IFL's leading passer with 83 completion and 153 attempts. His 984 yards also lead the league despite the fact that he had played two less games than anyone else. Oddly enough he has spread his passes around so well that the Eagles do not have anyone ranked in the top. Preston Nash is the starting quarterback for the "Green Machine." The Sunpapers Jim Jackson recently called Nash "The best quarterback ever to come out of Baltimore." Nash has thrown for 11 TDs this this year and has 813 yds through the air. He's second in the league in punting with 35.3 yd. avg. Nash is a City College graduate.

Nash's favorite target this season has been Bruce Knedall, a Mervo and Essex CC grad.

Foreman hit by suit for $100 million

NEW YORK (UPI — Heavyweight champion George Foreman was sued for $100 million Tuesday for an alleged breach of contract.

The suit, which also seeks an injunction against future violations, was filed in Manhattan federal court by K.O. Inc., which lists itself as a Nevada corporation.

The complaint said Foreman violated a contract he signed with K. O. in January 1961 giving it exclusive television, radio and film rights for each Foreman fight through 1975.

Also named as defendants were Foreman's manager, Charles R. Sadler, Video Techniques Inc., and others said to be involved in the promotion of the Oct. 29 championship fight in Zaire between Foreman and Muhammad Ali.

By the way...

by Joe Black

A ten year old girl is grabbed on her way home from school, taken inside a building, assaulted and killed.

A seventy-three year old woman is raped and robbed, as she prays inside a church.

So what else is new? Simply this: These two violent crimes involved Blacks.

The criminals were Black. And so were the poor victims.

Black-on-Black crime is rampant within the Black community. And yet too many Blacks try to justify these animal actions with sociological and philosophical excuses. All of which are simply self-serving.

Black, white, yellow, green, or upsidedown, a criminal is a criminal. No matter how you call it.

And, today especially, there is no excuse for allowing criminal action to go overlooked or unpunished in our community.

Black people have been marching and chanting: "We shall overcome," "Ain't nobody going to turn us around," "Black is where it's at," and "Black is beautiful."

But there's nothing beautiful about allowing Black crime to happen. Yet, when many Blacks have to stand up and be counted, too many still turn away from some very real issues that count.

It isn't ignorance or uninvolvement so much as fear that keeps a person from doing things that must be done.

But, we foster Brotherhood. We don't fear it.

And being fearful of being our Brother's keeper can only lead to one more fearful thing.

Being guilty of becoming our Brother's killer.
