'Cop' robs bank of $95,000

AFRO'S Willie Eygir points to the manhole in which the body of Michael Hall was allegedly dumped.

BOY IN SEWER

Police abandon search for body

Has the body of 5-year-old Michael Hall been chewed to pieces by a sewer cleaning machine, or is it still sticking out somewhere in the 12-foot deep storm drain?

This is one of the numerous questions homicide detectives are asking as they abandon their fruitless search for the body of the child allegedly beaten to death by his parents.

The body, unknown to anybody, was allegedly dumped into the sewer about eight months ago.

"We're no-more sure we can locate the body. The drain has been cleaned since it was dumped in there and the cleaning machine chews up everything," a homicide police detective told the AFRO.

According to police Michael's body was thrown into the sewer Sept. 16, 1974, a few days after he had died from a beating. He was beaten with an axe handle, a riding whip and belt, police claim.

His stepfather, Johnnie Terry, 42, and his mother, Mrs. Mary Terry, 36, both of 400 block E. Chase St., have been charged with Michael's death, according to police.

Police state they gave up the search last Wednesday, about four days after it was begun by a massive force of county sewer workers and city and county police.

The sad story of Michael Hall would never have been known to the outside world but for his 8-year-old sister, Yvette Hall, who nearly shared her brother's fate last Saturday, police reveal.

* * *

Scarred and bruised from alleged beating by her stepfather, the little girl told police from her Johns Hopkins Hospital bed how her brother had been beaten by her parents, sometime last year. She also claimed her brother had not been seen since the beating.

Fuller details of the story were told, according to investigators, by Mrs. Terry who was taken to Northern District for questioning.

She allegedly told police her husband, Mr. Terry disciplined Michael sometime in September in their former home in the 900 block E. Chase St. The woman also revealed as a

Morgan University Bill takes effect July 1

In what was an historic moment for the black community, Governor Mandel signed the Morgan University Bill into law. It takes effect on July 1.

The state's chief executive signed the bill the day after Attorney General Francis B. Burch urged that he not veto it. It had been referred to his office for constitutional assessment.

In the 7-page opinion, Mr. Burch asserted:

"We agree that serious issues are raised by the Bill in connection with the outstanding Consolidated Student Unions Revenue Bonds. We also feel that if the potential effects noted by Messrs. Smith, Somerville and Case were realized, there would be a very strong possibility that a court would hold the Bill unconstitutional.

"However, we do not feel that the issues raised by the Bill require your veto in view of the rule of statutory construction that, where possible, a bill is to be construed in such a way as to make its application constitutional.

"We also note the "severability" provisions contained in Section 3 of the Bill."

Further, Burch concluded that legal problems with the Morgan bill do not require its veto. He asserted the serious questions about the revenue bonds financing are not questions which make the bill unconstitutional.

Finally, Burch asserted, "We are of the opinion that a court would feel bound to construe the statute to avoid the problems and reach a constitutional result.

"We believe this can be done in a way not inconsistent with the statutory plan for the creation and governance of Morgan State University."

* * *

"The signing of Senate Bill 354 makes a major achievement for the black community and for the Black Caucus which worked for its passage," Del. John W. Douglass told the AFRO. "Morgan will now be able to pursue a higher level of excellence, consistent with the goals and aspirations of black Baltimoreans."

The signing occurred at 10 a.m. Thursday morning in the Governor's reception room. It was Mandel's final bill signing ceremony. He leaves today (Friday) for a two week State Department trip to Russia.

The bill provides for changing the name of Morgan State College to Morgan State University, creates a board of directors and provides funds for planning of proposed doctoral programs.

Known as Senate Bill 354, the law was introduced by Sen. Verda F. Welcome (D-40th) and had 31 co-sponsors.

* * *

Among those present at the bill signing were Dr. Thomas P. Fraser, interim president; Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, president emeritus and Dr. Andrew Billingsley, the new president.

Among those present were Del. Lloyal Randolph (D-40th) chairman of the Legislative Black Caucus; Senators Verda F. Welcome; and Clarence M. Mitchell III (D-38th); and Delegates Arthur G. Murphy Sr. (D-41st), Nathaniel Exum (D-25th), Isaiah "Ike" Dixon (D-38th), Walter R. Dean Jr., (D-41st), John W. Douglass (D-45th) and Lena K. Lee (D-38th).

Mandel said he was signing the bill with the understanding that certain changes would be made when legislation is introduced into the next session of the General Assembly to implement the Rosenberg Commission Report on higher education in Maryland.

That report recommends university status for Morgan but deviates from the specifications of the bill. Any amendments would bring the bill in line with the report.

OTHER BILLS

Other bills signed are:

—Prohibitions on smoking on elevators and buses and a requirment that health facilities restrict smoking to certain areas.

—A requirement that domestic workers, such as maids and butlers, must be given workmen's compensation.

—A requirement that social workers obtain state licenses.

—A change in the age requirement for purchasing a handgun from 18 to 21.

—An increase in the

Patterson evaluation may hit time 'snag'

Getting off the ground may take over 10 hours

The School Board-Dr. Patterson evaluation session stands reason to witness several hours in getting off the ground prior to actual getting down to business in the 10-hour or more session scheduled this Sunday.

Officially, it's supposed to start at 10 a.m. at 25 h St. school headquarters with Dr. Roland N. Patterson, superintendent, presenting evidence of his performance for the past three and one-half years as head of the Baltimore city public schools.

The Baltimore school system, eighth largest in th nation, has 183,000 students and 9,000 teachers.

Dr. Patterson began his tenure at $50,000 a year in 1971 and has endured many stormy months, trying to integrate the 166 schools in a 73 per cent black and 27 per cent white population school system.

* * *

In the driver's seat Sunday will be his attorney, Larry S. Gibson, an ally and former member of the board.

Testimony will be presented on the personal qualities of the superintendent. If time permits, the board will also address the superintendent's relationship with the board.

* * *

Inside sources tell the AFRO that the board and Gibson may clash over the question of how long the evaluation can "rock on".

It's already consumed 14 hours over a period of seven days. Attorney Gibson says it will take a total of at least 40 hours to answer all 52 of the evaluation criteria.

* * *

That means that Dr. Patterson feels he needs at least 16 more hours, which could extend the evaluation will into next week.

Here's where the board and Dr. Patterson may bump.

According to AFRO sources, the board has set the 10-hour session Sunday in hopes of ending the whole thing.

Board sources also say if the evaluation could end Sunday, they could come to a conclusion and summary within a week.

The board feels the evaluation should end in due time to assure efficiency and to assure the community and the school system that there is no "drifting" or "dilly dallying."

The community and the schools could feel that they should be provided with such assurances to keep at even keel and good morale the AFRO was told.

Nevertheless, the board has vowed to give Dr. Patterson in all fairness, ample time to make his presentations.

* * *

Other things the board has to hash out include the "ghost" of HEW in the closet and the desegregation plan which has to be totally revised.

Then too, there is the commencement season which begins this weekend and extends through June 19 with school exercises scheduled nearly every night or day.

Both the board and Dr. Patterson will have to be on stage for all these affairs, according to tradition.

FBI says it has no clues

A calm, 6-foot man in his late 20's posing as a police officer last Wednesday morning, walked out of the Union Trust Bank on Liberty Heights and Woodbines Ave., with $95,0000.

However, it was not until the clever bandit, threatening the bank workers, had handcuffed the bank manager and his assistant to a coat rack.

The FBI and Holdup Squad police state they have no leads and are still looking for the lone robber who entered the bank shortly before 9 a.m. sporting a grey coat and carrying walkie-talkie radio, a handcuff and a silver revolver.

Police also described the man as between 240-245 lbs., wearing light blue pants, black shoes and a black tie with a white emblem on the tie.

* * *

Acting with great precision, the bandit approached a 19-year-old teller shortly before the opening hour and flashing a badge identified himself as a Central Investigation officer sent to prevent a projected robbery of the bank.

According to police the bank teller refused stating she did not have authority

Funds needed to save church built by slaves

By Elizabeth M. Oliver

WITH THEIR OWN HANDS, slaves built the church by torchlight at night. Today it stands painfully vandalized.

The Committee for the Preservation of Orchard Street Church is launching a fund drive for restoration of the city's oldest building constructed by slave hands.

AFRO readers are asked to contribute generously so that this one monument will not be destroyed or torn down.

Vandals have already seriously damaged the stately church which should be a vital part of the black community's 1976 Bicentennial celebration.

The edifice at Orchard St. near Druid Hill was constructed in 1837.

Legend reveals that the wives held torches for light as the men labored endless hours on the rear section. The front section was built later in 1853 "with sweat and tears."

* * *

There is a secret tunnel that leads from the rear building all the way to Mt. Royal Railroad Station.

The hand-dug route was used by such abolitionists as Harriett Tubman in accomplish the escape of slaves to freedom. Baltimore was, in the height of the 1850's, a central point of "the Underground Railroad" now mentioned in worldwide history.

The task of preserving this historic spot is given to the Orchard Street Preservation group which is incorporated and headed by Mrs. W. A. C. Hughes, wife of the late and noted NAACP Civil Rights attorney.

Mrs. Hughes is assisted by an executive group, Mrs. Mildred Kington, vice chairman; Mrs. Kelly

White teens convicted in cross burning cases

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — Four white youths who told authorities their acts of arson were motivated by a TV movie about Ku Klux Klan activity in the South, have been convicted in Juvenile Court on various charges stemming from the arson.

Two of the juveniles were placed on probation. Sentencing for the other two was deferred. The four youths, all 14 or 15, were charged with several acts of arson between Feb. 24 and 27.

They terrorized a small black community in the Marley Park area of Anne Arundel County.

* * *

They were arrested March 6 after a number of black homes were damaged by firbombs and the youths also were charged with a cross burning on a church lawn.

Rev. Hildebrand transferred, Bethel AME gets new pastor

The Rev. Walter L. Hildebrand, pastor of Bethel AME Church seven years, has been transferred back to the church where he originally started as pastor in 1941.

He is now pastor of Ward AME Church, 241 42nd St. NE, Washington.

He is succeeded by the Rev. Dr. John Bryant, the youngest pastor appointed by Bishop Henry W. Murph. The Rev. Dr. Bryant will preach his first sermon at his new church on Sunday, 11 a.m.

At the closing of the 159th session of the Baltimore Annual Conference held April 22-25, at Bethel AME, Druid Hill Ave. and Lanvale St., it was announced the Rev. Mr. Hildebrand would be transferred. However, he did not know where he was going until several days later.

The AFRO learned several members of the church had asked for a new pastor.

It came as a surprise to the Rev. Mr. Hildebrand on Thursday, when the AFRO asked him who would succeed him at Bethel.

According to the Rev. Mr. Hildebrand he did not know the Rev. Dr. John Richard Bryant, 32, was the new pastor until the AFRO informed him.

* * *

Rev. Mr. Hildebrand preached his last sermon at Bethel AME on May 4. While the post was left open, the Rev. Dr. M. Arthur Camper of Hemingway Temple AME Church presided at Sunday services.

According to the Rev. Dr. Camper, Bishop Henry W. Murph, presiding Bishop of the Second Episcopal District can transfer a minister after serving one year in a church.

As a former pastor of Ward AME Church, the Rev. Mr. Hildebrand said when he first started as minister of the church, there were only 80 members.

He served as pastor at Ward AME from 1941-1944 and from 1966 to 1968, when he was assigned to Bethel AME. Ward AME now has 1,000 members.

The Rev. Mr. Hildebrand and his wife, Mrs. Fredericka Lewis Hildebrand of the 3400 block Callaway Ave., will be moving soon to the parsonage in Washington at 3675 Hiwood Dr.

The 56-year-old minister is the son of Mrs. Hildebrand, Orangeburg, S.C. the AFRO 1956 Mother of the Year, and the late Rev. Benjamin F. Hildebrand, former AME Church presiding elder of the Manning District in South Carolina.

One of his five brothers is Bishop Richard Allen Hildebrand, Sixth Episcopal District of Georgia.

The Rev. Henry A. Hildebrand is pastor of Mt. Zion AME New Brunswick, N.J.

B. F. Hildebrand Jr. is the retired manager of the

Steelworker's bias suit in U.S. Court

(UPI) — United Steelworkers President I. W. Abel denied Wednesday in Federal Court testimony that his union discriminates against blacks in the selection of officials and expressed support for promotion decisions made by the head of the union's District 8.

The plaintiff, Bernard F. Parrish, who is black, has charged in a Federal Civil Rights suit brought against the district that he was passed over for promotion in union ranks because of racial discrimination.

His suit sought $15,000 in back pay plus damages to be awarded at the discretion of the court.

Abel, who expressed support for the promotion decisions made by District 8 Director Edward Plato, also said it was his policy that district directors "maintain their own discretion" in making appointments.

Body in Druid Lake fountain still a mystery

MRS. SHIRLEY LEE WIDGEON PARKER

Baltimoreans still vividly recall the case of the young woman's body found six years ago in the top of the 35 foot fountain in the middle of the Druid Hill Park Reservoir.

It came again to the AFRO's attention last Saturday when thousands of people crowded the park for the festivals.

So many persons asked about the latest word, the AFRO feels obliged to bring the story up to date on the eve of the finding of the body of Mrs. Shirley Lee Widgeon Parker, June 3, 1969.

* * *

Hardly a day goes by that the mysterious case is not revived by motorists and passersby on the busy highways that border the Druid Lake and its fountain and the park said to be one of the nation's largest and most attractive.

According to homicide detectives, no clues have ever been uncovered as to how the beauteous Mrs. Parker died nor how the body came to be in the fountain.

In other words, after six years, the "Body in the Lake Fountain" is still clouded by many unanswered questions.

* * *

Mrs. Parker was a former Urban League secretary and Sphynx Club bookkeeper and barmaid.

It all began on April 23, 1969 when Mrs. Parker was reported missing to the police by her mother, Mrs. Theresa Austin.

Her escort reported to the police she came to his
