R.S.V.P. with Marie

This column, being written on the eve of my trip to New York City to cover the upcoming fashion showings, is a wrap-up of some (only some) of the activities which have occurred during the past few weeks.

And, if you've wondered why R.S.V.P. has not appeared during the past two weeks it's because there just wasn't enough space in this section to print all of the stories, pictures, features and area columns and this column. But we're trying awfully hard to get everything in each week.

It was a happy occasion a couple of weeks back when Mr. and Mrs. Louis Green of Poplar Grove St. hosted a gala birthday dinner party for several of their out-of-town friends. They were Eugene Wilson of Plainfield, N.J.; Mrs. Jean White and Miss Pamela White of Washington, D.C.; Mrs. Hattie Stroud, Mrs. Pauline Randolph, Miss Elaine Randolph, all of Newark, N.J.

It was just like a reunion with all of the folks gathered together. Some of their guests were Pete and Hazel Peterson, Mr. Mary Morton of D.C.; Mrs. B. Copeland, the Harvey Gibsons, the Eddie Johnsons, the Harvey Holmeses, Mrs. Nellie Taylor and Nathaniel Hayle.

On Sept. 30, Mrs. Bessie Walker marked her 87th year—it did not go unnoticed—at a birthday celebration held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Leonard of Grantley Ave. In addition, there was another party held earlier in Cherry Hill, N.J.

A native of Henderson, N.C., Mrs. Walker is the widow of John Henry Nicholson. She is a member of Central Baptist Church where the Rev. Monteque Brackett is pastor. She still holds membership in the Missionary Society, Pastor's Circle and attends church school.

Up until five years ago, Mrs. Nicholson worked in private homes and does not consider her career or her life as being hard. "Even though times have changed, they have not affected me too much," she says.

From the Nicholson union came four children, three daughters, Mrs. Lucy May and Mrs. Rosa Kline of Cherry Hill, N.J. and Mrs. Mary Leonard, and a son, John Nicholson of N.Y. She has one surviving brother, Clarence Walker of Willow Grove, Pa. Also, there are 10 grandchildren, 29 great-grands and two great-great-grandchildren.

Next week: A look at the Frontiers Auxiliary.

Columbia Capers

It was a sunny day last Saturday when the Women's Auxiliary of the Monumental City Medical Society had their luncheon meeting at Columbia's Cross Keys Inn.

Prior to the meeting, members gathered in the lounge conversing over cocktails while waiting to sign the guest book minded by gracious Mrs. Albert Laforest, luncheon chairperson.

Mrs. James Priest presided over the meeting, extended a hearty welcome to all assembled, and introduced the guests sitting at the head table. Welcome and introductions of the beautiful young wives of interns and residents in Baltimore came from Mrs. H. Garland Chessell, president of the auxiliary.

Greetings from the national officers brought lots of compliments to the Baltimore group — Mrs. Frances Allen, national president elect, auxiliary to the Medical Assoc.: "I have always had love and affection for this group; they are the backbone to National."

Mrs. Cleveland E. Smith, regional director II, in essence felt the same, adding that Baltimore Auxiliary had the largest paid-up membership.

Mrs. George C. Page, president of the Women's Auxiliary of the Md. State Medical Assoc., read two informative poems.

Another called "The Luncheon" brought loud chuckles from the women. (Cuff Note) The Baltimore Auxiliary has three things going for them, they are beautiful, intelligent, and they will pay their dues.

Mrs. James Cooper, vice president, introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Beatrice A. Deerfield, psychiatrist at the North Baltimore Mental Health Center. She serves as a consultant for two mental health teams.

Dr. Derefield is a native of Florida, a graduate from Meharry Medical School, later took her residence at Meharry Hospital. Presently she is on the staff at North Charles General Hospital.

"Emotional Dilemma for Females" was the theme of her speech. The speaker, in her discussion of "Emotional Dilemma for Females," suggested that many of the problems with today's females are results of the strong push for equal rights in all sections of life, housewives pushing for their husbands to participate more in homemaking and child rearing because working women see the dual responsibilities of work and home being burdensome.

The Federal Women's Program group at the Social Security Administration will be sponsoring four informal lunchtime sessions this month "mpnasizing women helping Women."

The sessions will be held at noon in the Altmeyer Building, Multi-Purpose room.

Some of SSA'S successful women will talk about their jobs, career experiences, and the various problems of the working women. The first session will be on Monday, Nov. 17.

Kim Bunch, Eve Flippen, Verna Day, and Judy Sietzema are just a few of the women in technical jobs who will lead the discussion groups.

Wednesday, Nov. 18 will feature Debbie Chassman, Naomi Rogers, Maria Jones, Hazel Wood, Margaret Strickland and many other women who are in supervisory jobs.

Kitty Smith, Emily Vogel, Shirley Schnitzlein will lead the discussions on Thursday, Nov. 20, Administrative — Staff jobs will be the topic.

On Friday, Nov. 21 Margie Manning, Jean Hooper, Marilyn Geilbham, Angela Brown and Kathy Vanik will have the opportunity to talk about their secretarial jobs.

Program planners have indicated that similar sessions may be held in all of SSA's buildings.

Everyone who attended the costume ball given by VOSSA on last Saturday evening is still talking about all of the exciting things that happened before and after dinner.

VOSSA committee members kept the casino-type game wheels spinning and turning while a young dynamic group of musicians called, "Life Incorporated" played fantastic sounds for dancing and listening.

The guest judges had a very difficult time picking winners for the three costume categories. Dabney Smith, dressed as an Arabian Sheik was voted the most amusing.

Most original was Rosemary Powell dressed as a Morracan woman and mistakenly identified as "Squeaky Fromme."

Two couples shared the best couple prize. They were Bill and Bruni Obrecht dressed as Roman Gladiators; Charlene Black and Lawrence Epps dressed in Gay Nineties attire.

Charlene and Lawrence could easily have won a prize for being the best dancers on the dance floor. Charlene works downtown in the 777 Calvert St. building [illegible] correction officer at the B[illegible] also designs women's clothes. He plans to feature some of his creations in a fashion show in the near future.

Contest judges were Mrs. Helen Tucker, Mrs. Mar[illegible] Campbell, Mrs. Brenda Vogel and Ms. Ruth Neher.

A special gift for AFGE Local 1923 was accepted by president, Joe Rosenberg and Vice President, Helen Tucker.

The plaque read "In grateful appreciation for continued support provided the SSA Volunteer Program. Signed: VOSSA Board of Directors, 11-8-75.

Louis Zawatky was also scheduled to receive an award, but he was unable to attend. Fred Dechowitz, Bureau of Disability Insurance, SSA, was chairman of the ball.

Afro Bridal Register

Guest-Brooks

Miss Paula M. Brooks and Jerome W. Guest were wed in a ceremony performed by the Rev. Walter L. Parrish, II and the Rev. James Williams Nov. 1 at Morgan State University's Christian Center.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Desper D. Brooks. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Guest, all of Baltimore.

The bride wore a snow white velvet gown accented by Chantilly lace. Her nosegay was beautifully arranged in an assortment of her bridal party's autumn colors.

Baskets of mums and candlelight provided the nuptial setting where the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Bridal attendants were Mrs. Sheila C. Bennett, matron of honor; Mrs. Veronica Fulton, Mrs. Trudy Moore, Miss Diane Guest, Miss Tanya Page, all of Baltimore.

The best man was George Guest. Ushers were Jesse J. Bennett, Joseph Brown, Jr., James Chester, James Davenport, Cecil Guest, and John Moore all of Baltimore, and Melvin Brooks of Glen Burnie, Md.

Nichol Guest was flower girl and Sean Raleigh Bennett, ring bearer.

A reception followed the ceremony at the McKeldin Center. The couple journeyed to Mexico City and Acapulco, Mexico for their honey moon trip. They are now residing in their Baltimore county home.

She's engaged

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Redd Jr. have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Karen Denise Redd to Reginald George Holloway.

MISS KAREN D. REDD
(engagement announced)

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Western High School and Morgan State University. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Redd Sr. and the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Woodland.

The prospective bridegroom was graduated from Bishop Loughlin High School in Brooklyn, N.Y. and Morgan State University. He is the grandson of Mrs. Irene Pedigrew and the late Mr. and Mrs. William Holloway Sr.

A wedding date has not been announced.

CLAPPE-SHACKEFORD

In a quiet ceremony a week and a half ago, Donald C. Clappe and Sheila Shackeford exchanged vows at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Williams.

The Rev. Raymond Kelly officiated the "short" and "sweet" ceremony. The newlyweds are now honeymooning in the capitals of Europe.

Both are originally from Baltimore.
