WHEN FIRE SWEEPS PRAIRIE

Man and Beast Suffer Alike Under Blistering Heat, and the Prayer for Rain Goes Up.

Hot sunlight, winds as hot, as shimmering heat which distorted objects at a distance and made the skyline a dazzling, wavering ribbon of faded blue; and then the dull haze of smoke which hung over the land, and, without tempering the heat, turned the sun into a huge coppery balloon which drifted imperceptibly from the east to the west, and at evening time settled softly down upon a parched hilltop and disappeared, leaving behind it an ominous red glow as of hidden fires, B. M. Bower writes in "Lonesome Land."

When the wind blew, the touch of it seared the face, as the smoke tang assailed the nostrils. All the world was a weird, unnatural tint, hard to name, never to be forgotten. The far horizon drew steadily closer as the days passed slowly and thickened the veil of smoke. The distant mountain drew daily back into dimmer distance; became an obscure, formless blot against the sky and vanished completely. The horizon crouched then upon the bluffs across the river, moved up to the line of trees along its banks, blotted them out one day and impudently established itself halfway up the coulee.

Time ceased to be measured accurately; events moved slowly in an unreal world of sultry heat and smoke and a red sun wading heavily through the copper-brown sky from the east to the west, and a moon as red which followed meekly after.

Men rode uneasily here and there, and when they met they talked of prairie fires and fire guards and the direction of the wind, and of the faint prospect of rain. Cattle, driven from their accustomed feeding grounds, wandered aimlessly over the still-unburned range and lowed often in the night as they drifted before the flame-heated wind.

ALL MEN OF TEMPERAMENT

Great Research Specialists, as a Class, Far More Erratic Than Average Litterateurs.

Literary men are supposed to be like women, varium et mutabile semper, and this has turned university dons against them. I once had an argument with a very dignified but not especially literary college official, writes Frederick E. Pierce in the Literary Review. "Ah!" said he, "You literary men are so temperamental." Then he went on to sing the praises of certain great fact research stars on his faculty to ... kept my tongue idle and my ... busy. Alas and alas! As if great fact research specialists were never temperamental. As of their ... they never blackened the bile of their ... deans or colleagues. When Walter Scott entertained home the half-insane antiquarian ... Ritson, was it the urbane poet, Joseph ... ill-balanced editor of accurate texts or the poet who was more temperamental? In the famous quarrel between Carnivall and Swinburne the noted Shakespeare scholar proved himself slightly more erratic than even the most temperamental poet of the Nineteenth century. Everybody knows that Byron got half drunk to write "Don Juan." How many realize that the great university professor Porson got one hundred and five one-hundredths drunk before lecturing to that same Byron at Cambridge? Porson, with his inexhaustible memory and unquenchable thirst, pouring out hexameters and hiccoughs to his astonished classes—was there ever a more temperamental being?

Human Development.

Humanity, in its acquisition of knowledge, its hopes, its aspirations, its ideals, is in a state of steady development. In art, it is the personal expression of the artist, his individuality—shown not only in mere tricks of style, but in his state of mind, his attitude toward the world about him—which counts most in the end. And that is why art in any form is not a matter only of mere copying of facts. The line to be drawn is not always easy to define, perhaps. But one may best regard some extreme examples. The demand for subject and realism found strong expression in the vogue enjoyed by the chromos years ago. About the same class of people who made the popularity of these color prints at that time today buy the original landscape etching "at $2.37, framed."—"How to Appreciate Prints," by Frank Weltenkampf.

Simple Wet Battery.

Perhaps the most simple wet cell which can be made, says Experimental Science (Washington), is from a copper wire previously heated in a blue gas flame, and a silver wire, both held in running tap water. The copper wire in the gas flame becomes coated with a film of copper oxide.

A varied effect can be produced by separating the copper and silver wires by blotting paper and wrapping them with the same material, and then pouring one of the common electrolytes upon the whole.

Sal ammoniac or sulphuric acid can be used.

Fitting.

WHY THAT LAME BACK?

That morning lameness—those sharp pains when bending or lifting, make work a burden and rest impossible. Don't be handicapped by a bad back—look to your kidneys. You will make no mistake by following this Chestertown resident's example. Ask your neighbor.

Mrs. Bertie Crouch, 111 S. College Ave., says: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as a reliable remedy. They have done me a great deal of good. I had lumbago and such a miserable aching across my back that I was not able to be on my feet a gerat deal of the time. There was no let-up day or night to my suffering. Headaches almost drove me frantic and my head would swim with dizzy spells. The action of my kidneys was irregular, too. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they quickly stopped the aches and pains. I could do my work without suffering, too."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Crouch had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

FIRE PREVENTION IS CONSERVATION

Stopping Fires Before They Start Means Big Economic Saving To All Citizens.

By Henry M. Warfield.

The Fire Prevention Campaign, organized for Baltimore and the State of Maryland, and which starts October 1, should be viewed by the citizens as one of the most important conservation measures ever presented for their consideration and co-operation. Few, I believe, fully comprehend what the reduction of the fire waste really means. Property destroyed by fire, while in most instances paid for by the insurance companies, is, nevertheless, wiped out of existence and thereby constitutes a lessening of our resources by necessitating its replacement from our constantly diminishing sources of supply.

So many fires are due to carelessness or lack of attention to small details in one's house or ... of business that it appears ... criminal that those responsible should not realize the importance of exercising the necessary care and supervision over the premises under their control that would prevent a large percentage of the fires.

The Association of Fire Underwriters of Baltimore City and other similar associations throughout the state and country employ ... stantly employed in making inspections, pointing out to property owners the defects in their equipment and fire prevention arrangements, the improvement of which is reflected by reduction in insurance rates. These inspectors are at the service of any property owner desiring their advice and the compliance with this advice has saved the assured many thousands of dollars in premiums besides reducing the fire waste in which every man and woman should be interested.

These associations are supported by the stock fire insurance companies at no small cost, and any fair-minded citizen cannot but appreciate the great good their work has been to any community through the improved building laws, fire prevention devices and fire-fighting devices suggested by experts in the various lines. Reduction of the fire waste must result in reduction in the cost of insurance, for no class of business is under stricter supervision than insurance by the insurance commissioners of all the states. Should the reduction in fire waste be such as to show increased profits to the insurance companies, rates are just as certain to come down proportionately as night is to follow day.

We have in Baltimore an excellent example of the assistance the stock insurance companies are in bringing about better fire prevention in the area swept by the great fire of 1904. This area has been rebuilt ... a great extent under the direction of the experts employed by the insurance companies with the result that, after paying out ... $35,000,000 in losses to property owners, these property owners are now enjoying lower insurance rates than before the conflagration and the City of Baltimore can feel quite sure that a repetition of the conflagration will not occur in this ...
