One of the sa... that has occurred at Roc... many years took place Satu... ening, when Mr. Joseph Wa... Rock Hall, was run over by ...amin Coburn, of the same town... his automobile and died shortly afterward.

It seems that Walbert was walking along the roadside leading from the wharf where the steamer B. S. Ford had just docked. A number of machines were leaving the pier, and it is said that Mr. Coburn did not see the unfortuante man.

Mr. Walbert's untimely death has cast a shadow over the whole community.

Mr. Walbert was 61 years of age and leaves five sons and two daughters,his wife having died several years ago. He is survived also by four brothers and three sisters, viz: George, Theodore, James and Alfred Walbert, Mrs. Laura Cranor, Mrs. B. F. Rash and Mrs. C. G. Hadaway. Funeral services were held in Rock Hall M. E. Church Tuesday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. T. C. Smoot, interment at Wesley Chapel cemetery. The pall bearers were: John E., and Walter Hadaway, Harry Hepbron, ...hn Jones, Charles Schmeltz and A... tine Smith. C. L. Dodd, undertak...

Mr. Colburn was tried before ...tice Robert Moffett at Chestertown Friday morning, found guilty and sentenced to pay a price of $500 and costs and to be confined in the Kent County jail for a period of six months. An appeal was taken by Mr. Colburn and he was held on $1000 bail.

Sidney P. Townshend, Esq., Meets With Accident

Sidney P. Townshend, Esq., while returning from Cambridge, where he had been on business, had one of his arms hurt, head cut and otherwise badly bruised and shaken up when his son's car, in which they were riding, turned over. The accident occurred near East Newmarket. WISDOM OF TAKING "DAY OFF"

Leisure Time, That Has Been Earned, Means Better Health and Better Work Afterward.

"There is nothing that clears the cobwebs so effectually out of one's brain as a day off," the Young-Old Philosopher was saying. "Just as we plan our work, we should plan our play; only, most of us, in the clamor of the times, forget that to loaf occasionally is as necessary as to drudge; and we confuse leisure with laziness.

"I know in my own case how difficult it is for me to make up my mind, definitely and unbendingly, that I require, now and then, a morning away from my desk.

"So if the day off means so much to us, mentally and physically, why are we afraid to take it when the opportunity arrives? I like nothing better than to see, in the big town, a group of middle-aged men hastening out in a motor car on some crisp morning, their golf sticks piled beside them, while others trudge to dreary tasks. They have earned their liberty, no doubt—let us hope so, at any rate; and they will be all the better tomorrow for those few hours of delightful sport and health-giving freedom.

"Too soon the curtain is rung down on this glowing world we live in; and it is heartbreaking to consider how many spots there are close at our gates which we never find the time to see and enjoy. Partly it is our own fault. The green earth cries out to us to come and tread the corridors of the countryside; instead, we cling to the granite of the city, and pace desolate hallways—the more desolate because they are crowded with people we do not know. And all of them are hurrying—where?

"I wonder. And so, no doubt, do they."—From the Outlook.

STEEPLES OF MANY DESIGNS

No General Rule Has Been Followed by Architects in Centuries of Church Building.

Steeple is a general architectural name for the whole arrangement of tower, belfry, spire, etc. The origin of steeples is obscure, the term spire (Old English, "spir," a blade of grass, and so anything tapering to a point), is the specific architectural term given lofty roofs in stone or wood, covered with lead or slate which crown the towers of cathedrals, churches and various other buildings. In plan they are conical, or pyramidal or octagonal, or hexagonal, often pierced by ornamental openings where they are enriched with crockets. On the continent the architects aimed to make the steeple and spire one, merging them into each other, while in England they openly confessed it was a separate structure by making its point of origin behind a plain or pierced parapet, or ornamental battlements. A spire properly belongs to pointed architecture and hence has never been fully developed except in Gothic buildings. As early as the Twelfth century they took on different forms, and almost everywhere from the Thirteenth to the Sixteenth century became the terminating construction of every church steeple, tower or lantern, and also those of similar buildings, more especially in Germany and France. In England Norman churches were without spires, but with the coming of early English, short ones were introduced; decorated Gothic called for much higher ones, and the perpendicular still higher. The earlier spires were generally built of timber, and they were always so when the building was roofed with wood. These early timber spires were, as a rule, not very tall, but later reached a greater elevation; that which crowned old St. Paul's in London is said to have been 527 feet in height. The most lofty spires now in existence, such as those of Salisbury, Coventry and Norwich, are all of stone.
