Teachers, county reach agreement

COLUMBIA, Md. (UPI) — A Howard County teacher group and the county administration have reached a tentative agreement on a new one-year contract.

The proposed pact provides a four per cent across-the-board salary increase for the county's 1,400 teachers and administrators, in addition to the normal yearly increment which averages out to about five per cent.

Ellen Dowling, president of the Howard County Education Association, represents most of the county teachers, said Tuesday the proposed contract is a "reasonable settlement" and that she will recommend ratification.

Voting on the contract proposal was conducted Thursday and today. Friday.

Fulton Bar murder suspect in city jail

Cortney Thomas, 47-year-old man accused of killing Otis "Bunky" Harris February 8 in the Fulton Inn, 1691 Fulton Ave. is confined to City Jail on $50,000 bail.

Harris, 40, of the Westwood Apts., was shot while he and his wife were inside the Fulton Inn Bar around 10:30 p.m.

The AFRO learned Harris, who was known as "Bunky" formerly worked as a cook at the French Riviera Club. However, Ed Butler, manager of the club told the AFRO, "Bunky was a very beautiful individual who always wanted to do good but he never worked at the club."

At the time of his death, Harris was employed at Lever Brothers. Police reveal two other men became involved in an argument over 25 cents that the victim owed Thomas.

According to police, Thomas entered the bar and had a drink before he allegedly shot Harris who was standing near the door next to his wife.

Tax relief legislation filed by 38th District

ANNAPOLIS — The delegates from Baltimore's 38th Legislative District introduce legislation next week which could be an accompanying measure to Gov. Marvin Mandel's proposed five per cent sale tax hike.

According to the clerk of the House of Delegates, Delegates Larry Young, Lena K. Lee and Isaiah Dixon have sponsored a bill that would increase the minimum levy upon which an individual must pay taxes.

If passed by both houses, the bill would establish a $5,000 individual income level and a $10,000 level for married couples before the state income tax would be collected.

The present level of tax on individual persons is two per cent on the first $1,000 earned, three per cent on the second $1,000, four per cent for persons earning $3,000, and five per cent for persons earning $3,000 and up. Married couples are taxed in the same manner.

In a recent interview, Del. Young stated he views the sales tax as a regressive means of accumulating state revenues.

He explained although exemptions are allowed for certain products under the sale tax law, such as food and prescription drugs, some three percent is often unaware of these exemptions and unknowingly pays customers accordingly.

"An increase in the sale tax alone would only expand the burden of low income citizens in providing their portion of state revenues," he explained further.

Young pointed out by raising the minimum level of income upon which taxes are based a more equitable arrangement would exist for those who are less able to continually pay a flat rate sales tax on purchases.

He also stated the increase would affect state laws and allow for some relief from the "rising tax spirals of today.

because of the nation's economic troubles.

"I have opposed every pay raise since I've been in Congress," he said. "The rate of inflation today would indicate to me that this type of pay raise is not appropriate."

Republican Marjorie Holt and Democrats Barbara Mikulski and Gladys Spellman all said they are against the pay raise. Mrs. Holt said it would be "irresponsible" and Miss Mikulski said congress should pass a code of ethics, not a salary hike.

Mrs. Spellman said, "I think it is time we stopped holding Federal employes hostage to the political wrath from congressional salary increases."

Monumental Bar group opposes Mandel death bill

The Monumental City Bar Association opposes Governor Mandel's bill on reinstating the death penalty in the state of Maryland.

A Dwight Pettit, president, testified in the Senate Judiciary Committee in Annapolis Thursday to that effect.

He stated that capital punishment is not acceptable for any type of offenses due to the fact that historically, such punishment has always had a disparity of impact on black and poor people as opposed to white and upper and middle class people.

He stated, it is impossible to take discretionary elements out of the legal structure, whether that discretion be exercised by pr
