R.S.V.P. With Marie

By Marie P. COOKE
Reflections Editor

WE FOUND THE ANSWER to the question that had us probbing into the lives of our sisters. All done without their knowledge and-or permission. Two weeks ago we set out on a "why-hunt." We wanted to know why, why, why black women work so hard to help others, especially these days when TIME is king (a marketing research firm reports that TIME is the most valuable aspect in contemporary lifestyles. No wonder there are so-o-o many fast foods restaurants popping up all over the place. Cooking is just too time-consuming!)

So every day for 14 days we watched women of various backgrounds—and locations: in the church, on the job, in the home, on the street. Young. Old. In-between. Sisters everywhere, WHY, WHY, WHY do you do the things you do?

Our answer came one morning: Where there is faith, there is love. And where there is love, there is more love, and more love, and more . . . Basking in that spirit are our black women, helpin' and strengthening and LOVIN' each other.

The Spirit of Love can be found in that tabernacle called Sharon Baptist Church, Stricker and Presstman Sts., where the Rev. James L. Moore is pastor.

This week we received an invitation from our sweetheart, Ruth J. Pratt, inviting us to be a part of a panel discussion on "Christian Women Challenging Today's World," the theme for its 50th Women's Day, Sunday, Oct. 23, 5 p.m. Others invited to speak on the theme as it relates to us personally are: Councilwoman Mary Pat Clark, Clara Lancaster, Esther Brooks, Beverly White, Geraldine Griner and Bernice Hooker. Mrs. Pratt is moderator.

Sharp Street's Anniversary

A note from another hard worker, Charlotte H. Harper, educator and active member of the local graduate chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority (AKA) reminds us that Sharp Street Memorial United Methodist Church will observe its 175th anniversary on Sunday, Oct. 23 with the following activities:

—11 a.m., service at the church (Dolphin and Etting Streets), sermon by the Right Rev. Edward G. Carroll;

—5 p.m., Social hour and dinner at Blue Crest North; speaker, the Right Rev. James K. Mathews.

(Mrs. Harper is general chairperson of the anniversary committee.)

Enon's Annual Day

The same spirit of love is glowing and growing at Enon Baptist Church where the "saints" are busy pooling together their resources to put this year's Women's Day (No. 11-13) on the pages of black history.

Heading the committee is one, it seems, who lives to strengthen humanity—Ellen D. Howard. (She's the executive director of Direct Search For Talent, the Delta Sigma Theta and Baltimore Public Schools career guidance program.)

Ellen says that the women of Enon are a team and are "working diligently" and "enthusiastically" in the planning for a spiritually uplifting weekend of involvement and participation. "Christian Women Accepting the Challenges of Finer Womanhood," the theme will be realized through these activities at the church, Edmondson and Schroeder St.

Monday, Nov. 7, 7:30 p.m. — Baptist Women's Day of Prayer, a national observance;

—Friday, Nov. 11, 7:30 p.m., Vesper Candlelight Service; the Rev. Myrna Powell as guest speaker;

—Saturday, Nov. 12, noon, Saturday Noon Prayer Service, to help women understand the sincerity of prayer, followed by a panel discussion and luncheon involving women who are meeting the challenges in careers, leadership roles, volunteerism, marriage-singleness and divorce, religion, media. Some of the prospective panelists are; Dr. Frances Beckels, Thelma T. Daley, Dr. Frances Johnson, Barbara Kingston, Mary Robinson and Marie Phillips-Cooke;

—Sunday, Nov. 13, 8 a.m., Communion-Fellowship Breakfast, to enhance Christian love and faith through participation in a fellowship breakfast, a service of reverence, and partaking of the Lord's Super. Guest speaker is our good friend and sister Oprah Winfrey, local TV news reporter;

—11 a.m. Sunday morning service will feature Velma Strode as guest speaker. Mrs. Strode is director of the U.S. Offife of Equal Employment Opportunities, U.S. Department of Labor. Our own Margaret Lindsey will be the guest soloist.

—Sunday, 5 p.m., Cultural Arts Exhibit will feature the creative talents of women and a performance by the New Afrikka Players.

Assisting in this Women's Day experience are co-chairwomen Altamese Arnold, Vivian Bennett and Anna Williams, and committeewomen: Irene Aquillard, Alma Bey, Elizabeth Bourne, Gertrude Corbett, Edith Code, Louise T. Dolvey, Tornelle G. Drake, Mildred Dunson, Pearl Exum, Audrey Ford, Mattie Garner, Agnes A. Gibson, Phyllis Harcum, Angela Hawkins, Evalena Henderson, Mary F. Hopkins;

Marion J. Jackson, Gracie Johnson, Marie Johnson, Floretta Jones, Thelma Leeds, Alice Matthews, Pearl Matthews, Bertha Nixon, Meatrice Parker, Willie M. Parker, Ethel Poindexter, Mabel M. Proctor, Florence B. Richardson, Sophia Richardson, Alice Robinson, Ruth Rosedom, Ruth Saulesbury, Bertha Seay, Alice Shelton, Betty Shelton, Geraldine Smith, Willie Mae Stanley, Gladys Taylor, Laura Whitfield, Nellie Williams, Ethel Wise and Susie Young.

(NOTE: We received word this week that the Rev. Porter W. Phillips Jr., Enon's pastor, is resting at home following a heart attack.)

Links First Meeting

Link Mae Adams entertained the Baltimore Chapter of Links at the first meeting of the program year, writes Ruth M. Green, publicity chairwoman.

A service of rededication was conducted by the immediate past president, Cardrienne Griffin. The candle lighting ceremony served to focus the members attention to this year's theme—"Reach Out and Touch."

President Vera Hayes, set the tone for the coming months stressing service, outreach, and friendship.

"Though on vacation during the summer, Links were not idle," writes Mrs. nGlenn, "they were busy formulating plans for community service programs; many activities have been planned."

Yvette Murphy's Fine Arts Committee plans to take a group of secondary students to a cultural event during the year. In April, this committee will present a concert for the public featuring a budding artist. The services to Youth Committee, Barbara Patterson, chairperson, will conduct a series of career conferences in selected elementary schools to create an awareness of varied jobs and their training requirements. In addition, plaques will be presented to "Miss Coppin" and "Miss Morgan" and a contribution made to Big Brothers — Big Sisters. Link Ada Weaver is a member of the Board of this organization.

Links Kathleen Carter and Audrey Howard who chair National Trends and Services and International Trends and Services will pool their committees' energies and resources to help furnish a room in the shelter for battered women which is being established in Baltimore. A trip to an African or Caribbean Embassy is planned for the spring.

To help carry out these ambitious plans, Robbie Chissell outlined plans for a fund raising event which she will chair. This will be a dinner theatre party on Nov. 30, 1977.

In the Links' Newsletter, the President congratulated Dr. Pearl Brackett for her appointment to the Board of Directors of the Baltimore Federal Savings and Loan Association and Kay Carter for having been appointed by President Carter to serve as a member of the United States Circuit Judge Nominating Panel for the Fourth District. Kay was busy fulfilling this assignment during the summer.

Links supported the NAACP Unity Ball by reserving a table. The breakfast and political workshop sponsored by the National Hook-Up of Black Women, Inc. held at the Washington, D.C. Hilton was attended by Links Chissell, Carter, and Glenn.

Links closed their meeting with a few moments of prayerful silence for Audrey Norris on the loss of her sister Eunice Hall; for Cardrienne Griffin on the loss of her aunt, and for Jimmie Laforest whose husband, Dr. Albert Laforest, is very ill.

Dinner and a social hour rounded off the evening in a pleasant manner.

Attending the meeting were Links Mae Adams, Vera Hayes, Cardrienne Griffin, Mary Pitts, Catherine Adams, Emma Michael, Kay Carter, and Robbie Chissell. Also there, were Links Betty Harris, Geraldine Desbordes, Barbara Patterson, Ada Weaver, Theresa Weaver, Marie Francis, Marie Hicks, and Audrey Howard. Links Lillian Jones, Marion Russell, Beatrice Butler, Helen Burwell, Etta Phifer, Audrey Norris, Alice Russell, Pauline Watts, Bennie Ruth Simpkin, and Ruth Glenn.

Leo Birthday Party

Folks are still talking about the Ernie Hammond and Dave Richeson Leo Birthday Celebration party at Gatsby's recently. It was truly a "leaper" and crowded!! It was like old homecoming night for some who had not seen friends in 10 to 15 years. All Leo's were given a flower as they entered.

Partygoers came from Baltimore, Washington, D.C., Annapolis, New York and Texas. And they danced "frenetically" to disco downstairs or listened to the Bennie Braxton group from D.C. All in all, it was a fun nite and those Leo's honorees phones have buzzed continuously every since.

Word has it that out - of - towners were quite impressed with the Gatsby and vowed to come again real soon!

Here's who was there: Rose Hammond, E. Marie Coleman, attorney Elsie Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Booker, Mimi Frazier, Julia Caraway, April B. Cox, Karen A. Newton and Beverly; Mr. and Mrs. Joel Newton, Attorney David B. Allen, Col. George Brooks, Jackie Blanton, Benita Merritt, Carolyn Marcus, Jalima Marriott;

Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Newman, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Green, Beverly Sherin, Sandra Payne, Barbara Bennett, Charlotte Robinson, Sheri Robinson, Dona Reid, Dr. and Mrs. O'Neill Hammond, Jackie Hall;

Hattis Hightower, Elaine Smith, Jimmy Wilson, Dr. Healey LeCator, Regina Lowman, Dwight Lofton, Sharon Evans, Leonard Jackson, Robert Chissell, C. Beth Cryor, Paula Chester, Henri Daniels, Carl Edward Smith, Clarence M. Mitchell III;

Careers seminars Oct. 21-22

A two-day institute on career opportunities for black women, featuring a luncheon address by Thelma Cox of the Baltimore City Schools, will be held at the University of Maryland Baltimore County Oct. 21-22. The career institute, sponsored by UMBC's African-American Studies Program, will offer area women a chance to discuss specific career choices with successful women from seven different career backgrounds.

Registration for the institute will be held at 8:30 a.m. on Oct. 21 in UMBC's Dining Hall III. The morning program, beginning with a welcome by John Dorsey, Chancellor of UMBC, and Willie B. Lamouse-Smith, Director of African-American Studies, will include a panel discussion entitled "Factors Affecting Career Choices and Opportunities of Black Women."

Panel leaders and their topics are: Sex Roles and their Effects on Attitudes, Motivation, Stereotypes and Traditions by Dr. Saundra Murray; The Value of a Liberal Arts Education in Career Preparation by Betty Glascoe; The Internship Program by Denise Fox.

This discussion will examine the effects of sex-role stereotyping, the SSA Toastmistress and Toastmaster Clubs observed their tenth anniversary last week with a joint program held in the Altmeyer Building Auditorium during the lunch hours.

Eleanor Ropach, president of the Point Breeze club was toastmistress of the day, and John Michener, SSA Toastmaster club acted as toastmaster. The inspiration was given by Maralyn Marske, Security Toastmistress and Council One secretary. Maralyn used an effective technique to involve the audience in her presentation. Al Jones, recently elected Area Governor, rendered a salute to toastmistress and toastmaster clubs through out the world in his welcome address.

Dr. John Crew Superintendent, Baltimore Public Schools, shared the speakers platform with Brenda Washington, president, Security Toastmistress Club, John Swartz, Office of Human Resource management staff, and Gwen Moore, Woodlawn Toastmistress Club and past chairman of Council One.

Dr. Crew, in his comments, reviewed the accomplishments and growth of Toastmistress and Toastmaster clubs and commended them for their Youth Leadership programs. Ms. Washington dealt with the "Who are we, and What are we all about?" questions that many people are asking.

Mr. Swartz, who substituted for Frank DeGeorge, spoke for management when he stated that "It is an important part of the agencies responsibility to develop the skills of our employes." He went on to say that, "We are very proud and pleased that we have the kinds of people here in SSA who can perform this job." Mrs. Moore, who because of her long association with the clubs is called the "Mother Hen", gave a hilarious presentation that clearly showed how not to give a speech.

Other program participants were Tom Wolfson, Art Bloom, Raymond Robinson, Council One President, and Nate Lawson. Recognition was given to members of the first SSA Toastmistress club.

They were: Pauline Adams, Lorene Cephas, Ruth Dnn, Marcella Ehrlich, Joan Enwright, Chris Flint, Sadie Givens, Marjorie Gutfleisch, Marilyn Johnson, Regina Hyman, also Mamie McDonald, Carol McInerney, Eva Miller, Viola Moreland, Gwen Moore, Raymona Robinson, Bertha Scott, Lucille Sutton, Florence Duerr, Alice Vering, Beverly Willis, and Dorothy Clay. Several of the Charter members, council officers area officers, and club officers were present.

The First National Leadership Training Institute on Women and Alcoholism was held Sunday, October 2 through Thursday, October 6 in Washington D.C., Patricia Heubusch, a resident of York, Pennsylvania represented the Social Security Administration.

The training sessions cooperatively sponsored by the American University's Women's Institute and the Office of Women of the National Council on Alcoholism brought together national leaders for four days of workshops, seminars and field training.

According to Mrs. Heubusch, SSA's drug and alcoholism co-ordinator, she has found that "In working with SSA employees, there is an increasing awareness of women who may be having alcohol related problems. In order to help them, we need to be aware of new developments in treatment, and the community resources available to provide support."

Included in the institute were discussions of the issues of treatment, prevention, and research related to women and alcoholism.

Leonard P. Barber, a member of the Mass Transit Administration will visit SSA, on Thursday, October 20, to discuss the need to provide foul weather shelters for SSA employees who ride buses.

The noontime discussion is part of a series being presented by the Social Security Administration Ecology group.

REFLECTIONS

The Travis Winkey Modeling Studio presented it's Fourth Annual Graduation last week at the University of Baltimore auditorium. Despite the heavy rain showers the auditorium was packed to capacity, more half came early to listen to the disco music provided by Harry Boldin.

Pretty is the word to describe the well decorated stage consisted of over eighteen containers with white long feathers placed around the stage.

The 26 students came out to give a "show-off" to the waiting audience and showed what they had learned in Mr. Winkey's studio. The audience began to applause as soon as the first student appeared on stage. They were poised, charming, and exceptionally graceful with large balloons that read "Love".

The graduates formed two lines on the stage and quickly did one of the Winkey's numbers (Shasi famous turns) after which the MC's appeared, Carmelette Cooms, a "company" model of Mr. Winkey's and Clarence Bishop, a staff member of Congressman Parren Mitchell.

It was "show-off" time for the graduates and they did just that. They turned and spinned in all directions with extremely good posture. The graduates came back with a second change, evening wear as the ladies switched around the stage easily, sensuously and looked well from every viewing vantage point. The males really did a "show-off". Bruce Thornton, a cool, young man, actually stole the show with his quick movements and wondering thoughts. The audience just didn't want to see him leave the stage. Cuffnote: (I must say he is a dynamite young model).

Gracious Miss Hazel Bryant, New York, daughter of Bishop and Mrs. Harrison J. Bryant spoke to the graduates. Miss Bryant is the director of the Richard Allen Center for Culture and Art, New York. After her inspirational message to the graduates she helped award certificates to the students and outstanding persons.

Bob Matthew, sales manager of Archway Ford received the Man of the Year Award, Arnold Mitchell, Unseen Hero award, and Thelma Daley, national president, Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Woman of the Year Award.

The Student of the Year award went to Bruce Thornton for his gentlemen manner, dedication to the field, cooperativeness.

Speaking of energetic Miss Bryant, she was totally responsible for Mr. Winkey's contact in New York according to Mr. Winkey. Last year her center was newly open and dedicated. At that time Mr. Winkey gave a fabulous fashion show and she introduced him to the public (people in the arts) and the fashion industry has been calling him since that day.

Mr. Winkey is now head of the Fashion Department in the Culture Arts Center in New York. He has presented three big shows at the center, one at the Waldorf Astoria, a Cheese Burrell production, several in Philadelphia. Presented by New York and Washington D.C., firms several of his male models are doing House Modeling in New York. Recently he did a big show "Tapping on the Grass" in Central Park, presented by Botany 500 and the New York Press. He is in the process of doing Catalogue work with major catalogues throughout the country.

Travis Winkey, a Baltimore native will be at the Lincoln Center November 27, benefit Sickle Cell Anemia to do another big show. Featured on the program will be The Alvin Ailey Jr. Company. Rae C. Ross a columbia resident will be featured in a solo. Miss Ross does demonstrations and teaches two classes for the Ailey Studio.

Mr. Winkey will present New York's first black Seventh Avenue designer, Arthur McGee with his Fall and Winter collection to be held at Odell's. The collection will be modeled by "The Company Mr. Winkey's professional troop.

In Mr. Winkey's strive for success, the studio has captured the 1976 title for second best model of the world, Dyane Denis, New York. They have received 38 awards including certificates and trophies.

He says "God had given me talent in this area and I want to continue to strive to make a contribution to the Baltimore youngsters, to encourage the improvement of their appearance in poise, charm and for them to be a more graceful people."

One step further than modeling. The new Cultural Art Form of the Travis Winkey Theory of modeling is to communicate release and resolve the deep rooted natural feeling of one's individual personality.

Travis said "If this is the end or just the beginning, My name is Travis Winkey.

CECIL SESSION. SUPERMANAGER!

A Division Sales Manager for the world's largest manufacturer of cosmetics, toiletries and costume jewelry carries quite a load of responsibility. But for Cecil Session it isn't a problem. She manages 19 District Managers, assists 3,000 Avon Representatives and is responsible for over $6 million in sales with cool efficiency.

Her father named her Cecil. (He gave all his children boy's names.) But don't let that fool you. She's quite a woman. She spends about 70% of her work time traveling, because her Division covers San Francisco, Oakland and Pasadena. But she still finds time to manage a home and take good care of her husband, Curtis, and her daughter, Jeanette.

Ms. Session began her career in 1972 in Avon's manufacturing laboratory. From there, she became a District Manager, then a Management Associate and, in August 1975, a Division Manager.

Avon, especially, offers the opportunity to earn money and gain prestige to women who are willing to accept the challenge. Cecil Session finds her career in sales a super way of life. And she enthusiastically encourages other women to give it a try.
