Liquor commissioner indicted on 22 mail, tax fraud counts

A federal grand jury Wednesday indicted Baltimore Liquor License Commissioner Joseph J. Staszak on 22 counts of mail fraud, racketeering, tax perjury, and tax evasion for allegedly concealing his interest in a tavern.

Staszak was a state senator from 1967 to 1975, when he was appointed to the liquor board by then Gov. Marvin Mandel.

The indictment charged he concealed his part - ownership of a Dundalk, Md., tavern from the governor, the state senate and the liquor board during hearings on his appointment.

The indictment said the liquor license for Joe's Tavern is held in two names other than Staszak.

It also charged he continued to hide his proprietary interest in Joe's Tavern while serving on the liquor board.

The indictment is a result of a four - year federal investigation into possible Baltimore Corruption conducted by agents of the Internal Revenue Service, the FBI and the U.S. Post Office.

Staszak, a 61 - year - old political boss in East Baltimore, has been under investigation for more than a year concerning his financial and political activities.

Gov. Harry Hughes last month decided not to reappoint Staszak to the liquor board when his term ends May 1.

Federal agents also have been investigating the activities of Staszak's political organization and have subpoenaed state and city election records for recent elections.

The four - year investigation so far has resulted in the convictions of:

— Former Delegate George J. Santoni, D-Baltimore, for taking cash payments from a contracting company set up by the FBI. He was sentenced to five years in prison.

— Former Baltimore school system maintenance foreman John Jakubik, also an East Baltimore political figure, for extortion. He was sentenced to 18 months in jail.

— Former Baltimore Deputy Public Works Director Ottavio F. Grande, for accepting kickbacks from demolition contractors who had rigged bids worth millions of dollars. He was sentenced to four years in prison and fined $10,000.

— Five contractors found guilty along with Grande.

"OPERATION BIG FOOT" — City employee Sheila Womack helps kick off the March of Dimes "Operation Big Foot" with City Comptroller Hyman Pressman sa other employees wait in line. The aim of the project is to cover the walls of Baltimore with footprints. These indicate workers and group members who have registered to walk April 22 to help in the fight against birth defects. A "Big Foot" sign, registration materials and a film about the Walk are available by calling 752 - 7990.

Civic Center officials wooing sports teams

Civic Center officials said they are negotiating with soccer, ice hockey and basketball league executives to lure teams to Baltimore.

John Scollan, marketing director for the Hyatt Management Corp. that operates the Civic Center for the city, said he is "looking into new ways to utilize the Civic Center.

"We're negotiating now for pro sports franchises, like indoor soccer, a real ... said.

Scolian said the downtown parking facilities for the Civic Center would have to be expanded to accommodate the crowds he is expecting once major sports teams start playing there.

He said the city is considering building a parking lot above the present Civic Center building.

Scollan said the Civic Center had a deficit of $700,000 last year. But he said he expects professional sports to make the center self - supporting.

He said he expects some teams to play in the Civic Center by next fall.

The Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball Association played at the Civic Center for many years but were moved to Landover in 1973 when they were sold to Washington area businessman Abe Pollin.

Homicides increase 54 percent

The number of murder victims in the city this year is up by 54 percent compared to a year ago, according to an unofficial police tally released Thursday.

Sources said homicide detectives have investigated 68 killings so far this year, compared to 44 last year.

Official police statistics for the first quarter of the year will not be available until early April.

The rise in homicides continues a trend that began last year when police investigated 197 killings, 28 more than in 1977.

Police officials could not say why the number of killings is rising.

gas and electric turn-offs can be avoided

We are concerned that some of our customers have not paid their gas and electric bills which have accumulated over the past winter. Non-payment of these bills could result in the loss of gas and electric service after April 2. We do not want this to happen and with your help, it can be avoided.

If you have past due gas and electric bills and you can't pay the entire amount, get in touch with us. We'll be happy to discuss your individual situation and try to work out a solution.

Here are some things that can be done—with your cooperation

1 Installment Payments

In cases where a customer cannot pay the entire bill, we will accept a partial payment and arrange installment payments in the form of a special agreement for the balance. Normally, we would expect the down payment to be at least 25% of the arrears and the balance to be paid in no more than six monthly installments. Even if you can't meet these requirements, get in touch with us and perhaps some other suitable arrangements can be worked out.

2 Outside Help

For those in dire financial need, there are a number of social agencies that have government or private funds available. We suggest you contact the Department of Social Services in the City or county where you live to determine if you are eligible for financial help. In special cases, we will accept the guarantee of a reputable agency in lieu of payment.

3 Even Monthly Payment Plan

Monthly payments are averaged throught the year to take care of increased use of gas and electricity during the heating months. All residential customers are eligible and there is no added cost. Once a year your account is balanced so you only pay for what you use.

4 Third Party Notification

A brand new plan which allows another person to receive a copy of a cut-off notice. That person is not responsible for the bill but would be informed when there is a problem. This could help people who are out of town, elderly people, or people with physical problems. The necessary form is being sent out with this month's bill but one may be obtained by calling any of our offices.

We are willing to help. Turn-offs can be avoided but you must do your part.
