Md. Auto offers all types of coverage

Maryland Auto Insurance provides all forms of insurance and specializes in auto, truck and motorcycle coverage.

The agency was incorporated in 1971 with the first office located at 2300 W. North Ave. It has since moved to 4670 York Road and to the newest location in Walbrook Plaza.

Maryland Auto is a privately owned business and is not affiliated with the state of Maryland. The owner, Eugene Cross, has been in the insurance business for 22 years and has spent most of that time working in the black community.

"I felt this location would be good exposure to business," said Cross. "It's a clean, well-secured and convenient facility. It's not always easy to find a decent place."

The hours of operation are 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursdays and Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Working at the new location are Joseph Patti and Danise Dorsey.

Ms. Dorsey is one of the youngest black female insurance brokers in Baltimore. She doesn't consider that a real big thing though. She's aiming for a higher personal distinction. Having her own agency before she is 30.

According to Ms. Dorsey, she stumbled upon her present position. Recounting how she became a broker, the former Enoch Pratt Library employee said, "I was working as a typist when the owner of Maryland Auto asked me if I would like to become a licensed broker. I said yes."

Ms. Dorsey who has been with the company over four years was enrolled at the University of Baltimore where she studied for her property and casualty license.

First black Subway franchise in country

The first black-owned franchise in the Subway Submarine Sandwich shop chain in the country was opened by four Baltimoreans in 1976 at St. Paul and 25th Streets. The second location is among several stores opening in Walbrook Plaza.

All four owners are former employees with the Baltimore City Department of Planning and include Michael and Carolyn Gaines, C. Yvonne Holt, Raymond A. Skinner and Harvey D. Carter.

Gaines, owner and manager of the Walbrook location stated that the owners prefer opening locations in the black community. "We feel merchants are needed who care and work in the community. Rather than take dollars out of the community you need businesses that will put money back into the community through purchases and employment."

SANDWICH MAKING — Owner and manager of the Walbrook Plaza Subway Submarine Sandwich Shop instructs an employee how to make one of the varieties of foot long wiches available at the shop.

He added, "I feel that if black people can work together as a group black economic development can flourish. Where you have a population that is 47 to 50 percent black, that's a tremendous market.

"Blacks supporting other black businesses is an economic situation that is a great catalyst. Without this effort there can be no real black economic development."

Subway specializes in hot and cold submarine sandwiches of all varieties, featuring Alaskan King Crab salad and the "BMT," the biggest, meatiest and tastiest cold cut in the world."

The Subway Submarine Sandwich Shop franchise is headquartered in Connecticut with locations primarily located along the northeast section of the country.
